How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy. REV. R. G. WILDER, Princeton, N. J., says:— "I find nothing helps so much to keep me in working condition as Simmons Liver Regulator." See that you get the Genuine,

THE CLOTHING EXHIBIT.

It Is Housed in a Reproduction of a Famous Greek Temple. The Tailors' national exchange has erected a handsome structure of its own at Jackson park. The cost of the building was about $25,000, and S. S. Beman was the architect. The building reproduces the Erechtheum at Athens, which was planned by Pericles and erected under the supervision of Whereas The present perilous condition is and erected under the supervision of largely the result of a financial policy which the Phidias, the great Greek sculptor. It was finished about 410 B. C.

This reproduction is 55 feet 6 inches square, inside measurement. The porticos front and rear are alike. The building is 94 feet each way, over all. The interior of the main room is octagonal in shape, which forms a small room in each corner. Upon the north and south sides is a semicircular room, 14 by 22 feet. Several rooms and the days ago that if the President received portico fronting upon the lagoon (as reasonable assurances that there was hown in the elevation) are strictly a likelihood of a prompt repeal of the private for the exclusive use of subscribers to the building fund. The steps of the portico on the lagoon side extend to the water, as a private landing for boats. The building is attractively furnished, and attended by ers he has obtained the assurances he employes of the national exchange, capable of describing and exhibiting the garments, fabries, style, trimmings and workmanship, in an intelligent, unbiased and creditable manner to all exhibitors, whether members of the national exchange or not, The ceramic mosaic on the floor was designed and made especially for this building by a firm at Shropshire, England. The building is a credit to all who have had a share in its erection.

A PECULIAR FLOWER. It Comes from South Africa and Cannot

Everything is big at the world's fair. You see and hear there the biggest biggest lies in the world. Even the flowers are big. Over in the greenhouse there is one that opened the The fixing of the provisional rate of dren. The names have not yet been other day. There is nothing as big as it in America. It is 44 inches long and is the first of its kind ever bred in this part of America. It comes from southdisturbing of exchange rates. The flood has compared in depth, extent or ern Africa and it is known as the Arostolochia Gigas Sturtevanti, which in plain English means Sturtevant's big

> The uncanny-looking blossom is hard to describe. It looks like a great many not very pretty things. Sir Samuel Vernon Steele, standing be-birthwort.

"It looks like a lobster!" Mr. Hughes, standing in front of it, "It looks like a parrot!"

It did look like both parrot and lobster. It also looked like a musician's bag, a green gooseliner and a requefort cheese. But it is a mighty rare and extraordinary-appearing blossom, mottled green in color and hanging by a slender rope from a net of leaves which its growth has spread under the glass roof of the greenhouse. It comes from southern Africa and was brought back here by the Stanley expedition. In Africa the flower sometimes grows to a length of seventy-two inches. The Arostolochia Gigas is akin to the plant known as the "Dutchman's Pipe."

Rigged with Baggage Carriers. Spectators at the world's fair were considerably amused during the week to see a family procession fitted out most elaborately with baggage carriers. A man, who was evidently the father of the family, led the procession carrying a baby. Over his right shoulder and under his left arm passed a broad leather strap. This supported an elaborate little leather harness, in which the baby swung as snugly as in a cradle, and requiring as little attention. Behind the man's back was swung by a smaller strap two cotton umbrellas. The next in the procession was a middle-aged woman who appeared totally unconscious of the weight of a large valise which was attached to her by an arrangement of two straps over her shoulders. Then came the daughter with a bundle of shawls strapped to her, and lastly a small boy supporting easily by a skate strap a large box of luncheon. The chances are that the man was a harnessmaker and a Yankee. To Illustrate Vegetable Foods. The British section of the liberal arts division at the world's fair has granted to the Vegetarian Federal union a large wall space to show pictures and diagrams illustrating the fruits, nuts, grains and other natural products advocated by the union for human food. Miss May Yates, English commissioner of the union, is desirous of securing the loan of any pictures or diagrams bearing on the subject that they may be placed in the collection. She may be addressed at the liberal arts division, British section, Columbian exposition.

An Anchor to Windward. "Going to the world's fair, of course?" "Yes-self-protection."

"How so?" "To stave off the fellows who will want to tell me all about it for the rest of my natural life."-Puck.
