In accordance with time honored custom the senate will probably adjourn over Wednesday, decoration day, although there are precedents for the senate remaining in session on this occasion. The debate on sugar may therefore begin in earnest Thursday morning. Senator Hill, in accordance with his determination to put his party on record on the subject of raw material, will, it is understood, at some stage of the proceedings move to put all sugars on the free list. The republicans will hold a caucus about the middle of the week for the purpose of mapping out some plan of campaign, on the sugar question. In the discussion of this proposition, of which the democrats have been cognizant for a long time, the querry naturally arises, is, can the republicans put up thirth-eight solid votes on this proposition? If they can it looks as if the bill might be defeated going upon the hypothesis that the Louisiana senators cannot and would not vote for the bill with a free sugar clause in it. OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The Real Needs of the Primary and Secondary Grades. We are trying to make our educational pyramid stand on its apex. The truth is that the best talent, the widest knowledge, the utmost skill, are needed in the primary school. The prime object of the school is to awaken the mind of the child. Many pupils go through the primaries, through the econdary schools, and possibly through college, without having their minds awakened, without having their enthusiasm aroused to the same eager interest in the school studies that they manifest in football, for instance. Once the mind is awakened and guided to explore the knowledge of the world, the most difficult task of the educator is accomplished. The pupil is inspired with a desire to know, and instructed how to find out things for himself. This inspiration and this guidance can only come from teachers who have knowledge and the skill of imparting it in a marked degree. The unawakened mind requires more external power to arouse it than to keep it going in well-marked grooves. This is SAN FRANCISCO, COL. It is of course impossible in eight years to impart any detailed knowledge of history; but the able teacher can in that time give a knowledge of its sweep and unity, of the relative significance and importance of certain periods, and possibly detailed knowledge of some portions of it, say the history of the pupil's own country. This is also true of the nature of civil government, and especially of the government under which the scholar lives. Nothing, perhaps, is more needed now in this republic than a knowledge of its fundamental character and laws, and it is one of the weaknesses of our educational system that it fails to give this to those who pass through our primary schools. We might go further and say that those who read our newspapers know that we are not exaggerating the ignorance in regard to our own government, or of other forms of government, or of fundamental social laws evolved in the experience of the race. In a few highly leveloped schools, both primary and econdary, these subjects are taken up with the most encouraging results; but how is it in the majority of the district schools of the country? And even if these subjects were taken up, where are the teachers to teach them? This The killing of Capt. SOUTHERN ACTIVITY. Increasing Interest in the Organization of

Enterprises

BALTIMORE, Md., May 25 .- The Manufacturers' Record, in its weekly review of the business conditions of the south, says: A general review of the business situation in the south shows increasing activity in the organization of industrial enterprises and some especially large operations in connection with timber property for development. Quite a number of short lines of railroad for reaching mineral and timber districts are projected in addition to those already under construction. In Baltimore a $1,000,000 trust company for handling southern securities has been fully organized and subscriptions are now being taken to two others which will probably soon be in opera-

Tragedy in South Carolina Culminating from a Quarrel on the Street. NEWBERRY, S. C., May 28 .- A negro man was shot and killed in the city Saturday night by a negro woman. She claims it was entirely accidental, but there are some who doubt this statement. It took place at the woman's house, and the facts are about as follows so far as developed:

The woman has been the mistress of the man for some time. It is said that they quarreled on the street in the afternoon, and those who live in the neighborhood say that there was quarreling at the house last night just before the shooting took place. The man the woman claims she knew nothing of Calvin and Thomas Coley, and i his being out there. She says she only had taken up the gun to move it and it went through the door panel and killed the man instantly, shooting him through the throat.

and to the surprise of those in the house, as they claim, they found the who admits having shot was arrested last night and is now in jail.
