A Strange Mexican City.

In the city of Catorce, in Mexico, the sound of carriage wheels never has been heard, said a traveler who crowd. The people close to the carrecently returned. The city is located in the mountains, eight miles from the railroad station. In order to reach it an extremely perilous ride up the mountains must be made. For that reason but few foreign people have ever visited the town. As a result, at Catorce are found the Mexican people in all their primitive purty. They know but little of the outside world. Its inhabitants are engaged in silver mining. Thousands his evident intention to do. Instantof dollars worth of bullion is secured ly cries of" Le president est assassine" yearly. Miles of tunnels extend in all directions, and thousands of dollars have been expended on the mines. The streets of Catorce run up and down the mountains often at an angle of 40 degrees, making the use of wheeled vehicles impossible. All transportation is done by the burros or by the Cargedores, who are able to carry great weights on from around their foreheads. With 300 pounds on their back, these men will move along in a trot. The only last the police succeeded in driving the plaza, which is very beautiful, as also was a physical impossibility. Story of the Assassination. Lyons, France, June 25, -To describe the intense excitement will be almost impossible. The president was visiting Lyons in connection with the International exhibition. Upon his arrival here he was tendered a reception at the prefecture, after which he visited the Knights of Pythias encampment in the exhibition. After spending some time at the exhibition he proceeded to the Palais de Commerce, where a banquet was given in his honor.

At 9:25 last night, President Carnot started for the theatre where a galla performance was to be given because of is presence in the city. Several caringes were in the procession, the first one being occupied by the president. President Carnot's carriage was driven slow ly along in front of the Palias de Commerce, and then turned into Rue de la Republique, still following the facade of the palais. When half way down the street, which was lined with enthusiastic crowds of people who were loudly cheering, a man rushed out of the crowd and sprung upon the step of the president's landau.

The Gleaming Knife. Just at this moment Carnot was waving his right hand saluting with his hat tion that was being given to him by the riage saw that the man standing on the step had a knife in his hand. By the glare of the electric lights they saw the bright blade gleaming in the air, as the
