LOCAL.

The ladies are giving a lawn party tonight for the benefit of the W. L. I. Come out.

It is reported that our townsman Toke Price was married, at Darien, Ga., yesterday.

Mr. Josephus Daniels will make the address at the closing of the Turlington Institute.

Cards are out for the marriage of Mr. John T. Williams and Miss Mat. Howard, on the 29th inst.

Many men of many minds—but all agree that the Rand-McNally Guide is invaluable to any one having business in connection with Railroads.

In notice of sale in case of Calvin Williams against R. W. Wynn which appears on first page sale of land has been postponed until first Monday in June.

Mr. J. T. Ellis, the clever and efficient book keeper of Messrs Howard & Co., has purchased the elegant residence of Mr. W. H. Tyson on Tarboro Street.

See E. R. Gays ad this week on silks, underwear, corsets, clothing, shoes &c. He has a very attractive stock and can please you in quality and stock.

The editor of the Tarboro Southerner was asked last week—

What has become of the progressive young men of our town?

Wonder if it would be amiss to ask "Did they ever have any?"

Hargrave's Drug Store will soon be a beautiful place of resort. When he completes the painting of interior of store, gets his awning finished and a cooling fan over his soda fountain, it will be the most attractive place in the city.

Every one that had any part in the Memorial exercises is to be congratulated upon its most pronounced success but especially can we congratulate Prof. Connor upon the way in which the children of the graded school performed their part.

The days are growing warmer and we see "mad dogs" reported quite frequently. Had we not better take some steps toward a reduction of the number of canines that roam our streets. Of course we all know that the wearing of a badge does not prevent an animal from going mad, but if the law requiring badges be strictly enforced, we do know that a great many dogs will be prevented from roaming the streets at will and thereby reduce the percentage of danger. We have town ordinances covering this point, let the proper authorities see that they are enforced.

We Thought So.

When The Advance kicks somebody generally gets a hump on them. Yet sirred! the boys are going to Raleigh on the 20th and in full force too.

Griffin-Ricks.

On Wednesday last at the residence of the brides father, Mr. Teackle Ricks, Mr. James Griffin and Miss Bertha Ricks were joined in the bonds of holy matrimony. Mr. Griffin is now stationed at Fortress Monroe, Va., where he will take his bride.

Free Fight.

There was a big fight Saturday night about eleven o'clock between a crowd of country duffers. The police were notified and hastened to the scene of action only to find that the participants had fled. Some of the parties are known and will be arrested as soon as they again make their appearance in town.

Reclaim the Court House Square.

There is certainly no prettier spot in the town than the Court House Square. The great oaks furnish an ample shade while the grass makes a beautiful green carpet, upon which the children of the town might play, and enjoy themselves, if it were not for the fact that crowds of vagrant dogs make a sporting place of it. Cannot something be done to reclaim this, the only spot in town, that can be made into a place of resort for the children? with a very little trouble the square could be converted into a beautiful park, on a small scale. Lets wake up and do something.

OUR NEW BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS.

The new Board of Commissioners, which was elected on Monday May 6th is made up of five of the leading business men of the town. Maj. J. L. Weaver, of the first ward, is a man well known in Wilson. He was for a number of years connected with Mr. S. P. Clark in the hardware business. He retired from this business with a view of entering business in the western part of the State but, after making a minute investigation, he decided that the State afforded no better place in which to live than Wilson. Maj. Weaver was elected without opposition, Mr. Bullock the present incumbent, having positively refused to allow his name to go before the people. Mr. Bullock wished to retire last year but was persuaded to hold over, as it was during his term that the Electric Lights and Water Works had been put in, he having been chairman of a number of important committees, was in touch with the work and could give the then incoming board much valuable assistance.

The second ward is represented by Mr. P. B. Deans (hold over.) Mr. Deans was for a number of years a commercial tourist, from which life he retired four years ago, since that time he has been engaged in the brokerage business here. He is a brother of Mr. A. B. Deans who for so many years served the County in the capacity of Clerk of the Superior Court.

The third ward has as its representative one of the "boy politicians," Mr. Ernest Deans. Mr. Deans is now serving his second term; when first elected it was somewhat of an experiment, as it was claimed that he was "too young," but so well did he fulfill the duties assigned him that he was unanimously re-elected. Mr. Deans, though "young," has had the best practical training, and carries a clear head and cool judgment into the discussion of all matters that come before the board.

In the fourth ward we have Mr. George Hackney. Mr. Hackney is a member of the firm of Hackney Bros., who own one of the largest and best equipped carriage factories in the South. Their plant is an extensive one and adds much to the air of prosperity that pervades Wilson. Mr. Hackney's connection with the board is looked upon by the citizens of the town as a safeguard against any immature action.

In the glorious fifth we bring again before the people Mr. John T. Ellis. Mr. Ellis has served in the same capacity before, and with credit to himself and the town. He, too, is a practical business man and perfectly at home in discussions of finance. He succeeded Mr. W. F. Woodard, who only accepted the position a year ago to carry out a particular issue, and as that matter was no longer before the people, he retired.

Taken as a whole we think that Wilson is in safe hands, and that we may rest assured that the affairs of the town will be attended to in the best possible way.

Base Ball Association.

A base ball association was formed last night at a meeting. Mr. W. W. Roberts presided and Mr. J. W. Graham was secretary. A committee was appointed to draw up by-laws for the association, and the following officers were elected: W. W. Roberts, business manager and treasurer; DuBrutz Cutlar, assistant manager; J. W. Graham, secretary. It is the purpose of the association to get up a league throughout the State and have regular games with visiting clubs.—Wilmington Review.

Wilson has been resting two years now. Can't we muster enough energy to get in the base ball swim?

An Old Man Murdered.

On Thursday evening last the body of Redmond Joyner, who occupied a small house on the farm of Mr. W. W. Farmer, in Taylors township, was found lying upon the floor of his dwelling. Upon investigation it was found that he had received an ugly wound in the chest, from which he probably died. He had been dead two or three days before his body was discovered. No clues as to the perpetrators of the crime have as yet been found.

A Correction.

It is due our town commissioner that we make a correction in regard to the laying of the side walk in front of the Court House. We were informed from head quarters that the brick, necessary to lay the walks, were ready and that Mr. Lucas only await the order for their delivery. It now comes out that the town officers are not to blame for the delay, as they have been trying to get the brick for four weeks.

Judgment.

This court doth hereby adjudge both parties guilty, of grave misconduct, in that they did use umbrellas for a purpose other than that for which they were constructed and that each of the parties to the aforesaid undue use of an umbrella be required to forthwith drop his mite into the general coffer of the town and further more make himself presentable by investing in a new hat.

THE SOLDIER BOYS.

A Well Drilled and Finely Equipped Body of Men Ably Commanded.

In the absence of Captain Washington, Lt. Winstead was in charge of our company at the parade Friday. The boys certainly made a creditable appearance, not only as regards the number in line, but also from the manner in which they comported themselves.

Lt. Winstead is an ideal officer, he has the knack of being on perfectly friendly terms with his men, and at same has the happy faculty of making them feel that aside from his personality, he is an officer and while acting in this capacity, it is their duty to obey his slightest nod. This the boys cheerfully do, as was clearly demonstrated on Friday last. Everybody knows how warm it was, and that a military coat and other equipments are not calculated to lessen the effect of the weather, yet after the long march from the cemetery, the boys without a murmur, or even a discontented look, went through a long dress parade, while we are on this subject we cannot refrain from complimenting the men upon their drilling, their movements were all prompt, accurate and showed that they not only knew what to do but that they furthermore took a pride in doing it well. Since the organization of the company, it has stood high in the state guard, but never has it been better drilled than at present.

University Centennial.

The University Centennial will be celebrated at Chapel Hill Wednesday, June 5, 1895.

At half past ten o'clock the procession will form in front of the South Building, march past the Caldwell Monument and enter Memorial Hall, where the programme will be carried out.

At half past two the Alumni will gather by classes in the Gymnasium, where will be served the Alumni Banquet. Toasts both formal and informal will be read and responded to.

At 8 p. m., in Memorial Hall, addresses will be delivered as follows:

1. The University During the War, Henry Adolphus London.
2. The University Alumni in the War, Stephen Beauregard Weeks, Ph. D.

At the close of the addresses there will be a reunion of the Alumni by classes, each class marching on the platform in a body in order of time. A few minutes will be allowed to such classes as desire to carry out special programmes.

Arrangements are making at Chapel Hill to furnish ample accommodations for all who may come. Special rates will be granted on all railroads.

The Grand Commandery Met in Durham Tuesday.

The Grand Commandery Knights Templar, of North Carolina, convened in Durham Tuesday night.

The Grand Commandery, under the escort of the Durham Commandery No. 3, marched to the court-house at 8 o'clock, where a speech of welcome was delivered by Judge Robert W. Winston and responded to by the Grand Commander A. H. Cobb, of Asheville. Mr. J. H. Southgate then welcomed the visitors in the name of the Masons of Durham, and his speech was responded to by Dr. H. J. Clark, of Hamilton, Grand High Priest of North Carolina.

After these exercises the Templars marched to Masonic Hall where the Grand Commandery proceeded to business.

This (Thursday) morning the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of North Carolina open and will probably adjourn Friday morning. Then the Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters of North Carolina will hold its session.

Tonight a banquet will be given complimentary to the visiting delegates to which invitations will be issued and preparation made for about one hundred guests.

Wilson is represented by Grand Master F. M. Moye, High Priest, J. D. Bullock, and W. H. Applewhite.

Go! Yes, We all are going!

Go to the Court House green on next Thursday night to get ice cream and cake at a lawn party given by the ladies, to the Wilson Light Infantry. The boys must have an outing this summer, and this is one way you can help. You will be expected, and all of your friends. Show by attending that you appreciate the efforts of the boys to exist despite adverse legislation. Three cheers and a tiger for the W. L. I.

Agreeably Surprised.

"I had a very severe cold on my lungs that caused much soreness and gave me constant uneasiness in regard to the result," says Mr. T. E. Smith, of Billerica, Mass. "A local druggist called my attention to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and on his recommendation I gave the remedy a careful trial. The result surprised me; I recovered entirely in three days." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by E. M. Nadal, Druggist.

Doctors Moore, Ruffin, Herring, and Albert Anderson, were in attendance upon the Medical convention at Goldsboro this week.

The Rev. L. A. McLaurin, of South Carolina, will hold services at the Presbyterian church Sunday next, morning and night.

Mrs. J. R. Allen is at home again having spent a most delightful six weeks in Richmond, Va. and other places with friends and relatives.

Dr. A. Johnson Crowell, a prominent young physician of China Grove, N. C. was in town this week on a visit to his kinsman Sheriff J. W. Crowell.

Mrs. M. C. Daniels formerly of Wilson was in the city this week. Mrs. Daniels has just returned from a visit to her son Mr. C. C. Daniels, who is now living in the Indian Territory.

We regret to learn that our good friend Mr. W. H. Tyson will leave for Rocky Mount at an early date, where he will locate permanently for the purpose of embarking in the mercantile business.

He Deserved the People.

At Atlantic, Iowa, on May 7. C. M. Ailor, alias "Crip," Ailor, was convicted of deceiving the people by selling a worthless compound, which he represented to be Hood's Sarsaparilla and was sentenced by Judge Macy to one year at hard labor in the Iowa State Penitentiary. Ailor's methods were those of a traveling fakir. He has been traveling through Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa, making stands of a day or more in each town, and representing himself as an agent under salary from C. I. Hood & Co., and selling his concoction at one dollar or fifty cents per bottle, giving with each sale various other worthless articles. Citizens of Griswold, Iowa, became suspicious and ascertaining from a druggist that Ailor's compound was not Hood's Sarsaparilla, but merely colored water, had him arrested. Three indictments were found against him, the jury convicted him after only thirty minutes deliberation, and he was sentenced as above. This incident suggests the wisdom of purchasing medicines of reputable dealers whom you know. Hood's Sarsaparilla is never sold by peddlers and such offering it should be at once reported to the authorities, or to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.—Lowell Morning Citizen.

The Commandery Party.

The ladies of the Baptist Church wish to announce that their party will be given on Friday evening, May 24th. One of the Commanders to be asked is, why has the party been postponed so long? We have only been given three answers, which are, on account of the Presbyterian Opera party, on account of the W. L. I. lawn party, on account of the Graded School Commencement Exercises.

Of course there a dozen more which you are at liberty to guess.

Worlds Columbian Exposition

Tax Lists.

The annual listing of the county and town tax will be taken at the Court House commencing June 1st. Mr. A. J. Simms has been appointed by the county and Mr. Ino. R. Moore by the town to take the lists. One of these gentlemen will be found in the grand jury room at all times, to take your tax. Remember that should you fail to return your taxes a fine will be imposed.

OUR MEMORIAL DAY.

FITTINGLY OBSERVED BY OUR PATRIOTIC PEOPLE.

General Battle's Address a Worthy Tribute to the Soldiers of the Lost Cause.

Never has the day been so appropriately commemorated. The crowds of children added not a little to the occasion. The speaker of the day, General Cullen A. Battle, arrived at 2 o'clock and was met at the depot by Mr. George W. Blount, Col. John F. Bruton and Capt. Sam Hodges, with a battalion of "Sons of Veterans" on horseback, who escorted him to the hotel. As 4 o'clock approached the crowds began to gather, horse, foot, and dragoon. The school children were collected on the court house green, with many flowing Confederate banners, where they were shortly joined by the Wilson Light Infantry and the Cornet band. At 4 o'clock the line of march was taken up. Capt. Sam Hodges in charge of the sons of veterans (mounted), then followed the band at the head of the military, who in their turn were followed by the veterans in command of Maj. E. M. Nadal; then came the speaker at the head of a long line of carriages. The school children in charge of their respective teachers occupied the sidewalks. On reaching the school grounds the crowd took up their position in front of the veranda, upon which the speaker was seated. The services were opened by a prayer by the Rev. C. J. Wingate, after which the speaker was introduced in a few well chosen words by Colonel John F. Bruton.

General Battle's address was delivered with much feeling and great emphasis. Many sentences were pronounced with a tenderness that moved the hearts of those who listened to his subdued tones.

His main topic was a brief narrative of the battle of Chancellorsville, beginning on the 1st and ending on the 4th of May, 1863. He chose this theme because it was in this battle that the troops from North Carolina were especially distinguished for gallant daring. In his introductory remarks he reminded the members of the Wilson Light Infantry that they bore the name of a company from which there had been no deserter.

Referring to the frequent phrase, "The New South," he said: "The old spirit of honor, integrity, courageous manliness had passed away, then, indeed, was it a New South," and he found himself a stranger in a strange land. "But if it is still the land of Washington and Lee, of Jefferson and Jackson, then it is still 'My own, my native land!'"

In our present condition some things are for the worse, some for the better. The worse are directly due to our overthrow; the better are the outcome of the noble qualities, the high intelligence, the indomitable spirit of a people that has no superior in any part of the broad world.

The battle of Chancellorsville, attempted to dislodge General Lee from his strong position at Fredericksburg. To do this, he detached, General Sedgwick with over 20,000 men to make a feint against General Lee, while he himself moved the main body of his army to a position nine miles to the left and rear of the Southern forces. The plan was well laid and executed with faultless precision. So confident was he of success, that he said the night before battle, when his army had occupied their appointed position, "The Confederate army is now the legitimate property of the Army of the Potomac."

On the night of 1st of May, General Lee sent for General Jackson, and at their midnight interview asked, "General, how shall we get at those people?" Jackson replied "It is for you to command, sir."—General Lee then directed him to move his corps to Hooker's right and attack him in flank. General Jackson's reply was my troops will move at 4 o'clock in the morning." This was the last meeting of the two great Southern captains.

Jackson's assault was made at 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the next day—the nature of the woods and character of the region preventing an earlier attack. The Federal right wing was taken by complete surprise—the men having stacked their arms, were just then preparing their supper. They had no chance to form a resisting line, but were driven in wild panic for several miles, and only ceased to flee when they became huddled together in a confused mass, with the rest of the Federal forces—they could not move further.

That night General Jackson rode out of his lines to determine by personal inspection the position and condition of the enemy. As he was returning he was fired on and wounded by his own men, they having received orders to fire upon anything approaching from their front. He was wounded in three places—twice in the left arm, which was afterwards amputated. As he was being borne away General Pender, who had recognized him, said, "General, it is impossible for me to hold my position." The wounded hero replied, "General Pender, you must hold your position; sir; you must hold your position." "And hope for a season bid the world farewell, And Freedom shrieked as Jackson fell."

This day, the 10th of May, said General Battle, is the anniversary of Stonewall Jackson's death. Is it not the only day that we of the South could have selected to be forever sacred to the memory of the heroic dead? When Jackson heard of Lee's complete success in the great battle, he sent him a letter congratulating him on his victory. General Lee, with the modesty of the truly great, replied to the messenger who brought the note, "Tell him the victory is his—the honor is his."

General Battle here uttered a sentiment that must be approved of all, "Much as I admire the military genius of Lee, which secured the triumph, far more must I admire the generosity which refused the glory."

That which followed must be briefly told. Sedgwick with more than 20,000 men moved against the Confederate lines at Marye's Heights, held by Early with 6,000. He pushed his way over their resistance and was marching to assail Lee from the right. The Confederate commander had prepared to move against Hooker and drive him into the river—but was obliged to change his plan on learning of this advance upon his flank. Taking with him as many as could be spared from the main force in front of Hooker he placed himself across Sedgwick's path.

The Northern leader, flushed with victory, refused to retreat before this assault. It was not until the night of the next day that he yielded to the inevitable and hastened to escape destruction by moving rapidly across the Rappahannock, slipping between Early and Lee. He could not move back on the road over which he had passed from Fredericksburg. General Early had occupied his old position on Marye's Heights and effectually barred all egress from that side. Having put Sedgwick where he would be no longer harmful, General Lee returned to deal the final blow to Hooker. Tuesday was spent in arranging his troops for the attack. When all was ready on the morning of the 5th the scouts reported the Federal works unoccupied. Hooker had retreated during the previous night. Thus ended the great advance.

With 41,000 men Lee had defeated and put to flight an army of 120,000 commanded by a brave, experienced and really able commander. The courage of the private soldier, guided by the genius of the leader, had added one more to the many martial glories of the South.

General Battle said that the power that really won a battle was always the unflinching bravery of the men in the ranks. "It is the courage of the private soldier that put the victorious wreath upon his general's brow. The Tenth Legion made Caesar invincible; the Old Guard made Napoleon Dictator of Europe. The soldiers of Lee and Jackson have made them immortal."

General Battle did not fail to do honor to the women of the South. He told how that his own mother, when she heard that he was going to the front, called him to her side and, placing her hand upon his head, uttered a prayer that God would make him a good soldier. "With that helmet on my brow, I could not fail to do my duty, even in the hour of greatest peril."

After the oration, the Rev. T. N. Ivey offered up a prayer, after which the march was taken up to the monument where, some appropriate hymns were sung and the mound profusely strewn with flowers, a military salute fired, and the day was done.
