Mobile, Ala., Dec. 15 .- Yesterday the dead body of Mrs. Margaret Hogan was found in her store on Congress street. Her hands were tied behind her back and a piece of braid was wrapped tightly around her throat. An investigation showed the place had been robbed of money and some goods. The robbers probably had forced the woman, who was 65 years of age, to give up her small hoard, which she kept in her room back of the store. They then strangled her with the braid, but finding her slow in dying brained her with some blunt instrument. Her brains had cozed out upon the floor. There is a c'ew. entered a launch. His majesty received an ovation from the officers, the public and the crew of the Hohenzoilern, the imperial yacht, which is wintering near the spot.

The Deutschland, which was anchored opposite the castle, hoisted the imperial standard as his majesty stepped on board, and then hoisted the war flag. The other warships hoisted ensigns to their tops, in addition to the flags with which they were already dressed.

Then the Deutschland slowly got under way, with the emperor, Prince Henry and the other princes on her bridge. As she passed the other vessels hurrahs were exchanged, the crews manned yards and guns thundered forth salutes until the Deutschland disappeared in clouds of powder smoke. Princess Henry of Prussia and her children witnessed the departure from the windows of the castle.

The German cruiser Gefion arrived at Rendsburg at noon, and the Deutschland came in sight at 4 o'clock. The garrison, with band and colors, lined ing stage. Night was falling, and suddenly the canal was lit up with the lurid glare of red magnesium torches, amid which the emperor was seen leaving the Deutschland. He embarked in a pinnace and proceeded to the landing stage. His majesty, hastily greeting the authorities, took a position beside the canal swing bridge. Deutschland passed through, with Prince Henry standing on the bridge, illuminated by the red fire of the torches, the bearers of which lined the side of the swing bridge. The emperor shortly afterwards took the train for Friedrichsruhe.
