FROM WELDON.

WELDOK, N. C., July 25th, 1878 MESSES. EDITORS-When nature has been bountiful in its gifts to one of our fellow. men, and that man fails to exercise those gifts, to apply those endowments to the nefit of his tellow-man and to the advancement of himself, his friends and so ciety write him down as unworthy of both aid and sympathy. Does not this observation held good as to communities as well as to individuals? Here we have a town rossessing in an eminent degree all the natural advantages which are infinitely superior to many of those of her states towns now numbering thou-ands of inhabitants, and surpassed in several respects by no place in the entire South. Do we not as citizens fail in our duty to ourselves and to the community in not utilizing to the utmost of our energies and resources those provisions of nature which have been so richly bestowed upon Weldon? Have we not as fine water power as can be de sired 7 Lowell Mass, can claim no greater Within a mile up and down the Rosnoke river, at Weldon, there is water power sufficient to turn thousands of spindles, and give employment to hundreds of hands. And is this not the most natural and available location for these cotton factorie-? Here the raw material is grown in ample abundance to to keep the manufacturers at constant work. Before the war when the institution of slavery existed, which by the way, was a curse to the real interests of Virginia and North Carolina; viz the development of their mineral resources and the utilization of their water power, while our people in their lugurjance and case were satisfied to have their farms cultivated and draw their wealth from mother earth, it was well enough perhaps to leage to our northern brethren the more energetic task of manufacturing our produ tions for our u-e. But now great palitical and social changes have taken place, which if we would not remain behind in this truly progre-sive age, neces-itates a corresponding change to our habits and employment. Our great water power and minerals, these great store houses of weslih must be unbarred. We must have our cotton, our tren and our timber manufacturn in our midst. It is a great falacy that our raw material should bear the tax of transportation to northern factories and back to the consumers when in the heart of the finest producing section of North Carolina and Yirginia there is water power most abundantly provided by the fails the Roanoke and other rivers.
