TRUST ME DARLING I'LL BE TRUE.

'Twas the sweetest of all moments, Greatest joy my heart e'er knew, When my own dear sweetheart whispered, "Trust me, darling, I'll be true."

TOO LATE.

Clyde involuntarily reined in his horses that he might have a better look at the young girl who had just passed him.

A WORK OF LOVE.

A century since, in the north of Europe, stood an old cathedral, upon one of the arches of which was a sculptured face of wondrous beauty.

THE PLEASURE OF MEMORY.

One day riding a mule and had a little negro boy sitting behind him.

TOO GOOD A TALKER.

A small lawn on Seneca street. Time—noon. Personages—A parrot sunning itself on a perch beside its open cage-door, and a strange dog wandering upon the lawn.

THE LAME-BACKED BOY.

A boy went into a store the other morning, limping, and seemed to be broke up generally.

ONE OF THOSE AWFUL CHILDREN.

One day I sat in a car seat on the Sanguis branch of the eastern road behind a pale, care-worn lady who was taking a little boy from Boston to Malden.

WIPE MY TEARS.

She was nothing but a baby, a little, quaint little-fashioned thing, with tumbled locks of sunny hair and deep, soulful blue eyes.

THE MATCHLESS LIAR OF CHICAGO.

"You do not doubt me, Myrtle?" "Never!" exclaimed the girl, putting on her invisible net as she spoke and placing her hand-dollie bottle where she said she saw to see it in the morning.

PERSONALITIES IN CONVERSATION.

Keep clear of personalities in general conversation. Talk of things, objects, thoughts. The smallest minds occupy themselves with persons.
