My Poor Back!

That's the common exclamation of those suffering with rheumatism or kidney troubles. In either disease Paine's Celery Compound will surely effect a cure, and there will no longer be any cause to complain of "poor backs." Hundreds of testimonials like the following confirm our claims for that grand old remedy, Paine's Celery Compound:

"Two weeks ago I could not sleep more than an hour at a time any night, was constipated and kidneys did not act, and had a good deal of pain in the back. Since I took Paine's Celery Compound the pain has left my back, and I can sleep like a child." Zenas Sanders, West Windsor, Vermont.

"Having been troubled with rheumatism for five years, I was almost unable to get around, and was very often confined to my bed for weeks at a time. I have used nearly all medicines in general use, besides outside advices, but to no advantage. Having seen Paine's Celery Compound advertised, I gave it a trial. I have used only one bottle and am perfectly cured. I can now jump around and feel lively as a boy." Frank Cardi, Eureka, Nevada.

ELIZABETH AKERS ALLEN.

If I could know that after all
These heavy hands have reared to thrall,
We whom in life the fates divide
Should sweetly slumber side by side—
That one green spray would drop its dew
softly alike above us two,
All would be well, for I should be
At last, dear loving heart, with thee!

How sweet to know this dust of ours,
Mingling, will feed the self same flowers—
The scent of leaves, the song bird's tune,
At once across our rest be blown,
One breath of sun, one sheet of rain
Make green the earth above us twain!
Ah, sweet and strange, for I should be,
At last, dear tender heart with thee!

But half the earth may intervene
Thy place of rest and mine between—
And leagues of land and wastes of waves
May stretch and toss between our graves.
Thy bed with summer light be warm,
While snow-drifts heap, in wind and storm,
My pillow, where one thorn will be,
Beloved, that I am not with thee.

But if there be a blissful sphere
Where homesick souls, divided here,
And wandering wide in restless quest,
Shall find their longed for heaven of rest,
If in that blight, happier bourn
We greet the joys we mourn'd on earth,
All will be well, for I shall be,
At last, dear loving heart, with thee!

RESOURCES OF ALASKA.

The governor of Alaska, A. P. Swineford in his annual report to the Secretary of the Interior, states that the total population is 40,850, and of this number there are 5,836 whites, 2,000 Creoles and 2,500 Aleuts. In regard to the settlement of public lands the governor states that all settlers in Alaska upon the public lands are mere squatters who are awaiting legislation from Congress which will enable them to secure titles. All salmon factories in the territory, seventeen in number, are located on public lands. The only obstacle in the way of actualizing, in the opinion of the governor, is that the lands are not available for settlement. The stamp mill on Douglas Island, which the report states is the largest in the world, has an estimated output of $150,000 in gold per month. Other gold mines are being developed on the same island, and the report notes the sale of four claims for $1,500,000. Promising silver discoveries have also been made. As to the Alaskan coal mines the governor thinks that there is enough coal in the territory to supply the whole of the United States for centuries. There are fourteen public schools in Alaska which last year were placed under the charge of the territorial board. In addition to the public schools there are eight Protestant, two Catholic and seventeen Greco-Russian religious schools, besides the two schools supported by the Alaska Commercial company and the Sitka Industrial Training school. The governor reiterates the charges made in the last annual report relative to the violation of law as the ill treatment of the natives by the agents of the Alaska Commercial company. He credits the company with adhering faithfully to its contract with the government as to the number of seals to be killed on the seal islands and the treatment of the natives there, but elsewhere in the territory, he says, where the company's rule is supreme "the people are little better than serfs of that powerful company."

INDIAN TIGER LORE.

Indian folk lore cherishes many strange traditions about the tiger. Some of these are collected in a paper read lately before the Bombay Historical Society. Natives believe, among other things, that the ghost of a man killed by a tiger rides on the beast's head to warn him of danger and point the way to fresh victims. Eating tiger's flesh gives one courage, but unless the whiskers are first singed off the tiger's spirit will haunt you and what is worse you run the risk of being turned into a tiger in the next world. God allows a tiger one rupee a day for his food, so that if a tiger kill a bullock worth five rupees he will not kill again for five days. To this may be added a true tale of a tiger. An unfortunate oilman was killed by one. The police held an enquiry into the matter and submitted the following artless report: "Pandu died of the tiger eating him; there was no other cause of death. Nothing was left of Pandu save some fingers, which, probably, belonged either to the right or left hand."

PRETTY CREOLE GIRLS.

THERE ARE MANY PERFECT BLONDES AMONG THEM.

We are not hide-bound nor narrow-minded in our admiration for female beauty, declares the New Orleans Picayune. The fair and the dark, the blondes and brunettes all have their special charms and admirable points. Besides the beauty of face and color, there is also a spiritual and intellectual beauty which is quite as potent as the other. In the presence of a pure and lovely soul or a sparkling intellect and a delightful disposition, one may be so completely enchanted as to be utterly blind to material things. But whatever may be our liberality in matters of love and admiration for the beautiful sex, and we recognize their claims without regard to ethnological or geographical limits, we are bound to reserve a special homage for our own Southern women, and we are moved to this by the following tribute to Louisiana beauty. It was contributed to the Boyce (Rapides Parish) Headlight by one who signs herself a "Cane River Girl." This is her credo:

"Many of our Northern friends picture all creoles with dark, swarthy skins, hair black as the raven's wing, and eyes of ebon darkness. Now, this is altogether an erroneous fancy. Why, some of the girls have lily white complexions, golden locks, and eyes of heaven's own blue! In the little village where I live there are four sisters, all of the purest blonde type, and it would be difficult to find anywhere in the world fairer, sweeter, lovelier maidens than they. Whenever I read of the dark-skinned creole, a smile crosses my face, and I wish the reader's eyes could rest upon my rosebud garden of girls.

"As I write these lines a dainty creole maiden enters my presence. She has come, like a gleam of sunshine athwart a murky sky, to chase away the clouds which sometimes surround me, and truly she is a vision to gaze upon revealing the glint of gold in her wavy brown hair, which ripples above a broad fair brow. Her pearly cheeks are slightly tinged by the sun's kisses, and her eyes, of 'passionless peaceful blue,' are gazing tenderly upon me, utterly unconscious of her own picturesque loveliness. The mind of this gentle girl is as pure and bright as her face. Altogether she is one of earth's flowers.

"I have lived among the creoles nearly all my life, but I am not one of them. I am what they call 'an American.' Why that term should not be applied to them is a mystery which I cannot solve. I have a penchant for creole girls. They are usually dainty and refined, sensitive and sympathetic, light hearted and sunny tempered. Then the marks of deference they pay to old age is truly something to be admired, and might well be imitated by many of my American sisters. A creole girl rarely ever sullies her lips with that slang which is so generally used nowadays. She is usually reared in seclusion, and her days glide by peacefully and tranquilly. This tranquility is seldom disturbed by a storm cloud. She is content to remain at home, where there is always a wide field of action, and do her duty in that state of life unto which it shall please God to call her."

"There are many other fine characteristics which the creole girl possesses, and I regret that I have not time to mention them. I have had to steal the moments to write even these few lines. But before closing this article I must admit that the majority of creoles are dark; there are many not brown maids us, but some of them are fair, very fair."

GOT HIM ANOTHER WIFE.

Charlotte Chronicle.

A colored man named Joe Carter walked into Esquire Maxwell's office yesterday, and taking a seat in a chair, bowed his head in his hands. The salt water that trickled down from his eyes formed a pool on the floor of the magistrate's office, and it was some time before Joe could explain the cause of his grief. Then he said that he had lost his wife.

"When did she die?" asked Mr. Maxwell.

"Oh, she ain't dead," sobbed Joe, "she run away from me because I voted the Democratic ticket. The magistrate tried to soothe him by promising to get him another wife and marry him free of all fees, but Joe was inconsolable, as he said that particular wife was the best one he ever had. Just then the honest, whole-souled Jim McDonald stepped in, and when the matter was explained to him, he slapped the disconsolate Joe on the shoulder and told him to cheer up, offering to take him out to the country and give him his choice of three colored women, either one of whom he guaranteed to make a good wife. These kind offers touched Joe's heart, and he accepted Mr. McDonald's proposition.

The first unmarried colored woman sent out by the American Board of Foreign Missions is about to start for Southeastern Africa. She is a graduate of Fisk University.

ABOUT WOMEN.

A German officer cannot marry an American woman without Bismarck's consent.

Women do the work of ushering people to their places in most of the theatres in Paris.

Twenty-three Montana mail routes are to be run for four years by a woman, Mrs. Ira McLane.

Winifred Fralick, a school mistress in Amador county, Cal., recently killed eight quail at one shot.

At the "Beauty Show" recently held at Spa, Germany, eleven different countries were represented.

A Kentucky girl measures 7 feet 3 inches around the waist, 3 feet 6 inches around the arm and weighs 672 pounds.

The young women of Anthony, Kan., spend so much of their time in the saddle that it is said the horses at that place are becoming lop-sided.

The housekeeper of Warwick castle in England, who died recently, left a fortune of $350,000, all of which had come to her in the shape of fees from visitors.

Women who possess enjoyment to consult, are spending their leisure hours in lead work, an old time amateur industry which is being revived quite commonly.

It is an undeniable fact that many of our American women are better informed than their husbands and have infinitely more discretion, says The Working Woman.

COURTESY IN BUSINESS.

The other day a gentleman entered one of the largest stores in Cincinnati in pursuit of an article the price of which he knew would scarcely exceed the cost of postage on an ounce letter. The fact of its insignificance and that it was merely called for made it hard to find. One clerk after another was enlisted in the search, till finally they were joined by the proprietor before success crowned their efforts. Somewhat mortified at the amount of trouble he had caused, the customer began to apologize, when he was silenced by the proprietor with, "My friend, it was no trouble, it was business. We have experienced fully as much pleasure in finding that for you as you have in receiving it. If you insist upon calling this trouble, please remember that we like to be troubled."

That merchant made an investment by his courtesy. He laid up treasure where moth nor rust do not corrupt, and it wasn't laid up in heaven, either. He secured the patronage of a man, though he did not know it, who sometimes makes purchases that are worth the while. Without intending it he cast some bread upon the waters.

"I AM A FOOL."

UNCLE STEVE HOLDS A MEETING AND ADOPTS A RESOLUTION.

Uncle Steve had sold his two bales of cotton and seated himself to figure out profits on a piece of white pine board. After finishing he fixed his eye on the ground with a vacant stare and for several minutes seemed absorbed in serious thought. Grasping his pencil he penned the following on the board:

"Whereas, I raise cotton and sell it at a price that does not pay the cost of its production, and buy from year to year my bread, meat, hay, guano, wagon, harness, horse, plows, and all my clothes for myself and family, and whereas, I buy all this on a credit and give a mortgage to secure the payment for the same, thereby giving from thirty to one hundred per cent profit to enrich others, and whereas, I see no praise of mind and my family of children are growing up in ignorance, and my wife is broken down in health and in spirit; and whereas, I am growing poorer and poorer every day of my life, therefore be it

Resolved, That I am a fool.

"ONLY."

Only a stray sunbeam? Yet it cheered a wretched abode—gladdened a stricken heart.

Only a gentle breeze? it fanned aching brows, cheered many hearts by its gentle touch.

Only a frown? But it left a sad void in the child's heart—quivering lip and tearful eye.

Only a smile? But how it cheered the broken heart, engendered hope, and cast a halo of light around the sick-bed.

Only a word of encouragement, a single word? It gave the drooping spirit new life, and led to victory.

TOLD BY YOUR TEETH.

Projecting teeth show rapacity.

Rather long teeth, if evenly set in the head, denote long life.

Short, small teeth are said to denote weakness and shrewdness.

The lower teeth projecting and closing over the upper range are indicative of a harsh nature.

When the upper gum shows above the teeth directly the lips are opened, it is a sign of a cold phlegmatic nature.

Small, retreating teeth, which are rarely seen unless in laughter, show weakness and want of physical and moral courage.

The more human teeth in shape and position approach to those of the carnivorous animals the more placid is the character.

The more the teeth, in point of size, shape and arrangement, approach to those of the carnivorous animals the more excitable are the animal instincts in the person.

White, regular and evenly set teeth, which are seen as soon as the mouth is opened, but which are entirely exposed—that is, which do not at any time show the gums—are a sign of good and honest natures.

DIVISION OF FARM WORK.

On a farm, as everywhere else, work should be properly divided, so that the weight of the burden should not be borne by any one person. There must be some deviation from the plan after it is made, but the endeavor should be to leave no work for anybody and all work for somebody. It seems to be everywhere the case that some will perform no labor unless forced to do so, while others are always looking for something to do and performing the tasks of others. In this way important matters are neglected—some should-be workers are permitted to become shirks, and others are made drudges. The several tasks to be done should be daily assigned by the father and mother with most perfect justice, avoiding giving the disagreeable tasks invariably to the child that has no choice but obedience and who shrinks in his heart. "When I am a man I'll get out of all this; I will go as far from a farm as possible." On the other hand as carefully refuse to perform all disagreeable duties personally to save the child. It is equally necessary to be just in assigning work to hired help. It should be generally understood that the agreeable and disagreeable tasks are each to be justly shared and the moment that is done, trouble is at an end. Each feels that it is fair that he should perform his share of those duties that he dislikes doing, and each knows that tasks agreeable to him are equally so to others, and gladly divides his pleasures. If there is to be anything like an uneven division, let the shirks fare the worst. Always make certain that it is not a natural taste for the work that cannot be overcome, or an avoiding of labor, because of real lack of health and strength. Nowhere else is there greater need of the "pull all together" principle than on the farm. Success is secured only when mutual interest and responsibility are felt, and each takes his share of the work, performing it cheerfully.

LADIES will find relief from their exclusiveness, Swimming in the Head, Colic, Sour Stomach, Headache, Kidney troubles, etc., by taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator after dinner or supper so as to move the bowels once a day. Mothers will have better health and the babies will grow more robust by using the Regulator. If an infant shows signs of Colic, nothing like a few drops in water for relief.
