POPPING THE QUESTION.

How sweet thou art, Oh little heart,
I cannot tell to thee;
But heart, Oh heart, we'll never part
If thou wilt gang wi' me.

If I could tell right true and well
How much I love thee, Sweet—
Could measure out and fling about
The tune my heart doth beat—

Could make thee feel that when I kneel
And kiss thy dear wee hand
I'm happier far than any king
That rules in any land—

Would'st thou then say that yearned for
"Yea"
In accents sweet and low?
Oh, say it now, my darling, "yea,"—
Say "yea" before I go!

HER LOVER A FELON.

A TERRIBLE ORDEAL FOR A LOVING AND EXPECTANT GIRL.

"I witnessed a most touching and dramatic incident the other day," says M. J. Madden, of Chicago. "It was at the Union depot. Among the passengers leaving the train just in from the south was a distinguished-looking old gentleman, and clinging to his arm was one of the most beautiful girls I ever saw in my life.

"To take the Joliet train there came down the stone steps a burly officer in citizens clothes, and by his side was the once society favorite, George Lipe, convicted of forging his mother's name to valuable documents, who, in spite of all the influence brought to bear, must serve his term in the penitentiary.

"A steel band was about the prisoner's wrist, attached to another about the officer's wrist. The two couples I have described met directly in front of the big gates.

"Oh, papa," exclaimed the girl, as her face lighted up with pleasure, "here is George come to meet us after our long journey."

"She rushed forward to meet the convict and impetuously grabbed both his hands. The shock the sight of the manacles produced was positively frightful. Her great eyes opened, her face blanched, she tried to speak but could not, and then she fell fainting into the arms of her father, who bore her to a carriage.

"The convict, during this ordeal, was a pitiable-looking object. He uttered no word, but as he passed through the gate I saw his lower lip covered with blood. He had bitten through it.

"The girl, I learned, was the felon's fiancee, who had been in Mexico all winter."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
