a. Do not draw a check or send it to a person out of the city, expecting to make it good before it can possibly get back. Sometimes telegraphic advise is asked about such cheeks.

4. Do not exchange checks with anybody. This is soon discovered by your bank; it does your friend no good and discredits you.

a. Do not give your check to a friend with the condition that he is not to use it until a certain time. He is sure to take an out-of-town check from a neighbor, pass it through your bank without charge and give him your check for it. You are sure to get eaught. Discount no assemmodation note: in the meaning of a bank it is a note for which no value has passed from the indorser to the deawer.

6. Do not give your check to a stranger. This is an open door for fraud, and if your bank loses through you it will not feel kindly toward you.

1. When you send your check out of the city to pay bills, write the name and residence of your payee, thus: "Pay to John Smith & Co., of Boston." This will put your bank on its guard if presented at the counter.

8. Don't commit the folly of supposing that because you trust the bank with your money the bank ought to trust you by paying your overdrafts.

9. Don't suppose you can behave badly in one bank and stand well with the others. You forget there is a clearing

10. Don't quarrel with your bank. If you are not treated well, go somewhere else; but don't go and leave your discount line unprotected. Don't think it unreasonable if your bank declines to.

11. If you want an accommodation note discounted tell the bank frankly that it is not, in their definition, a busipess note. If you take a note from a debtor with an agreement, verbal or written, that it is to be renewed in whole or in part, and if you get that note discounted and then ask to have a new one discounted to take up the old one, tell the bank about it.

12. Don't commit the folly of saying that you will guarantee the payment of a note which you have already indorsed.

13. Give your bank credit for being intelligent generally and understanding its own business particularly. It is much better informed, probably, than you supposed.

14. Don't try to convince your bank that the paper or security which has already been declined is better than the bank supposes. This is only chaff.— Confectioners' Journal.

The Artist Grouned as He Thought of Ha

Camera. The natural ruggedness of her face had been materially softened by the hand of art, when she seated herself carefully in the photographer's chair and turned her eyes in the direction of the camera. Yet the most careful observer could not be deceived in thinking her beautiful.

"Madam, if you please, look-The artist was interrupted by a depreeatory wave of the hand. "No directions, please: I know just how I want to sit. I have studied myself in many different poses, and I know what I am talking about."

She leaned forward in a careless way, rested her elbow on the table by her side, pressed one finger against her cheek, rolled her eyes until her glanca rested upon the ceiling, and sighed.

"There," she murmured, in a soft eestacy, "like that. An attitude of adoration, don't you know." "But, madam-

"Not a word. I know what I want." The photographer merely wished to call attention to the distinction between a contortion and an attitude of adora- limits of tion. He concluded, however, to remain

"There is only one thing," the sitter explained, "upon which I wish to have your opinion." The artist bowed.

"I can't really make up my mind whether a smile or a pensive look is the more becoming to me."

The artist would not willingly undertake to decide so delicate and intricate a problem without ample study. He essayed to look respectfully interested. but said nothing.

"Do I look better thus?" She assumed an expression approxinating in severity that of the Gorgon Medusa. "Or thus?" She stretched her face with a smile that would have caused the stoutest heart to quail. "Which do you say?

The artist thought of the delicate mechanism of his camera and groaned in spirit. "My dear madam-"

She was listening eagerly. "If you could manage-"Oh, yes; certainly." "Er-between the two expressions it is difficult to decide-"Quite right." "They are equally becoming." She simpered in a weak simulation of

"And if you could take a little of each, a very little—"

She started in horror. "And try something elso-She was gone. She had scrambled into her wraps in a twinkling, made a few disjointed observations about being insulted, and fitted away.

"A very little of each, to be sure," were the words which rang in the ears of the artist, and it seemed to him they came as in a dream."-Detroit Tribune.
