Go Syea. & Bank Ste. Potersburg,

Georgie, dear," said a lovely maid, As they sat on the porch the other night, its unhealthy to kiss, the doctors say, So of course it cannot be right,

Well, darling," spoke the noble youth, As his color mantled high, I never thought being kissed to death, Such a horrible death to die.

Let's try And then they tried,

And neither died, For such a lick Ne'er made one sick.

CAUSED THEM TO MEET.

"I fell in love with a young lady I afterwards married while the battle of the Wilderness was raging," said Major Dan Thompson, a member of the Reminiscence Club, that was in session at the Southern, says the St. Louis Globe Demo-

"During the first day's fighting the Confederates charged us across an old ditch and were driven back with terrible

We advanced and took up a position in the ditch, and for a few moments the roar of battle died away, with the exception of a Confederate battery far to our left, which kept snarling viciously. Right in front of me lay a young Confederate who had been shot through the hips. He was a handsome boy, not more than seventeen, and was evidently suffering terrible agony. He was trying bravely to be a man, but the tears would rise to his and in a few moments he was sobbing

"I asked him what I could do for him, and he took from his pocket a portrait of his sister and asked me to give it to her when I reached Richmond. He evidently believed that because his regiment had been driven back the cause was hopelessly lost, and that nothing remained for the Federal troops to do but march into Richmond with colors flying.

"I had the youngster carried to the rear and cared for, and put the picture of his sister in my pocket, where it remained to the end of the war. Her brother recovered and was finally exchanged. A few days after the capitulation of Richmond I called on the lady to deliver her picture according to promise, and-well: it was another case of Held by the Encmy. The brother and I are in business together in Baltimore."

AND SHE BELIEVED HIM.

It was early midnight when the young bride heard the front door softly opened. and as he came up in his stocking feet she dried her eyes and determined that the time for action had come at last.

"This will never do, George," said she, with a steely glitter in her eye that sobered him on the instant. "Perhaps I wouldn't mind it so much in the years to come, but our honeymoon is barely over and here you stay out nearly all night Unless you promise to stop I'll go back to my father."

"Forgive me, my dear," he replied, bracing himself for the supreme effort of his life, for he knew the crisis had come, and upon the result depended whether marriage was to be a failure or a blooming success. "I know my conduct must seem cruel to you, but that is only because you know so little of men and their ways. All my life I have been accustomed to staying out all night. I can't stop suddenly, for the doctor has told me I have heart disease and that any sudden shock was likely to kill me. That's why. my dear, I must taper off gradually."

"Forgive me, George," she sobbed, throwing herself on his breast. "I have been very selfish. I know you try to do what is the best for you. Never again will I scold you, for it would drive me crazy if I knew I was the cause of your killing yourself."
