Some of the letters that Mayor Thacher gets are cariosities in their way People from out of town who wish to find out anything in the city of Albany invariably write letters to the mayor. It doesn't make any difference what the information desired relates to, the mayor, they think,

A letter was received from a negro away down south, who, Mr. Monahan says, has been dead for thirty years-not literally a cornse, but deceased as far as his grip on hustling, progessive nineteenth century life was concerned. This man believes that slavery is still an institution in this great land, and is ignorant of the glorious fact that master's whip hasn't cracked for thirty yeas. He never heard of the President's proclamation, never knew that the North had whipped the South, and that a million lives had been sacrificed to free the slave In his letter to the mayor this colored man asked to be brought North and sold back into slavery. There is no question that he found it impossible to live in the South, and longed again for the irresponsibility from self-support (Dan., 12-11). Those days will end the of slavery days which he thought still flourished in the South.
