Bank of Halifax,

After one hundred and fifty years of corporate existence without banking facilities, the home of General Wm. R. Davie and of Willie Jones—where the Declaration of Independence was ratified and the State constitution adopted, the town of Halifax has taken on new life and a Bank with a charter from the State is an accomplished fact, its doors are now open for the transaction of business. The Bank has two departments.

A COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT—where general banking, exchange and collecting business is conducted, and a SAVING DEPARTMENT—deposits in this will bear interest, and amounts from one dollar and upwards received. With ample facilities and correspondents in and out of the State, the Bank offers its services, and solicits the patronage of the public one and all.

THE GOLDEN TIME.

MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

When is the golden time? you ask—the gold time of love, The time when earth is green beneath, and skies are blue above, To-day, that waits for you and me a breath of Eden's prime, When is the golden hour? you ask—Answer you, "To-day."

To-day, that from the Maker's hand slips on the great world sea, As staunch as ever ship that launched to sail eternally, To-day, that waits for you and me a breath of Eden's prime, That greets us glad and large and free—it is the golden time.

For yesterday hath veiled her face, and gone as far away As sands that swept the pyramids in Egypt's ancient day, No man shall look on Yesterday, or trust with her again, Forever-gone her toils, her prayers, her conflicts, and her pain.

To-morrow is not ours to hold, may never come to bless Or blight our lives with weal or ill, with gladness or distress, No man shall clasp To-morrow's hand, nor catch her on the way, For when we reach To-morrow's land, she'll be by then To-day.

You ask me for the golden time, I bid you "seize the hour," And fill it full of earnest work, while yet you have the power, To-day the golden time for joy, beneath the household eaves, To-day the royal time for work, for "bringing in the sheaves."

To-day, the golden time for peace, for righting olden feuds, For sending forth from every heart whatever sin intrudes, To-day, the time to consecrate your life to God above, To-day, the time to banish hate, the golden time for love.

HEAVEN.

Over All the Earth, the Idea of Heaven is the Thought that Fills the Heart With Hope, and Lightens the Burdens of Life.

The word Heaven is the symbol of a blessed future. It is the promise of a glorious summer, after the winter is past, the sunrise of an endless day; a day without storms, a life without poverty, enough without toil. It is the kingdom prepared for us from before the foundation of the world; the home of our Father in Heaven, the place from which our Saviour came, and the place to which he ascended; the abode of holy angels and the spirits of just men made perfect.

Over all the world, the idea of heaven is the thought that fills the heart with hope, and lightens the burdens of life, whether we observe the wild Indian singing of his happy hunting grounds, the Hebrew of celestial Paradise, or the classic Greek of his shady Elysium.

It is supposed by some that the longing desire for heaven, which we find in all nations, came by tradition, handed down from the first parents. They do not conclusively explain how the first parents discovered it, if in no other way it was revealed by God.

It is probable that the sentiment is innate, one of the instincts planted in the human heart by the great Creator, to assist in developing and quickening conscience, to be a moral by-wheel to steady the motions set going by man's tremendous powers.

Some of the strong proofs of Heaven's reality are the following—

1. The universal longing for it. "The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now."—(Romans 8:22.) It is universally admitted that a want, a longing, if not created by some prior improper action, approximately proves a counterpart, a supply, an answer, somewhere. Nature furnishes a healthful answer to every healthful desire.

2. Other kinds of living beings in the earth reach the perfection of their nature; their full development. Man does not. Another existence is needed for him.

3. If there is no heaven, the visible creation lacks utility. The greatest thing man, simply dies. In that case, what would have been the use?

That we cannot see heaven is a trivial point. Even of the material universe the great forces, gravity, electricity, chemical affinity, and others, are not visible. Surely the untold mills of starry worlds are not merely bulk and weight.

With Christians, heaven signifies the good world, the abode of God. It is the name of the place and the state of happiness. But the thought of heaven is universal. Among the old Greek writers Aristotle said, "All men, whether Greeks or barbarians, have a conception of the gods;" and all agree in placing the habitation of the gods in the most elevated regions of the universe. Plato is equally explicit. The same is true of Egyptians, Germans, and all ancient and modern nations. Heaven is the most precious place thought of by Christians; their rest from toil and care; their refuge from sin and sorrow; their journey's end. To Christians it is the mother world, the good world, the abode of God, the future home. There they expect to meet and see their Saviour; their departed friends, the good angels, and their God. Our best thoughts are related to heaven. When we think of God, we think of heaven. When we think of meeting our friends again, it is in heaven. The thought of heaven is a help to holiness; just as the presence of great, good people, is a help to virtue and a good life. It draws men to God.

Of all the Bible teachers, Jesus most frequently speaks of heaven. Consequently, in speaking of it, we follow his example.

It is a place. It is also a condition.

Paul said, "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." Once he said, "The time of my departure is at hand." He hoped to be "with Christ."

"Lay not up for yourselves treasure on earth." The Saviour plainly taught that our hearts should not be set on the earth. And the apostle said, "Set your affections on things above, and not on things of the earth. Christ went to prepare a place for us. He desires us to be with Him.

Where is your home, if your earthly home fails?

Where is your name written?

Where is your citizenship?

Where is your inheritance?

Where is your treasure?

Where is your enduring substance?

Who will be with you when you leave the body?

Where is your mansion?

Where is the place Christ went to prepare for you?

Where is your heart?

"I have used less than one bottle of Cardui," writes Mrs. Gertrude Ward, of Rushville, Neb., "and am feeling fifty per cent better than when I began taking it."
