A PATHETIC STORY

What Rum Did

I was sitting at my breakfast table one Sabbath morning, when I was called to my door by the ringing of the bell. There stood a boy about fourteen years of age, poorly clad, but tidied up as best he could. He was leaning on crutches; one leg off at the knee. In a voice trembling with emotion, and tears coursing down his checks, he said: "Mr. Hoagland, I am Freddie Brown. I have come to see if you will go to the jail and talk and pray with my father. He is to be hung tomorrow for the murder of my mother. My father was a good man, but whiskey did it. 1 have three little sisters younger than myself. We are very poor and have no friends. We live in a dark and dingy room. I do the best I can to support my sisters by selling papers, blacking boots, and odd jobs; but, Mr. Hoagland, we are awfully poor. Will you come and be with us when father's body is brought home? The Governor says we may here his body after he is hung."

Thirty Years I was deeply moved to pity. I promised and made haste to the jail, where I found his father.

He acknowled that he must have murdered his wife, for the circumstances pointed that way, but he had not the sligtest remembrance of the deed. He said he was crazed with drink or he never Spanish Peanuts. would have committed the crime. He said : "My wife was a good and faithful mother to my little children. Never did I dream that my hand could be guilty of such a crime." The man could bravely face the penalty of the law for his deed, but he broke down and cried W E are in the market for new peanuts, and as if his heart would break when he thought of leaving his children

The next morning 1 made my THE COLUMBIAN PEANUT CO., way to the miserable quarters of the children. I found three little girls upon a bed of straw in the corner of the room. They were beautiful girls had they had proper care. They were expecting the body of their dead father, and between their cries and sobs they
