How to Fluff the Hair.

Hair can be fluffed and made to stand out well from the head, even without curling, by brushing it with an outward twist of the wrist that lifts the hair up from the scalp.

For this brushing, divide the hair into strands and go over the head in a circle, then begin further up and continue until all the hair has been lifted and lightened.

If this style of brushing is kept up daily, or even several times a week, the straightest and stringiest of hair soon becomes dry and easy to puff out from the face.

How to Use Bits of Soap.

The toilet soap ends of a household may be satisfactorily utilized if cut into thin shavings and dissolved in a small amount of warm water. Add to this soapy mixture three tablespoonfuls of eau de cologne and one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Then pour the mixture into any small moulds, such as the tops of baking powder tins. The liquid will harden into small, flat cakes.

How to Add Flour to Cake.

When liquid, as milk, is used in cake the milk and flour are usually added alternately simply because the flour is thus more easily incorporated into the mixture. If cake is too porous probably too much baking powder or yeast of favor, and salt has been used.

HIS OWN WORDS.

"Is Rigby a man of culture?"
"Oh, yes indeed. You just ought to hear him say, 'I'm strong for music and the drummer.'"

You may be good, yet that's no sign that you are happy.

GOWANS King of Externals

Stands supreme under every test. Feel secure, keep Gowans in the home. Gowans always conquers Croup and Pneumonia and your doctor assents.

Gowans Preparation was used on my child when it was desperately ill with Pneumonia. Immediately after the second application my physician called and feeling so great an improvement ordered its continuance. The child recovered rapidly. G. J. HECKLE, Druggist, 224 East St. Allegheny, Pa.

IN THE SWEETER COUNTRY.

In the sweeter country where the dreams are always bright, Singing by the rivers and "valleys of delight," All there is of Heaven dawning in your sight— In the sweeter country of the Morning!

In the sweeter country—that's the place to stay; Grief is a dream there—it sings itself away; There it is we realize the meaning of the May— In the sweeter country of the Morning!

In the sweeter country! There's the place to rest, Where the dreams bring roses to each troubled breast; The birds, blown of the storm-winds, are cuddled in the nest In the sweeter country of the Morning!

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

THE LOST STARS.

They Are No Longer Part of Our Busy Life.

We have lost the stars. The December heavens glitter with frosty splendors still, but who looks up to behold their beauty or draw peace from the contemplation of their mysteries? Stars are no longer part of our busy life, so they are no longer part of our spirit. The mariner no longer has to seek guidance from the pole star. The lost shepherd has a compass that has made him forget his lore of heavenly guide-posts. In cities the fimsil radiance of the lights dims the lamps of night hung high in space by angels. Little children have wandered so far from simple things that they no longer make puns on the Milky Way or laugh with sweet unreason at the Big Dipper. Once every convent girl knew where burned Orion's belt, where Taurus flamed red in the Scorpion's heart and how to trace the unstable and ill-fitting lines of Cassiopeia's Chair. Nowadays the stars are secret lore, as if spread lightly idly for drapery, to the small romance of life. They are just scenery.

Only in the country most remote from urban blandishment and taints do the stars beam as old and steadfast friends. Here we may yet meet with a sage for whom their twinkling has deep meaning. He lives close enough to nature to love her jewels. He believes in the stars and christens an almanac. The moon for him is not an adjunct of popular rag-time ditties, but a mysterious force swaying the affairs of men. He knows a wet moon from a dry moon and under what sign it is best to plant potatoes or kill hogs. He has wisdom and peace that the electric lights can never enkindle.—Richard Times-Dispatch.

A THEOLOGICAL POINT.

A revival was being held at a small colored Baptist church in Georgia. At one of the meetings the evangelist, after an earnest but fruitless exhortation, requested all of the congregation who wanted their souls washed white as snow to stand up. One darkey remained sitting.

"Do'n' yo' want yo' soul washed white as snow, Brudder Jones?"

"Ma soul done been washed white as snow, pahson."

"Whah was yo' soul washed white as snow, Brudder Jones?"

"Over yander to de Methodist ch'urch across de railroad."

"Brudder Jones, yo' soul wa'n't washed—hit were dry-cleaned."

Lameness

Sloan's Liniment is a quick and reliable remedy for lameness in horses and other farm animals.

"Sloan's Liniment surpasses anything on earth for lameness in horses and other farm animals. I would not sleep without it in my stable."
—MARTIN DYCKE,
42 West 10th St., New York City.

Good for Swelling and Abscess.

Mr. H. M. Grant, of Lawrence, Kan., R. F. D., No. 2, writes: "I had a mare with an abscess on her neck and one on her bottom. Sloan's Liniment entirely cured her. I kept it all the time for pain and small swellings and for every thing about the stable."
—Life.

Governor of Georgia Uses

Sloan's Liniment for Hog Cholera.
"I heard Mr. Brown (who is quite a farmer) say that he had never lost a hog from cholera and that his remedy was a full quart of Sloan's Liniment in a gallon of slop, decreasing the dose in the animal improved. Last month Gov. Brown and myself were at the Agricultural College building and in the discussion of the ravages of the disease, Gov. Brown gave the remedy named as 'swelling'."
