A GIRL'S ESSAY ON BOYS.

Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls are women that will be ladies by-and-by. Man was made before woman. When God looked at Adam He said to Himself: "Well, I think I can do better if I try again." And He made Eve so much better than Adam that there have been more women than men.

Boys are a trouble. They wear out everything but soap. If I had my way half the world would be girls and the rest dolls. My papa is so nice that I think he must have been a little girl when he was a little boy.

Man was made, and on the seventh day he rested. Woman was then made, and she has never rested since.

A TIME FOR ALL THINGS.

The World Hinges On Little Things.

Timeliness is as important as fitness. The right thing may become wrong unless it is done at the right time. Look well to the time of doing anything. If your wife looks worried and worn out, be sure it is not the time to tell her that dinner is not hot or that the bread is sour. Comfort her; cheer her up. Use the ten thousand little stratagems you were wont to handle so skillfully in the old days to bring out the smiles around her lips. If you're annoyed or vexed at people, just remember it is not the right time to speak. Close your mouth. Shut your teeth together firmly, and it will save you many a useless and unavailing regret, and a many bitter tear. If you happen to feel a little cross, and who among us do not at one time another, do not select that time for reproving your noisy household flock. A word spoken in passion will make a scar that a summer of smiles can hardly heal over. If you are a wife, never tease your husband when he comes home, weary from his day's business. It is not the right time. Do not ask him for expensive outlays when he has been talking hard times. It is, most assuredly, the wrong time. If he has entered upon an undertaking against your advice, do not seize on the moment of his failure to say, "I told you so." In fact it is never the right time for these four monosyllables. Oh, if people only knew how to discriminate between the right time and the wrong, there would be less domestic unhappiness, less estrangement of the heart. The greatest calamities that overshadow our lives have sometimes their germ in matters as apparently slight as this. If you would only pause, reader, before the slinging taunt, or the biting sneer, or the unkind scold passes your lips just pause long enough to ask yourself, Is it the right time for me to speak? You would shut the world against many a heartache. The world hinges on little things, and there are many more trivial than the right time and the wrong.

SCIENTIFIC PUZZLER.

"Bobby, do you see that bright star overhead, at the top of the big cross?" "Yes." "Well, that's Deneb. It is nearly three quadrillions of miles away."

"Huh! Then how do you know its name is Deneb?"—Chicago Tribune.

THE COUNSEL OF DESPAIR.

"I want a roast without any bone, fat or gristle," said the bride, on her first trip to market.

"Yes, madam," said the butcher, "I would suggest that you take an egg."—Youth's Companion.

WHAT GRANDMOTHER WORE.

They are saying mean things to our faces Of the trim little hats that we wear, The close-fitting toques, and the turbans, That keep all the dust from the hair, But do they remember the bonnets, The coal-scuttle bonnets of yore, All loaded with feathers and flowers, The bonnets our grandmothers wore?

The funny cartoonists are flaying The short, narrow skirt of today, Escaping the germs on the pavement In vain to be carried away, Just think of the flounces and scallops, The gathers behind and before, The yards that were sweeping the gutters, In the dresses our grandmothers wore.

The delicate shoulders uncovered, And boards in the fronts of their stays, Were some of the tortures that custom Decried in our grandmothers' days, A waist that was squeezed like a lemon, Pantaloons coming down to the floor, And hoops, were a few of the fashions Our foolish young grandmothers wore.

Do you doubt that the world is progressing, And scoff at our latter-day clothes? Then go up to the trunks in the garret Where garments discarded repose, Put on all the finery faded, The petticoats, too, by the score, And walk—if you can, in the bundles Of dry goods our grandmothers wore.

WHIPPOORWILL.

O! whippoorwill, please hush, you make me lonesome For cool, still woodlands, and the close of day In forests dim, where once I wandered, dreaming, In mossy paths where children love to play, When youth, and visions bright, my soul entwining, Chased gloom away, and when the sun declining, Turned home my footsteps— Then I heard, from over vale and hill That call of yours: Whippoorwill, O! whippoorwill.

Soft mists a-rolling up from lowland meadow Bring breaths of springtime fragrance in their trail, The crescent moon slow sailing far above me And silver stars set in the azure pale, The wild flowers, dew-wet, round my feet upspringing The crickets chirp, so merry, keen and shrill, I hear your voice above them all a-calling, Whippoorwill, O! whippoorwill.

The darkies round the cabin doors are resting, And one says, "Heah dat bird? Now, sho's you born, Dis springtime here is jes' a fairly flyin,'" "Tis time ole master had us plantin' corn." Old master has for many years lain sleeping, The darkies are forgotten. But you still Bring all the loved scenes back to me whenever I hear you calling: Whippoorwill, O! whippoorwill.

STRICTLY CONSCIENTIOUS.

At a matinee performance a stout woman appeared at the entrance, leading two boys, aged 7 and 9, and presented one ticket.

"You will have to buy tickets for those boys," insisted the manager.

"No I won't," she protested; "they always go to sleep as soon as they get inside. Why should I pay for them if they don't see the show?"

The manager thought of the days when his mother took him to the matinees, as the argument was one that he could not get around, he passed them in. After the first act an usher came to the manager and handed him a quarter.

"What's this for?" he asked. "The fat lady told me to telly you one of those kids' woke up."—Washington Star.

A MATHEMATICAL WONDER.

"He's a great head for figures." "In what way?" "Well, he can even understand what he can do with a life insurance policy after an agent has described it."—Detroit Free Press.
