ROMANCE OF A VEIL

By JOHN PHILIP ORTH.

John Gray's office window overlooked Fifth avenue, and on this particular October day the window was wide open to the crisp autumn breeze. Life is dull enough, goodness knows, complained John, leaning back in his chair and elevating his heels to his desk.

And at this critical moment ro mance entered his office in the most unexpected manner

There floated through the window borns on the fresh breeze, something soft and filmy and white like a bit of pure cloud drifting down from the sky He did not see it, his eyes were closed in dreamy retrospection, and it was not until the wisp of white drifted acress his lips and clung there that ho sat up with a start

AT LAST.

When on my day of life the night is falling, And in the winds, from unsunned spaces blown, I hear far voices of the darkness calling My feet to paths unknown.

Thou who hast made my home of life so pleasant, Leave not its tenant when its walls decay. O Love Divine, O Helper ever present,

Be near me when all else from me is drifting, Earth, sky, home's pietures, days of shade and shine, And kindly faces to my own uplifting The love which answers mine.

I have but Thee, my Father! let Thy spirit Be with me then to comfort and uphold; No gate of pearl, no branch of palm I merit, Nor streets of shining gold.

Be Thou my strength and stay!

Suffice it if-my good and ill unreckoned, And both forgiven through Thy abounding grace-I find myself by hands familiar beckoned Unto my fitting place.

Some humble door among Thy many mansions, Some sheltering shade where sin and striving cease, And flows forever through heaven's green expansions The river of Thy peace.

There, from the music round about me stealing, I fain would learn the new and holy song, And find at last beneath Thy trees of healing The life for which I long.

The farmer has been sitting on the fence watching capital and labor fight for many years and incidentally furnishing the siness of war and it is quite gratifying to find them talking instead of about, each other When honest men smile and look into the world better and far more satisactory to the farmer, who in the end bears the burden of conflict, than resolutions, speeches or pamphlets coutaining charges and counter-harges. The love for justice makes the whole world kin. Understanding is an arbiter far more powerful than the nandates of government, for there is no authority quite so commanding as an honest conscience; there is no decree quite so binding as that of the Supreme Court of Common Sense and no sheriff can keep the peace quite so perfect as Understanding.

We suppose the time will never ome when capital and labor will not be occusionally blinded by the light ning flashes of avarice or frightened But Understanding is a Prince of Peace that ever holds out the olive A man's income is always a sacre thing for in it are the hope, ambitto and opportunity of himself, and fan tly, but there is nothing in a human heart quite so divine as Justice and

Much has been said and more written about the exils of watered stock in big business concerns and the tarmers of this nation believe that every dollar written into the life of any to say I know that my Redeemer water in its financial transaction than us much water in a farmer's note Capital and labor have always been | drawing eight or ten per cont interest when other lines of industry secure money for four or five per cent per ing a reasonable compensation upon the face value of securities representing an investment of only fifty cents on the dollar. The only difference is, the water is in the interest rate in one instance and in the securties in the other. The promoter of times takes chances and his success is contingent upon the development of the property involved but the usurer, as a rule, takes no chances and his success cripples the property involved. There may be ndustries that cry louder but none that suffer more severely from finan-cial immorality in both law and cusom than that of agriculture,

The farmers of America today are paying $200,000,000 per annum in usury on real estate and chattel loans, and this interest capitalized at five per cent, represents $4,000,000,-000 of fictition values which the farmer is paying interest on. This sum of money is almost equal to the annual alne of crops produced in the United States.

The earning power of the farmer's note based upon his interest rate very nearly divides likes the earth's surfourth land. The largest body of water that floats upon the financial hemisphere now rests upon the farms and its waves are dashing and its billows are rolling against seven milion homes threatening ruin and disaster to the prosperity of the nation Will our public servants who understand how to drain the liquid off industrial properties turn the faucet and let the water off the farms?

It is an admitted economic fact that there can be no permanent prosperity without a permanent agriculture

Agriculture is recognized as the greatest of all industries and a prosperous, progressive and enlightened agricultural population is the surest safeguard of civilization
