SHOOK EVEN DIVER'S NERVE.

Sights In Ships Sunk by Submarine Too Much For Veteran Who Had Seen Many Such.

"Yes," said a well known diver recently, in a quiet voice, "one of the most awful sights I have ever seen was witnessed recently; it was a steamer sunk by a submarine. When I got down to her, the people in the saloon looked exactly as if they were alive. All had their eyes open—the women had piteous expressions on their faces; some had actually stuffed handkerchiefs in their mouths to try to prevent suffocation—and when the saloon door was opened they all seemed to dance toward me. I signaled to the surface, and as I moved backward they also moved, until it was possible to take them off one by one. But the thing that seemed to me the most striking of all was this: The man at the wheel, who had been a mate of mine in times past, had gone down with his ship, and when I looked there he was still, with both hands on the wheel, his face rigid and set, looking as though he was a figure cast in bronze. When I tried to move his hand from the wheels to take him up, I found it impossible; they were clinched beyond my strength. I felt queer, signaled 'Up,' and a few moments later my helmet was unscrewed and they were gently sponging the blood from my face and nostrils."

GET READY FOR YOUR JOB.

This is the age of the trained man. The men who succeed are the men of one idea of which they make a hobby. Goethe said, "Wherever thou art, be all there." The best way to prevent a gun from scattering is to put in a single shot. Even specialists today have their specialty. It does not pay to prevent a gun from scattering is to put in a single shot. The successful worker today is he who singles out from a vast number of possible employments some specialty, and to that devotes himself thoroughly. The specialist does not have to look for a job. The job is looking for him. America is a poor country for the average man. Everything is crowded downstairs.

THE LIMIT.

He was a very small boy. Paddy was his dog, and Paddy was nearer to his heart than anything on earth. When Paddy met swift and hideous death on the turnpike road his mother trembled to brake the news. But it had to be, and when he came home from school she told him simply: "Paddy has been run over and killed." He took it very quietly, finished his dinner with appetite and spirits unimpaired. All day it was the same. But five minutes after he had gone up to bed there echoed through the house a shrill and sudden lamentation. His mother rushed upstairs with solicitude and sympathy. "Nurse says," he sobbed, "that Paddy has been run over and killed." "But, dear, I told you that at dinner, and you didn't seem to trouble at all." "No, but—but I didn't know you said Paddy. I—I thought you said daddy!"

USELESS HUSBANDS

In a certain provincial town where everything is up to date and the people are always planning some new scheme a shocking thing happened. One of the popular society women announced a 'white elephant party.' Every guest was to bring something that she could not find use for and yet too good to throw away. The party, however, would have been a great success but for the unlooked-for development which broke it up. Eleven of the 19 women brought their husbands.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

At a certain church in a Jersey town it is the invariable custom of the clergyman to kiss the bride after the ceremony. A young woman who was about to be married in this church did not relish the prospect and instructed her prospective husband to tell the clergyman that she did not wish him to kiss her. The bridegroom obeyed the instructions given. "Well, Harry," said the young woman when he appeared, "did you tell the minister that I did not wish him to kiss me?" "Yes." "And what did he say?" "He said that, in that case, he would charge only the usual fee."—New York Times.
