WHEN SHIP BECAME A FARM

Story Is Told of the Experience of Late Major Archibald Butt With a Cargo of Oats.

Truly, there is nothing new under the sun. Here's the good ship Ponhook, carrying a fine cargo of dried codfish from where there is ample codfish to where the hungry natives are yearning for codfish. She springs a seam, in flows the Atlantic. The codfish drink copiously and swell up, the straining timbers cannot stand the strain and the Ponhook goes to pieces. A yarn of the sea of the true salty flavor, but is the incident unique? Not at all, says the New London Day. They used to tell a story in Washington years ago about the late Maj. Archibald W. Butt and his cargo of oats that makes the tale of the Ponhook sound like plagiarism.

In those days Archie was not a major, neither had he attained to the proud position of military aide to the president of the United States. He had been a newspaper man and had but lately entered the army as a lieutenant in the quartermaster's department. His first "assignment" was to chaperon a cargo of oats from San Francisco to Manila on one of those weird transports which the government always managed to find in some out-of-the-way dock in Spanish war times. Half way to Guam the old tub shipped a heavy sea and a couple of tons of water sluiced into the hold. It was what the oats needed. They sopped it up and called for more. They became insistent. Their impatience burst all bounds, until the ship couldn't hold them. They swelled and swelled, and finally sprouted.

When the young quartermaster reached Manila finally he had no cargo of oats, but he had a splendid farm. Oats were growing out of the hatches, they climbed the masts, they festooned about the bridge, they burst through every seam and hung down the sides of the ship like an Illinois quarter section afloat. The army authorities at Manila canceled an order for a new machine gun and ordered a couple of reapers. And Archie Butt didn't know whether he would be court-martialed or be secretary of agriculture. Talk about codfish.

The Penalty of Liberty.

In the matter of discipline John Ruskin's mother was a Spencerian before Spencer. "Let your penalties," says that austere philosopher, "be like the penalties inflicted by inanimate nature, inevitable. The hot cinder burns a child the first time he seizes it; it burns him the second time; it burns him every time; and he very soon learns not to touch the hot cinder." That was Mrs. Ruskin's method. To illustrate her way of teaching lessons, Ruskin used to tell the following incident of his early childhood, which his mother was fond of relating.

"One evening, when I was yet in my nurse's arms, I wanted to touch the tea urn, which was boiling merrily. It was an early taste for bronzes, I suppose, but I was resolute about it. My mother bade me keep my fingers back; I insisted on putting them forward. My nurse would have taken me away from the urn, but my mother said:

"'Let him touch it, nurse.'

"So I touched it, and that was my first lesson in the meaning of the word 'liberty.' It was the first piece of liberty I got, and the last that for some time I asked for."—Youth's Companion.

Self-Hypnotism Nearly Fatal.

Records for keen imaginations were shattered in the case of Edward Corrigan, who almost succeeded in killing himself with thought, a Los Angeles dispatch says.

Corrigan is a young engineer and had been going with a girl, with whom he had quarreled. "The end will come in a couple of hours," he said in sepulchral tones. Shortly afterwards he was found in bed in a comatose condition, and when his folks entered the room he asked for a priest to administer the last rites.

Police Surgeon Zorb made a minute examination and thought Corrigan had taken poison. His eyes were dilated and his outward condition indicated poisonous symptoms. Treatment applied caused Doctor Zorb and other experts called in to believe that the case was one of self-hypnotism caused by mental depression. When Corrigan returned to his senses in the hospital he broke out in tears, saying he was despondent over his broken love affair.

It doesn't take a blooming idiot long to go to seed.

PAINS SHARP AND STABBING

Woman Thought She Would Die. Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ogdensburg, Wis.—"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. ETTA DORION, Ogdensburg, Wis.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best battled with this case steadily for do no more, but often the most treatment is surpassed by the properties of the good old roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complication exists it pays to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special free advice.

SOMEWHERE ELSE.

There's a wonderful land called Somewhere Else
And it's there that we fain would stray
Away from the woe and the care we know
In the place where we are today.

Ah me, in the beautiful Somewhere Else
The blossoms that spring from the sod!
The lilies so white and the daffodils bright,
And the sumptuous roses that nod!

The sun shines warm over Somewhere Else,
And soft are the winds that wing;
And the fields are green with the velvet sheen,
And ever the glad birds sing.

In the land that is known as Somewhere Else
Are the friends that are friends indeed,
And the neighbors there have a kindly air,
With a smile or a tear as you need.

The people are happy in Somewhere Else,
And living is filled with cheer;
But lo, ere we fly to that place, let us try
To make Somewhere Else of Right Here!

AT NIGHTFALL.

Night falls within the garden of the heart
With healing balm for every flower that blows
And from its dewy chalice doth impart
New perfume to the rose.

Deep in the shadowy dells the falling brook
Drowses its murmur. Water lilies cool
Sleep on the placid wave, while from some nook
A wood-rat seeks the pool.

Startling the reeds above a sunken star
It sets a-dance in black depths profound:
And through the low grass cometh from afar
The cricket's chirping sound.

The fragrance of all blooms is borne upon
The rise and falling of the fitful breeze;
And deep in golden blossoms of the sun
Sleep the gold-banded bees.

O magic Night that hold'st in thy embrace
A rarer sweetness than is born of day,
How gladly doth the eager earth her face
Turn from the sun away!

WAITING PATIENTLY.

Constant Attendant at Play was Bound to Be on Hand When Erring Wife Was Caught by Husband.

A problem play was being produced in Chicago. One evening it was discovered that a certain man, evidently from the rural district, had attended the play six nights in succession and always sat well down in front. Each night he leaned forward eagerly in his seat and drank in the words of the drama.

These facts were communicated to the theater press agent, who scented a good story. Approaching the interested spectator between the acts, he apologized for his intrusion and said: "Would you mind telling me just why you are so interested in this play? Do you know some member of the cast?"

"No," said the man from the outlands. "That ain't it. But I'll tell you about it. You know the scene in the private room of the restaurant, where the dark man and the other man's wife get up and leave by the left-hand door just a moment before the woman's husband enters by the right-hand door?"

"Yes," said the press agent expectantly.

"Well," said the interested spectator, "some night the husband's going to come in before they leave."

TIME TO HURRY.

"Do you think the time is coming when the Government will commandeer all privately owned automobiles."

"I don't know," replied the melancholy motorist, "but if the Government wants to beat the Sheriff to mine it will have to hurry."

THAT'S DIFFERENT.

It may take a woman seven minutes to find her nickle for the car fare, but when she arrives at the store she can articulate the two words "charge it" and shift two months' salary so quickly that hubby won't even have time to kiss it good-bye.

HE WAS SORRY HE SPOKE.

"Why, you women ought to be thankful that you do not live in foreign countries, where they yoke up women with mules and make them pull together," said a rough opponent to woman suffrage to a gentle, but strong-minded suffragist.

"You are married, are you not?" she asked.

"Yes!" he snapped.

"Well," she rejoined, "then foreign countries are not the only ones in which women are yoked with mules."

NEW CLEANER RUN BY WATER

Recently Invented Device Can Be Operated at Any Point in House Where There Is Hydrant.

A vacuum cleaner has been invented which can be operated wherever there is a hydrant in the house.

A pipe of the right diameter is screwed into the hydrant's mouth and runs down to the bottom of the sink. A spiral nozzle fits the pipe just below the mouth of the hydrant. An angular pipe opens into the vertical pipe immediately below the nozzle and slopes up to connect with a rubber hose on the guiding rod.

To clean the room you turn on the water and guide the rod over the carpet. After traversing the spiral nozzle the water whirls around and passes the opening of an angular pipe, forcing out all the air near it. The vacuum so created starts the air flowing in the rubber hose.

Why They Laughed.

When a throng gathers about the cages of the sometimes wild, sometimes tame, sometimes quiet, but usually noisy monkeys at the New York Zoological park, it is to be expected, and the keepers regard the gathering with but little interest. But when the same sized group gathers about the inclosure of some less amusing exhibits the keepers are immediately active, usually finding a bit of zoological temperment has resulted in a tantrum by the long-ignored occupant. Recently a keeper saw a laughing battalion of sightseers surrounding the cage of Minnehaha, the smallest donkey in the world. Minnehaha is cute, odd and interesting, but there is nothing about her to cause observers to shout with laughter. So the keeper walked over curiously. Someone had pasted a picture of the German crown prince under the sign which announces what Minnehaha is.

Prodigal Providence.

"I don't like to see warring armies call too persistently on Providence. It savors of arrogance and self-righteousness. Providence may take revenge."

The speaker was a certain bishop, who went on:

"There was once a young couple that had no children. The husband was anxious that heaven should bless them with a girl, the wife was anxious for a boy. Being very religious, both besought Providence morning, noon, and night to grant his or her desire.

"And Providence heard. Providence granted both prayers."—London Tit-Bits.

Can't Count Them.

Two aviators, one American and the other Irish, were discussing the best position for the propeller with relation to its strength.

"Mine," said the American, "is in front and gets up to 10,000 revolutions a minute."

"Sure," said the other, "I can't say which is best, because mine is at the back, and so I can't count them."

Oil Fuel.

Unusual compactness and quick-steaming qualities are claimed for a new English oil fuel boiler, in which hollow concentric cones for the water are set over a huge burner.

Thousands of voluntary letters from women, telling of the good Cardui has done them. This is the best proof of the value of Cardui. It proves that Cardui is a good medicine for women.

There are no harmful or habit-forming drugs in Cardui. It is composed only of mild, medicinal ingredients, with no bad after-effects.

TAKE

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

You can rely on Cardui. Surely it will do for you what it has done for so many thousands of other women! It should help.

"I was taken sick, seemed to be . . . ," writes Mrs. Mary E. Veste, of Madison Heights, Va. "I got down so weak, could hardly walk . . . just staggered around. . . . I read of Cardui, and after taking one bottle, or before taking quite all, I felt much better. I took 3 or 4 bottles at that time, and was able to do my work. I take it in the spring when rundown. I had no appetite, and I commenced eating. It is the best tonic I ever saw." Try Cardui.

Pale Faced Women Take Phosphates to Make Rosy Cheeks and Beautiful Forms.

Men Need Phosphates to Make Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Bodies.

Athletes increase their strength, energy and endurance 200% or more by simply taking a few week's treatment of Argo-Phosphate.

Atlanta, Ga. Dr. F. A. Jacobson says that Phosphates are just as essential to any man or woman who tires easily, is nervous, or irritable, worn out, or looks haggard and pale to make a strong, robust, vigorous healthy body, as they are to cotton to make it grow. The lack of Phosphate is the cause of all enemic conditions and the administration of 5-grain Argo-Phosphate tablets will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous care worn men and women 300 per cent. in two or three weeks time in many instances, and their continued use will build up the whole nervous system, and give new life, vim, vigor, and vitality to the whole body. I always prescribe Argo-Phosphate to patients who are pale and colorless, and it is surprising to see how quickly a few weeks treatment will transform a pale face to a rosy-cheeked beauty. There can be no rosy-cheeked, healthy, beautiful women, without their system is sufficiently supplied with Phosphates. In recent interviews with physicians on the grave and serious consequences of a deficiency of Phosphates in the blood of American men and women, I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more phosphates in the form of Argo-Phosphate for weak, worn-out, haggard looking men and women. When the skin is pale, and the flesh flabby, it is a sign of anemia. When the phosphates go from the blood, the pink cheeks go, too. The muscles lack tone. They become nervous, irritable, despondent, melancholy, the brain fags, and the memory fails. Therfore if you wish to preserve your healthy vim, vigor and vitality, to a ripe old age, you must supply the deficiency of Phosphates lacking in your food by using Argo-Phosphate, the form of Phosphates most easily assimilated.

NOTICE

Argo-Phosphate which is recommended and prescribed by physicians in all enemic cases, is not a secret or patent medicine, but one that is sold and recommended by well known druggists everywhere, and physicians are daily subscribing the constituents contained in it. Being entirely unlike many other Phosphates, it is easily assimilated and will be found effective in the treatment of indigestion and stomach troubles, as well as for care worn, nervous conditions. The manufacturers of Argo-Phosphate will forfeit to any charitable institution $200.00 if they cannot treat any man or woman under 65 who lacks Phosphates and increase their strength and endurance from 100 per cent. to 300 per cent. or more in one month's time, if they are free from organic trouble. It is dispensed by the W. M. Cohen Drug Company.

Free sample mailed by the Argo Laboratories, Atlanta, Ga.
