CELEBRATE THE RUSS REVOLT

Civilians and Soldiers, in Remarkable Procession, Display Powers of Organization.

In the Nevsky Prospekt the interminable procession was formed in two columns, marching parallel with each other and made up of groups of about a hundred men, women and children, old and young, walking arm in arm, according to the account of an eyewitness in Scribner's. The files were of equal length, and no troops could have shown better alignment. At the head of each group, like a captain leading his company, walked a leader, who wore a wide red scarf crosswise, to make him more easily distinguishable. When he lifted his hand the members of his group went forward; when he lowered it they stopped. It was exactly like the order and discipline of troops on the march, and trained soldiers could not have marched better—indeed, the soldiers did not, for one of the strange things about this prodigious procession was that in it civilians and soldiers were mingled. After some groups of workmen came battalions of troops, then workingmen and women again. This fusion of soldiers and civilians made an impression which I can never forget. And as they marched they sang revolutionary hymns; as a matter of course the "Marseillaise," and also other songs which must have been composed only recently, for the marchers had not had time to learn the words by heart, and some read them from sheets which they carried in their hands. The soldiers also sang, and their thousands of deep voices made a chorus of marvelous power and sonority.

None of these songs were fierce or revengeful. On the contrary, they were sad, profoundly sad—the accents of mourning and not of hate.

No police, no marshals were needed to control this manifestation. Those who took part in it policed themselves, and surely never was discipline better maintained.

As I looked at this spectacle I thought of all the pessimists, all the philosophers steeped in gloom, all the prophets who only predict calamity for Russia. Why should not a people who are able to organise and carry out such a wonderful display be capable of organizing themselves?

Let us, then, give them our confidence—and also a little time.

Banana Is City of Future.

At the mouth of the great Kongo river, here as wide as an arm of the sea, stands the important city with the picturesque name of Banana. The importance of Banana lies in the future rather than the present. It is the port of entry to that immense wilderness filled with a thousand undeveloped possibilities known as the Belgian Kongo. If Belgium comes through the war with her African empire intact Banana will probably grow into the leading Belgian colonial metropolis. At present it is little more than a name and a possibility.

Banana consists of an excellent natural harbor and a village of a few score homesick Europeans. Considering the importance of Kongo trade even today it is surprising that local development has not gone further. There is no adequate wharf or pier. There are no adequate unloading facilities. There are only stretches of sandy beach dotted with noble palms, great mangrove trees with their multitudinous earth gripping branches, a pier of rotting and battered piles and native canoes with their ebony oarsmen. The prospect is beautiful in a natural way, but there is a surprising lack of industrial development.

TELLING HIM.

He was one of those young men who never seem to know when to go home. She had tried yawning, but even that failed to get rid him.

Presently a clock outside in the hall began to strike in low, deep tones the midnight hour.

"Oh, I say, Miss Green," said the late stayer, brightly, "is that an eight-day clock?"

Miss Green smiled coldly at him.

"Well," she said, stifling another yawn, "why don't you stay a little longer and find out?"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

AS HE HEARD IT.

Little Raymond returned home from Sunday school in a very joyous mood.

"Oh, mother," he exclaimed, as he entered the house, "the superintendent said something awfully nice about me in his prayer this morning!"

"Isn't that lovely! What did he say, pet?" questioned his mother.

"He said, 'O Lord, we thank thee for food and Raymond.'"—Harper's Magazine.

Has a High Opinion of Chamberlain's Tablets.

"I have a high opinion of Chamberlain's Tablets for biliousness and as a laxative," writes Mrs. O. A. Barnes, Charleston, Ill. "I have never found anything so mild and pleasant to use. My brother has also used these tablets with satisfactory results."

Of two evils it is best to choose neither.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

DAWN OF FREEDOM.

A shaft of light breaks through the gloom of dark, a gruesome gloom,
The awful deadening, stifling fog that seemed to portend doom,
A light as if a strand of gold is spun in Fate's dark loom.
A sign of God's great plan.
The promise God made to man of Peace on Earth, Good Will,
Is slowly, surely dawning now on every plain and hill
In distant corners of the earth, his purpose to fulfil
Of love of man for man.

The breed of monarchs claim the right to rule o'er other men.
They scorn the rights of humble folk. Mankind would rise and then
Oppressed by sloth and ignorance would grovel low again
To tyrant's cruel might,
Too dumb and dull to worship long at Freedom's oriflamme.
But now the fire that kindled bright when this great nation came
Is breaking through the gloom of dark, ignoble cloud of shame.
'Tis freedom's holy light.

Each band is steel, each heart beats true; we come from fighters' seed,
We fear no foe. 'Tis from ourselves the help of God we need;
Protect us now from thoughts of hate, of lust, of pride, of greed.
Oh, keep our purpose pure.
For soon the blow must fall, a staggering, sickening blow,
With clash of clanging arms, our tears will come, our blood will flow,
And naked famine stalk abroad to lay our dear ones low,
Then help us to endure.

In days of pride, in days of shame, in days when victory nears,
All through the hateful strife and toil although it last for years,
Oh, keep us true to our ideals and heed not praise nor jeers,
God grant we may not fail.
With help of God our victories will bring us awful might;
Oh, help us then to keep in mind that might must stand with right.
God grant us strength to conquer self, to look to Him for light,
Then Freedom's Light, all hail.

HUMAN BODY AS AN ENGINE.

Keeps Itself in Repair and Constantly Maintains An Even Temperature Throughout Four Seasons.

To burn the fuel in a gasoline engine it must be carburetted or mixed with air and an electric spark must be applied to ignite the mixture. In the human engine the process is much more elaborate, since a very wide variety of crude foods is taken, refined, reduced to food and burned slowly. A gasoline engine may be termed a quick-combustion, high-temperature engine, while the human machine is a low temperature and slow combustion engine, which not only produces energy from its food, but lubricates itself, keeps itself in repair and constantly maintains an even temperature throughout the four seasons.

A man could not digest gasoline, nor could a gasoline engine run on butter. Nevertheless, the two classes and functions merge into each other. Science shows how alcohol is a curious illustration of this fact. An internal combustion engine could be run on alcohol and it is known that this fluid can be burned in the human body also producing a large amount of violent energy which is equivalent to that obtained in a gasoline engine when the throttle is pulled wide open and there is no load to carry. Physicians say that drunkenness is, in effect, racing the human engine beyond speed limits.

Experience the Best Teacher.

It is generally admitted that experience is the best teacher, but should we not make use of the experience of others as well as our own? The experience of a thousand persons is more to be depended upon than that of one individual. Many thousands of persons have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs and colds with the best results, which shows it to be a thoroughly reliable preparation for those diseases. Try it. It is prompt and effectual and pleasant to take.

WOULD YOU SCREAM?

He: "If I stole a kiss would you scream for your parents?"

She: "No, not unless you wanted to kiss the whole family."

Great Faith in Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy was used by my father about a year ago when he had diarrhoea. It relieved him immediately and by taking three doses he was absolutely cured. He has great faith in this remedy," writes Mrs. W. H. Williams, Stanley, N.Y.

When pride turns a man's head he is sure to look the wrong way.

People Speak Well of Chamberlain's Tablets.

"I have been selling Chamberlain's Tablets for about two years and heard such good reports from my customers that I concluded to give them a trial myself, and can say that I do not believe there is another preparation of the kind equal to them," writes G. A. McBride, Headford, Ont. If you are troubled with indigestion or constipation give them a trial. They will do you good.

THE HOME.

The Fragrance of a Gentle Life.

Once, in crossing a meadow, I came to a spot that was filled with fragrance. Yet I could see no flowers and I wondered whence the fragrance came. At last I found, low down, close to the ground, hidden by the tall grass, innumerable little flowers. It was from these that the fragrance came.

I enter some homes. There is a rich perfume of love that pervades all the place. It may be a home of wealth and luxury, or it may be plain and bare. No matter; if it is not the house, nor the furniture, nor the adornment that makes this air of sweetness. I look closely. It is a gentle woman, mother or daughter, quiet, hiding self away, from whose life the fragrance flows. There is a wondrous charm in a gentle spirit. The gentle girl in a home may not be beautiful, may not be educated, may not be musical or an artist or "clever" in any way, but wherever she moves she leaves a benediction. Her sweet patience is never disturbed by the sharp words that fall about her. The children love her, because she never tires of them. She helps them with their lessons, listens to their frets and worries, mends their broken toys, makes dolls' dresses, straighten out the tangles and settles their little quarrels, and finds time to play with them. When there are sickness in the home, she is the angel of comfort. Her face is always bright with the outshining of love. Her voice has music in it as it rains in cheerful tenderness on the sufferer's ear. Her hands are wondrously gentle as their soothing touch rests on the aching head or as they minister in countless ways about the bed of pain.

The lives that make the world so sweet
Are shy, and hide like the humble flowers.
We pass them by with our careless feet,
Nor dream tis their fragrance fills the bower
And cheers and comforts us, hour by hour.
—Michigan Christian Advocate

QUICK TO CATCH ON.

"Carl," said a restaurant manager to a waiter, "why did that man from table No. 7 leave so suddenly?"

"Well, sir," said the waiter, "after sitting down he called for sausages and I told him we were out of them, but if he would wait a few minutes, I'd get the cook to make some. When I went to the kitchen and called out the order, I accidentally stepped on the dog's tail, and, of course it yelped. The man got up right away, sir, and ran out."

A Significant Survey.

One of the most significant educational surveys yet conducted in this country is the one planned for Indianapolis. It will include the first intensive investigation of social and economic conditions of graduates from public trade schools ever made in the United States. The data on this point will be used to determine whether the graduates of trade schools have made as much progress in life as the graduates of the academic schools. The report will be presented to the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education and will form the basis of action by that body in making its recommendations on the preparation of students for their life work in the high school instead of in college.

Modern Houses for Filipinos.

With a view to improving the housing conditions of the poor, the Philippine health service has constructed a number of model houses of new fireproof material consisting of cement, sand, and lime or rice husks. These can be built for a little more than the present insanitary dwellings and, it is estimated, will last more than twice as long.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The History of Pearls.

"The modern recognition of pearls dates back to about 300 B. C., but they were known to yet older peoples, and especially to those of the East," says the author of a book published under the title, "The History of Pearls."

"The Chinese records go still farther back, and oyster pearls were received as tribute in the twenty-third century B. C. It is probable that they were found in the waters of Ceylon and India two thousand years ago, and the Greeks of course knew the pearl and recognized its value. But it was not until the Roman empire was beginning to rise that the knowledge of the value of the pearl became general. It seems that in early times Britain played its part in the production of these gems, and Tacitus refers to British pearls, but calls them dull-colored and dirty brown. Origen, on the contrary, declared that the pearls that came from Britain held the second rank in value. It was not, however, until about the twelfth century that pearls were used in England, when they became conspicuous in church ornamentation."

Well, of Course.

The raising of a flag recently on the premises of a factory at Anderson had to be postponed a day because of weather conditions. Arthur S. Birge, factory superintendent, was hopeful that more of the children of the neighborhood could attend the next day.

"About how many of you can I count on to be here?" Mr. Birge said, addressing a group of juveniles.

"All that ain't got the measles," shouted a bright lad who seemed to be spokesman for the children.—Indianapolis News.

Not What She Expected.

"This paper says that more than 300,000 persons in the United States wear glass eyes."

"Well, dear, you know you've often asked me why men stare at you so; that's probably the answer."

There are divers reasons why submarine warfare cannot be conducted on the level.

Health About Gone

Many thousands of women suffering from womanly trouble, have been benefited by the use of Cardui, the woman's tonic, according to letters we receive, similar to this one from Mrs. Z. V. Spell, of Hayne, N. C. "I could not stand on my feet, and just suffered terribly," she says. "As my suffering was so great, and he had tried other remedies, Dr. —— had us get Cardui. . . I began improving, and it cured me. I know, and my doctor knows, what Cardui did for me, for my nerves and health were about gone."

TAKE

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

She writes further: "I am in splendid health . . . can do my work. I feel I owe it to Cardui, for I was in dreadful condition." If you are nervous, run-down and weak, or suffer from headache, backache, etc., every month, try Cardui. Thousands of women praise this medicine for the good it has done them, and many physicians who have used Cardui successfully with their women patients, for years, endorse this medicine. Think what it means to be in splendid health, like Mrs. Spell. Give Cardui a trial.
