BEARDED LADIES.

The World Is Growing Broader As It Grows Better.

There was a time when a woman was regarded as worth going to see only when she was a Bearded Lady or a Wax Figure of a sanguinary mortal like Charlotte Corday, who finished Marat. She must, per force, be a freak of some kind, perhaps the Fat Lady weighing a half ton, and side shows and museums paid fancy salaries for such attractions. The announcement that a woman in the ordinary walks of life had kin to town had excited no comment, caused no speculation, and an ordinary war politician in pants could get a bigger crowd of rubber neckers than the most gifted woman.

Because? Because woman was supposed to be an inferior animal intellectually—she was placed in the same category by the pale face that the Indian placed his squaw—she was supposed to listen, keep her mouth shut in the awful presence of her lord and master and not undertake the initiative in anything.

But happily those days have passed. Nowadays a woman endowed with ordinary intelligence can take her place in the world and among men and stand out for the worth that belongs to her. If she is a speaker she gets attention; if a politician, people listen to what she says—and if an official, she is regarded as the equal of man.

All of this is gratifying information—all of this suggests that the world is growing broader as it grows better.—Everything.

NOT THAT KIND OF WOMAN.

Doctor—You should be constantly at your husband's side, as you will need every little while to hand him something.

Mrs. Casey—Niver, doctor! Sure O'n't the woman to hit a man when he's down.—Boston Transcript.

QUICK REPARTEE.

N. P. Willis was usually the life of the company he happened to be in. His repartee at Mrs. Gales' dinner in Washington is famous. Mrs. Gales wrote on a card to her niece, at the other end of the table. "Don't flirt so with Nat Willis." She was herself talking vivaciously to a Mr. Campbell. Willis wrote the niece's reply: "Dear aunt, don't attempt my young feelings to trammel, Nor strain at a Nat while you swallow a Campbell."

FOOD WILL WIN THE WAR

GOT THE BLESSING.

BY FRANK L. STANTON.

Last Sunday there was preachin', and we all went out to hear; The little church was crowded, for the rich and poor was there; It was jes' a splendid sermon, an' the singin' full and free— "Amazing grace, how sweet the sound that saved a wretch like me."

When I call the sermon splendid, I mean it was the kind To take deep root an' bear good fruit in every sinner's mind; It was full of consolation for weary hearts that bleed— 'Twas full of invitation to Christ and not to creed.

The text was 'bout the prodigal who spent his livin' neat, Until he came at last to want the husks the swine did eat; But a sweet thought gave him comfort when he hardy wished to leave, "I will go unto my father—for my father will forgive."

"I'm talkin' to you fellers," said the preacher, "here to-day, Who spent the Master's livin' in a country far away; You've got to go where that feller was—you can't tell why or how, But come back to the Father—He's waitin' for you now!"

From the amen corner to the door the people gathered near, An' "pray for us!" they shouted, an' it seemed the Lord was there; An' such a great handshakin'! well, the precious time is past, But the old church in the backwoods got the blessin' that'll last!

PATCHED TROUSERS.

BY HON. Z. B. VANCE.

How dear to my heart are the pants of my childhood, When fond recollection presents them to view, The pants that I wore in the deep tangled wild wood, And likewise the groves where the crab apple grew; The wide-spreading seat with its little square patches, The pockets that bulged with my luncheon for noon, And also with marbles and fish-worms and matches And gumdrops and kite strings from March until June— The little patched trousers, the made-over trousers, The high water trousers that fit me too soon.

No pantalons ever performed greater service In filling the hearts of us youngsters with joy; They made the descent from Adolphus to Jarvis, Right down through a family of ten little boys, Though no fault of mine, known to me or to others, I'm the tenderest branch on our big family tree; And having done service for nine older brothers, They came down to me slightly bagged at the knee— The little patched trousers, the second-hand trousers, The old family trousers that bagged at the knee.

ANECDOTE OF DR. WM. CLOSS.

"HELL WILL BE MY PORTION."

The Doctor was always ready for a bit of dry wit or repartee. If the joke was against him, he related it afterwards with just the same relish as if it had been in his favor.

He relates that on one occasion he walked into a barber shop in Little Washington to have his hair trimmed. He was very bald, having only a light fringe of hair that showed out behind under the rim of his hat. He said to the barber: "I want to make a bargain with you. As I do not charge you for preaching, you may trim my hair without charging." "All right," said the barber, "take a seat and let me proceed." The Doctor seated himself and removed his hat in his usual dignified manner. Whereupon the barber drew back with astonishment and exclaimed: "Dr. Closs, if I don't get any more preaching than I get hair off your head, hell will be my portion, certain." Both preacher and barber laughed heartily, and were ever afterwards good jolly friends.

LET US GUARD OURSELVES.

GUARD ourselves we must in such a time as this. Men are in a hurry. Machinery is powered to its capacity. Service is exacting. Mental strain is great. Duty has become double duty. We cannot be still; all are in the stir. The voice of authority re-echoes around the world, and millions obey the command. We look for the unusual; we are not satisfied with the usual. Old theories and themes we are casting aside. We are making history and making it fast. But, with all, let us not forget to linger at the throne of grace. Let us guard ourselves that we may not forget the sweetness of the sanctuary, the moments of meditation and prayer. We must not substitute patriotism for religion. We must guard ourselves against forgetting God.—Christian Sun.

A STORY OF LAFAYETTE.

The Frosts and Snows of Valley Forge.

During Lafayette's visit to America in 1824, he was everywhere honored. Once, when passing through a village where the entire population turned out, he saw an old soldier in the Continental uniform. The veteran drew himself up in the stiff fashion of the old-time drill and gave the military salute. As Lafayette made the return signal, tears started to his eyes. The tattered uniform, the ancient flintlock, the silver-haired soldier, even older than himself, recalled that dear past.

"Do you know me?" asked the soldier.

"No, I cannot say I do," was the frank reply.

"Do you remember the frosts and snows of Valley Forge?"

"I shall never forget them," answered Lafayette.

"One bitter night, General, you were going the rounds at Valley Forge. You came upon a sentry in thin clothing and without stockings. He was slowly freezing to death. You took his gun, saying, 'Go to my hut. There you will find stockings, a blanket and a fire. After warming yourself bring the blanket to me. Meanwhile I will keep guard.'"

"The soldier obeyed. When he returned to his post, you, General Lafayette, cut the blanket in two. One-half you kept; the other you presented to the sentry. Here, General, is one-half of that blanket, for I am the sentry whose life you saved."—Ex.

The Pneumonia Season.

The cold, damp weather of March seems to be the most favorable for the pneumonia germ. Now is the time to be careful. Pneumonia often results from a cold. The quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger. As soon as the first indication of a cold appears take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. As to the value of this preparation, ask any one who has used it.

We know a lot of men whom the world could get along without, but they don't seem to be aware of the fact.

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well. My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIK BOYD, 1421 6th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal. If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years' experience is at your service.
