PRAYED LIKE THUNDER.

"Where Are The Nine?"

The chaplain of a regiment on the western front, on his rounds before the fighting ceased, met an officer of the same regiment who seemed to have something on his mind.

"I think I am due to make you a confession, padre," he said at last with an embarrassed laugh. "Two nights ago, during a heavy barrage, our telephone lines were shot out. I found I had to get over to the major's command post, three or four hundred yards away. As I looked out, it seemed to me shells were dropping along the road like a Western hailstorm, but I had to go just the same. I don't mind telling the world that I was scared good and plenty."

"I hadn't said a prayer since I was a little boy, and never expected to say another, but as I went I found myself praying to God as naturally as if I had been praying all my life long. Somehow I got over and somehow I got back, although it didn't seem possible that anyone could do either. It wasn't until then that it came over me how instinctively and how mightily I had prayed during that shelling, and I said to myself that there was only one way about it: if I prayed like thunder when I was being shelled, I should be a mighty low-down thing if I stopped praying just because I wasn't being shelled. It also seemed to me that the decent thing to do was to own up; and so I made it a point to tell you that now every night I'm saying my prayers."

"God bless you; and keep it up!" said the chaplain.

As he went his way the chaplain thought of the ten healed lepers, only one of whom came to give thanks. "Just about every man in France has had something of that same experience," he said to himself. "Why don't they all remember it afterwards?"

STOMACH TROUBLE

Mr. Marion Holcomb, of Nancy, Ky., says: "For quite a long while I suffered with stomach trouble. I would have pains and a heavy feeling after my meals, a most disagreeable taste in my mouth. If I ate anything with butter, oil or grease, I would spit it up. I began to have regular sick headache. I had used pills and tablets, but after a course of these, I would be constipated. It just seemed to tear my stomach all up. I found they were no good at all for my trouble. I heard

ONE CENT A DOSE

PA'S OFF HIS HEAD.

BY S. E. KISER.

Pa bought himself a derby hat and brought it home last night. And ma can't keep from thinking that our future won't be bright. He paid nine dollars for the thing; when ma found out the price she seemed to think she ought to ring the doctor for advice.

"Good gracious, pa," she said, "what made you ever buy that kind? There must be something, I'm afraid, that's over threw your mind." But there was worse than that to come; pa bought an overcoat. It almost seemed to strike ma dumb; a gasp stuck in her throat—I mean when pa told what it cost—they soaked him fifty bucks. Ma said: "I guess his reason's lost; his mind's all drakes and ducks."

And then she went and felt pa's head and asked him if it hurt. "Get ready now to faint," pa said; "I also bought a shirt." He smiled a kind of sickly smile that chased ma's fears away—"I hope," she told him, after awhile, that's all you bought today, because I did some shopping, too,—a winter coat and hat—Both bargains that but very few would ever get them at. The hat was thirty-five, but all I paid was twenty-nine; I've got it out in the hall; I hope you'll think it's fine.

"The coat's a beauty; you'll be glad I picked it out, I know; It's something like the one I had last fall a year ago. You'd never guess the price I paid—two hundred and eighteen; It looks as though it had been made to order for a queen. You're glad I got them, ain't you dear? Come on, cheer up and smile; The coat'll do me for next year—unless they change the style."

Then pa said he'd bought some shoes—ten dollars for a pair; Ma nearly fainted at the news; it drove her to despair. "Why pa!" she hollered, "and alive! Has something cracked your dome? It looks as if you wished to drive us out of house and home!" Pa put his fingers in his ears and moaned a sickly moan; Ma's worried, for she says she fears his reason's overthrown.

The Best Laxative

My solitary habits have necessitated the use of an occasional laxative. I have tried many but found nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets, writes George F. Daniels, Hardwick, Vt. Mr. Daniels is proprietor of the Hardwick Inn, one of the model hotels of New England.

FAIRLY SO.

"Did you follow the diet I advised?"

"Yes, doctor."

"Religiously?"

"Why, tolerably so. I said grace about three times out of five. I should guess."

Why Colds Are Dangerous

You are often told to "beware of a cold," but why? We will tell you. Every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases. People who contract pneumonia first take cold. The longer a cold hangs on, the greater the danger, especially from germ diseases, as a cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs of consumption, diphtheria, scarlet fever and whooping cough. The quicker you get rid of your cold, the less the danger of contracting one of the diseases. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a great reputation as a cure for colds and can be depended upon. It is pleasant to take.

NOTHING LEFT.

A Timely Suggestion.

The next time you have a cough or cold try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is pleasant to take and you are sure to be pleased with the relief which it affords. This remedy has a wide reputation for its cures of coughs and colds.

Romeo—"You might have guessed that when I proposed to you."
