PRACTICAL FAITH.
Gazing at the Vision of His Faith.

Up in the Caskill Mountains there lived a mountaineer who believed that he had been called to preach the gospel. He got a license, but he could get no church to preach in. Indeed, there was no church within many miles of where he lived.

For a while Dominic Joe, as he was called, preached in the school-house, but as he was always saying, what he wanted was "real proper house of worship." During week days he was a hard-working farmer with meagre resources; and whenever he spoke of a church to his hard working neighbors they would shake their heads as if they thought him a little queer.

But the dominie did not give up his plan indeed, as time went on he thought of little else. He even selected a site for the church—a pretty knoll at the edge of his farm. One evening when he came in from milking his face was shining. "Maria," he said to his wife solemnly, "the trouble with me is that I haven't had the real kind of faith. After milking this evening I knelt down in the corner of the cow yard where I could see the little knoll, and with my eyes open I prayed and prayed, until I saw the church just as plain as I see your face. It was white with green shutters and had a tall steeple; and on top of the steeple, Maria, was a bright star."

Dominic Joe's wife was worried; she feared that his head "had gone quite wrong."

In the middle of the night the dominie awoke and exclaimed, "Maria! Old Josiah Sturgis's tannery! Some one told me that Josiah had sold the old tannery site to a city man for a summer place. I'll bet that city man'll pay to have the tannery pulled down and carted away! And there's the stuff for our church!"

No one could withstand Dominic Joe's enthusiasm; that winter the farmers got together and carted the timber and the boards of the old tannery to the place where today stands a pretty and neat a country church as you can see anywhere. Dominic Joe himself was a fair carpenter. Country masons and carpenters gave their work. During the afternoon of the church "raiser" word went round that the city man had offered to pay for a steeple and buy a bell.

A visiting fisherman who frequently passes Dominic Joe's church says that he never sees the big gilt star on the steeple without thinking of the mountaineer kneeling in his cow yard and gazing at the vision of his faith.

EVER BILIOUS?

Charleston, Miss.—Mrs. R. V. Heins, of this place, says: "I have never had to use very much medicine, because if I felt headache, dizziness, or colds, had taste in the mouth, which comes from torpid liver, I would take a dose or more of Black-Draught, and it would straighten me out and make me feel as good as new. We have used in our family for years and it certainly is the best liver medicine I ever saw. It has not only saved me money, it has helped keep my system in shape, and has never weakened me as so many physics do. I recommend it to my friends and am glad to do so." Black-Draught is the old, reliable liver medicine which you have doubtless heard much about. When you feel badly all over, stomach not right, bad taste in your mouth, bilious, or have a headache, try Theodora's Black-Draught. At all Druggists.

THE DRAUGHT'S
BLACK-DRAUGHT

Always Insist on the Genuine!

LOVE TREE.

The love tree grows in the valley of dreams,
Under the hill of song;
Its fruit is sweet to the lips of youth,
Its roots grow deep and strong,
Its shadow is just so wide that two
Can sit 'neath its branches fair;
Together we'll flee to the true love tree
By the rosepath leading there!

Its blossoms are fragrant to breathe and pluck,
Its essence is sweeter than life;
Its evergreen shade is a beautiful glade
To hide from the fever of strife,
There are doves in its branches so constant and true,
It is beautiful just to behold
The tender devotion of hearts to one notion
In that beautiful valley of gold.

The valley of dreams and the summits of song,
Ah, sweet, let us try them again,
Down the path of the bee and the bird and the bloom
To the end of the evergreen lane,
There shall come to our cheeks as we stroll hand in hand—
Forgotten our rue and our ruth—
The old happy thoughts and the old happy words
And the old tender whispers of youth.

The path is the same that it always has been,
And the love tree still in its place,
While the songs will awake and the dreams will arise,
And the joy will come back to your face;
Your lips will grow red as they were on a time,
Rosy red as the fruits of a kiss,
And the bells will sing silver, the fields will burn gold,
And our hearts will brim over with bliss.

The love tree grows in the valley of dreams,
Under the hill of song,
The path and the shade and the joy are still there,
And the fancies, how quickly they throng!
Come back from the shadows again, hand in hand,
With youth in the soul set free,
Let us follow, dear heart, where the roses are red,
And the dream singer sings in the tree!

HAVE YOU SEEN HIM?

If You Have, Will You Be Kind Enough to Point Him Out?

The man who dresses very plain, and thinks a little with his brain, and reasons right and understands, and works a little with his hands. Who makes the Golden Rule his guide, and never gives away to pride, and sings a little every day, and takes a little time to pray; who keeps a bridle on his tongue, and says no harm of old or young, and helps no scandal on its way by telling what he's heard 'em say; whose word is equal to his bond, and goes a little way beyond, and will no confidence betray, nor act the hypocrite for pay; who rates his honor as a man as high as anybody can, and loves his wife and pays his debts, and smiles a heap and never frets—if you have seen a man like that, I wish you'd tell me where he's at, and show me how to find the place, and let me see his blessed face.

Men will do almost anything for money—some will even work.

"Prevention better than cure" applies to battery ills, too!

Get that examination NOW

IN spite of the old proverb, it is sometimes too late to mend. When plates are buckled and terminals are corroded through neglect or unusually hard service, there is little left for the battery-man to say but "New battery". Don't let it get that far. Drive around today to the Prest-O-Lite Service Station and have a thorough examination made. Some trifling fault may be uncovered now that may result disastrously if not remedied. Anyhow, find out. That's what Prest-O-Lite Service Stations are for. You will get courteous treatment and, what is even more important, honest advice. When you do need a new battery, you'll be glad to know that Prest-O-Lite is back to pre-war prices and that an allowance will be made on your old battery. Get that examination now

HER DYING MESSAGE.

Raise the window higher, mother, air can never harm me now,
Let the breeze blow in upon me, it will cool my fevered brow,
Soon death's stryge will be over, soon be stilled this aching heart,
But I have a dying message I would give before we part,
Lay my head upon your bosom, fold me closer, mother dear,
While I breathe a name long silent in thy fond and loving ear,
Mother there is one—you know him—oh, I cannot speak his name,
You remember how he sought me, how with loving words he came.

How he gained my young affections, vowing in most tender tone,
That he would forever guard me were my heari but his alone,
You remember how I trusted, how my thoughts were all of him—
Draw the curtain higher, mother, for the light is growing dim,
Need I tell you how he left me, coldly putting me aside,
How he wooed and won another and now claims her as his bride?
Life has been a weary burden since those hours of deepest woe—
Wipe these drops from my forehead, they are death marks, well I know.

Gladly I obey the summons to a bright and better land,
Where no hearts are won and broken, but all form a happy band,
Do not chide him, mother darling, though my form you see no more,
Grieve not, think me only waiting for you on the other shore,
Do not chide him, mother, darling, though you miss me at your side,
I forgive him, and I wish him joy with her so soon his bride,
Take this ring from off my finger, where he placed it long ago,
Give it to him with a blessing that in dying I bestow.

Tell him that it is a token of forgiveness and of peace—
Hark! I hear his voice; it passeth; will those watching never cease?
Hark! I hear his footsteps coming. No, 'tis but the rustling trees,
Strange how my disordered fancy caught his footfall on the breeze,
I am cold now; close the window, fold me closer—kiss me, too,
Joy! what means that burst of music? 'Tis the Saviour's voice, I know,
See Him waiting to receive me! Oh, how great a bliss to die!
Mother, meet your child in heaven, one more kiss and then—goodbye.

A BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION IS ALWAYS ADMIRER

If you take a few doses of CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS, you will see they do more to clean up the complexion than all the beauty treatments in creation. An imperfect complexion is caused by a sluggish liver. Millions of people, old, young and middle age take them for Constipation, Biliousness, Dizziness, Sick Headache, Upset Stomach and for Sallow, Pimply and blotchy Skin. These little pills eliminate all waste matter from the system, and clean up the complexion in a few weeks.
