OLD HOME TOWNS.

A Trip to the Eastern Shore of Maryland in the Counties of needs shares in her life and work. Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset.

I left Weldon Monday, May 22, for Salisbury, Maryland, via Norfolk, Old Point Comfort and Cape Charles. Having been several years since I passed through this section of Virginia and Maryland, I preferred the day trip, so spent the night in Norfolk. Promptly at 8:14 Tuesday a. m., the steamer "City of Baltimore" left the N. Y. P. & N. wharf. She steamed quietly out of this wonderful harbor, for Norfolk is well known for its extensive harbor for both foreign and domestic ships.

Just out from the harbor is the great naval base, built at at cost of several million dollars, by the United States government.

Old Point Comfort scarcely seems the same, since the hotel Chamberlain was destroyed by fire. It occupied a commanding position to sea voyages. We arrived at Cape Charles around 12 M., and were soon en route for Salisbury by rail. The N. Y. P. & N. passes through a beautiful agricultural section, potatoes being the main crop in Virginia. Pocomoke City the first stop in Maryland has recently been almost destroyed by fire.

I learned the people are already preparing to build a greater and from my old home in Worcester more modern city. From Poco moke City up to Salisbury, we pass through a wonderful trucking other portions are newer and per- breaking. Sunday dawned beauti was my good fortune to be served three times a day with some of customary for Christian people to the finest that ever graced the attend church. The chimes of Queen's table. My hostess knew the varieties by name, saying these are Chesapeake, others Gandy, etc. They all seemed very delicious to me. My stay in Salisbury was cut short by an invitation to minister in charge. It was comvisit Berlin, in Worcester county, munion day and no sermon. The costs. There were plenty of straw berries, as well as other good things in Berlin, so I hadn't lost anything in that line by the change. Automobiling in this section is up to high water mark, as the State highway connects all the principal towns and cities. Berlin is situated on the Ocean City Branch of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic railroad. It has a number childhood, where was planted in of pretty homes with spacious lawns, well kept, and one of the largest and best equipped hotels on the Eastern shore of Maryland. This is made possible by patronage from Ocean City, only eight miles distant by stone road and less by for in them we find the words of railroad. Berlin is a town of less than 1,500 inhabitants. They are also called the largest fruit tree growers in the world. It ted back to North Carolina, feeling was my privilege to drive through we had not travelled in vain part of the evergreen and shrubbery section, chaperoned by Mr. A. P. Collins, one of the mana gers, who described the planting, cultivation, etc. My host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Down ing, with their son, Paul, drove us over to Ocean City, where the surbulant Atlantic beats and washes the pebbled seashore. I was told that a dead whale measuring fiftyeight feet in length and seven feet in diameter was washed ashore a few weeks before. Many people from the neighboring towns went over to view the great "sea fish." It was too huge to be moved, so was dynamited back into the ocean to be fed on by other forms of animal life. I left Berlin for Salisbury May 29th, and arrived on time to attend commencement exercises of the Salisbury High school. Their graduating class numbered 59. They had just voted on a bond issue of $300,000 for school improvements but failed to carry. 1 am glad to note here that Weldon did not fail, but schools won out. MEETING U. D. C.

The Junius Daniel Chapter U. D. C., held their last meeting of the season on Wednesday, June 7th, at the home of Mrs. Lee Johnson. After the usual preliminary exercises, Mrs. Chittenden reported the dinner given on May 10th, as a most enjoyable event and there was no debt at all connected with it. For this the committee is entitled to many thanks. The secretary was requested to write letters of sympathy to one of the members who recently suffered a severe accident and to Dr. A. R. of Pythias.
