

BILL IS AGAINST GRAIN GAMBLING

Washington, November 4.—(AP)—A bill to prohibit grain gambling in the United States was introduced in the House today by Representative Charles C. Brannan, Democrat of Missouri.

The bill, which is known as the Grain Gambling Prohibition Act, is designed to prevent the speculation in grain futures contracts which has become a common practice in recent years. It provides that any person who engages in such speculation shall be liable to a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both.

The bill also provides that any person who aids or abets another in such speculation shall be liable to a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment for not more than two years, or both. It further provides that any person who violates the provisions of the bill shall be liable to a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than six months, or both.

The bill is expected to pass the House in the near future. It is one of the many measures which have been introduced in the House during the past few months in an effort to reform the grain market.

The bill is also expected to pass the Senate. It is one of the many measures which have been introduced in the Senate during the past few months in an effort to reform the grain market.
