

The Daily Review.

JOSH. T. JAMES, Ed. and Prop. WILMINGTON, N. C. MONDAY, AUGUST 13, 1877.

Some of the North Carolina papers have been puffing up the Georgia Convention and the Augusta Chronicle thinks that this is a case where "distance lends enchantment to the view."

Ex-Governor Hendricks, of Indiana, is now in Paris. He proposes to return to London in a few days and is in good health and spirits. Tilden and Bigelow have been made honorary members of the Reform, Athenaeum and other London clubs.

The New York Times is bitter in its denunciation of the managers and owners of the Pennsylvania coal mines. It wants the next Legislature of the State to pass laws protecting workmen from the extortions of the owners of the coal fields. The payment of the men in store orders is a villainous piece of work, and should be done away with.

It is stated that Secretary Schurz has been making an effort in the Cabinet to exclude newspaper editors and publishers from all Federal offices. If he succeeds, Uncle Hayes might as well hang up his fiddle and his bow at once, as he will thenceforth be damned with such faint praise in the South "as never was."

The theatrical and operatic session of 1877-1878 at Paris is expected to be to be one of the most brilliant ever known. The first new work to be given at the Italiens is already looked forward to with the keenest interest by all amateurs of opera, for its composer is the great Rubinstein, and its author the no less appreciated Jules Barbier. Its title is "Neron," and it is to be given with a splendor quite exceptional at the Italiens. The Grand Opera and Opera Lyrique have both a most attractive programme of novelties.

The Memphis Avalanche says of Governor Stone, of Mississippi, who has been renominated, that "he is a very careful, conservative official, who cannot be used by the extremists and may be relied on to enforce the law to the full extent of his authority. He was not a little criticized because of his apparent inactivity after the Kemper county massacre, but as a matter of fact he was powerless under the laws and could do nothing."

The increased exportation of grain from southeastern Europe is believed in London to be only temporary. Great losses have been experienced, particularly in Turkey, by a failure properly to harvest the crop, and reports already have been received from the scene of the recent campaign in Asia that famine stares the populace in the face. In view of these facts there is reason to believe that the demand for American grain, now temporarily reduced by the active competition of grain from the Black Sea region, will in the end be increased on account of the Eastern war.

Ohio's Coal Field is a district one hundred miles square, including the countries of Athens, Perry and Hocking. In fifty years it will probably equal Staffordshire or any district in the world. This district has twenty-two feet of solid coal in five seams. The great vein is in places twelve feet thick, and nowhere less than six feet. Mingled among the coal beds are inexhaustible beds of iron. The thickest is five feet at the outcrop; the thinnest, in places, six to eight inches. But the thickness of neither seam is quite persistent; there are "waves" from time to time which narrow the seam. The coal, on the contrary, may be said to run from hill to hill with perfect uniformity. Limestone is also present in any desired quantity.

HOW IT WORKS.

Secretary of the Treasury, Sherman, is Civil Service reforming in Ohio, where he will canvass for the Republican party. In the meantime, to keep up the farce, Secretary Schurz has addressed a circular letter to every employee of the Interior Department outside of the department building, enclosing the President's circular prohibiting employees from taking any active part in politics. The Secretary says it is expected that every employee will conform his condition to the requirements of the President's order. And this is the way the old thing works. Grant tried on civil service reform and things didn't work well in that line for the Republican party and hence the last end of that man was worse than the first. Mr. Hayes takes up the reins, and old John Sherman gives a toss of his bristly mane and says that such things may do well enough for some but he's a Cabinet officer, he is, and therefore, such things don't apply to him. In the meantime a few more hurrahs for Hayes, are in order in the ranks of the Hayes Democrats.

STILL PURSUING.

It was about two weeks ago, we think, that Gen. Freedmen's Bureau Howard made that sanguinary threat about Chief Joseph and his band to the effect that he had sent somebody up ahead to stop him while he was about to fall on his rear and chaw him up. In the meantime he seems to have thought better of it and to have kept a respectful distance in the rear of that rear, which he really expected to do and rarely has Gen. F. B. H. come any nearer fulfilling his promise than in this instance. But he is still faithfully following in Joseph's footsteps, his eye persistently fixed on that rear which he may never overtake, and it is probable that he will continue thus to the end of the chapter, still pursuing if not achieving, a regular Flying Dutchman on land.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11, 1877. The friends of Hon. James G. Blaine may purchase their mourning garments. The funeral will take place at an early day. This lamented gentleman died in an attempt to be two or three things at once, and a chronic inability to be anything for a length of time. His role in the Maine Republican Convention was that of a friend of peace in the party. He patronized the administration; he patronized his own friends; he denounced his own friends; and he denounced the administration. He wished to make the State and country believe that the Republican party existed by his permission. He will not persuade anybody that this is so, and the attempt displays more plainly than anything heretofore has done the inordinate self conceit of the man. He has lost friends and gained enemies. For the first time in years there is a Republican party in Maine. The Blaine party is dead.

The Democratic Convention in Virginia nominated for Governor Col. Holliday, of Winchester, this being the result of a combination against Daniels, who was put forward, somewhat ostentatiously, perhaps, as the one candidate who believed in the full payment of the State debt. As this subject of debt was the one of principal interest, I give the resolution of the Convention concerning it:

While the Conservative party is true to the past glorious history of Virginia and proud of her good name and fame amongst the nations of the earth, would scorn to repudiate her just obligations, and are resolved to preserve inviolate the public faith and credit, yet we cannot but view with concern and anxiety the accumulations of our financial difficulties and increasing weight of our public debt. We earnestly urge on the legislative and executive branches of the government the importance of using all just and honorable means of bringing about an adjustment of the obligations of the Commonwealth which will bring the payment of interest upon our entire indebtedness within the resources of the State derived from the present rate of taxation, and do justice to all classes of creditors.

Secretary McCrary, the Granger of the Cabinet, has a plan for putting the railroads of the country under government control, a "Commission" being the medium through which the roads shall be regulated. This, like a thousand of other schemes of men to extend the scope of national legislation, looks to a large increase in government patronage and the number of government officers, and has a direct tendency towards centralizing power in the National Capital. There never could be a greater mistake than this, and probably Secretary McCrary will receive scant support in his effort.

Major Ben. P. Hunkle, U. S. A., Brevet Brigadier General, who was cashiered some five years ago, and whose case has been under investigation in Congress and elsewhere, during all that time, has, as the result of such investigation, been entirely cleared of the charges on which he was tried. President Hayes, taking the same view of the case as the military committees of the Senate and House did, and supported by an elaborate opinion of the Judge Advocate General, has just disapproved the findings and sentence of the court-martial which tried Maj. Hunkle, thus restoring a gallant officer to the service. Hunkle served with distinction as a volunteer during the war.

Fears have been excited by indiscreet persons that the strikes of a few weeks since would soon be revived. There seems to be no good reason to believe this, though the government is using every caution to prevent further violence.

Moody and Sankey will here this winter at the urgent solicitation of the Clergy. They will divide their time between this city and Baltimore. As a result of Major Runkle's restoration to service, mentioned in this letter, the President is receiving numerous requests from dismissed officers, that their cases may be re-opened. It is not likely action will be taken by the President in any of them. He, indeed, has no authority to do so. But for a defect in the approval of Major Runkle's sentence, the President would have had no power to relieve him, though thoroughly convinced of his innocence. Where all the proceedings of a court martial are regular, and the approval of the sentence is by competent authority, the only chance for relief is in an act of Congress.

To Render the Liver Active. When that important secretive gland requires arousing, it is only requisite to resort to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the national remedy for inactivity of the billious organ, for constipation, and for dyspepsia, besides those malarious disorders to which torpidity of the liver predisposes a person. Far more surely does this celebrated anti-billious cordial accomplish a curative result than mercury or any other mineral drug used to cure liver disorders. In fact, such medicaments cannot fairly be called remedies, since, although they may have a temporary effect, they eventually fail to influence the system remedially, but instead often do it serious injury. The Bitters, on the contrary, are a specific of the most salutary nature, and are likewise reliable and agreeable tonic, appetizer and nerve.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY. AN UNRIVALED ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE. When Scribner issued his famous Midsummer Holiday Number in July, a friendly critic said of it: "We are not sure but that Scribner has touched high-water mark. We do not see what worlds are left to it to conquer." But the publishers do not consider that they have reached the ultima thule of excellence; they believe "there are other worlds to conquer, and they propose to conquer them." The prospectus for the new volume gives the titles of more than fifty papers (mostly illustrated), by writers of the highest merit. Under the head of "Foreign Travel," we have "A winter on the Nile," by Gen. McClellan; "Saunterings About Constantinople," by Charles Dudley Warner; "Out of My Window at Moscow," by Eugene Schuyler; "An American in Turkistan," etc. Three serial stories are announced: "Nicholas Minturn," by Dr. Holland, the Editor, whose story of "Sevenoaks" gave the highest satisfaction to the readers of the Monthly. The scene of this latest novel is laid on the banks of the Hudson. The hero is a young man who has been always "tied to a woman's apron strings," but who, by the death of his mother, is left alone in the world,—to drift on the current of life,—with a fortune, but with no other purpose. Another serial, "His Inheritance," by Miss Trafton will begin on the completion of "That Lass of Lowrie's," by Mrs. Hodgson Burnett. Mrs. Barrett's story, begun in August, has a pathos and dramatic power which have been a surprise to the public. There are to be, from various pens, papers on "Home Life and Travel." Also, practical suggestions as to town and country life, village improvements, etc., by well-known specialists. Mr. Barnard's articles on various industries of Great Britain include the history of "Some Experiments in Co-operation," "A Steam Locomotive," in the November number, and "Toad Lane, Rochdale," in December. Other papers are, "The British Workingman's Home," "A Nation of Shopkeepers," "Half-penny Week for the Child," etc. A richly illustrated series will be given on "American Sports by Flood and Field," by Thomas W. Higginson, each on a different theme. The subject of "Household and Home Decoration" will have a prominent place, whilst the latest productions of American humorists will appear from month to month. The list of shorter stories, Biographical and other sketches, etc., is a long one. The editorial department will continue to employ the ablest pens both at home and abroad. There will be a series of letters on literary matters, from London, by Mr. Welford. The pages of the magazine will be open, as heretofore, so far as limited space will permit, to the discussion of all themes affecting the social and religious life of the world, and specially to the freshest thought of the Christian thinkers and scholars of this country. We mean to make the magazine sweeter and purer, higher and nobler, more genial and generous in all its utterances and influences, and a more welcome visitor than ever before in homes of refinement and culture.
