Mukhtar l'asha's official despatch explains that the battle fought on Tuesday near Aladja Daga was caused by an attempt by the Russians to surprise a corps of observation which he had posted at Kozkan to cover the concentration of his forces at Aldja Daga. Fighting With Revenue Officers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11-Collector Scott of the Sixth North Carolina District, sends to the Commissioner of Revenue a report of a raid in Burke county, in his district. Five revenue officials started from Morgantor on the evening of the 1st instant, to seize several illicit stills in the South und 4-4 Fine Sea Island Cotton 8c. | Mountains, about sixteen miles from Morgantown. Arriving early on the 2d., they found three distilleries operating illicitly, all of which, with caps and worms complete, were captured and taken to Morganton. A sea ch in the vicinity discovered about sixty gallons of whiskey and two barrels of brandy, all unstamped. Two persons, who were found in the still house, were arrested. While searching the vicinity fire was opened upon the revenue officers by persons concealed in the bushes and behind trees. The number of assailants is estimated at twelve. They were armed with rifles. The officers retreated with their prisoners and captured property down the mountain, being met at every turn of the rough road by the attacking party, who, out of sight and range of the offiders' pistols, kept up a persistent fire. All the officers excepting one were hit with bullets, and deputy Collector Gillespie, who was at the head of the party, was seriously wounded. A horse ridden by one of the party was killed early in the day, and another was severely wounded. The region raided is notoriously a dangerous one, and the inhabitants are unscrupulous desperadoes, all interested in illicit distilling. In a neighboring township the same officers, while in the performance of their duty about two weeks ago, were shot at from behind shelter.

For the Review. The Old Legend.

MR. EDITOR:

In your columns of yesterday's Raview you made a mistake in locating the legendary Rock Spring. The old and original locality was near the foot of Chestnut street, about twenty yards due south of the pre-ent so-called Rock Spring.

Fifty years ago this spring was an unfailing stream and gushed forth from beneath a large shelving rock which partly protected it from the sun's rays; it is true that there was then, is now, a delightful ap of water as stated near the present site of the Cotton Press, and the walk along the river bank was much frequented as a afforded a delightful premenade. The road for a quarter of a mile in length formed a complete alcove by the intertwining of the branches of trees which grew on either side, and it was certainly a most delightful retreat where grew the wild rose and the honeysuckle and where love-sick swains breathed into willing cars the story of their love.
