

VIEWES AND REVIEW.

Mrs. Emma D. E. N. Southworth is at work on her sixtieth novel. Truth is stranger than fiction, but there's less of it.

Garibaldi still wears his old red shirt, or at least one just like it. He wore it when making a call on King Humbert the other day.

The Prince Imperial, it is said, will fill a diary with his South African experience, and print it in parts in a Paris and London newspaper.

Senator Wade Hampton, it is said, does not look at all like an invalid, but strong and bluff, as he sits in the Senate with his crutches laid under his chair.

Conkling stood up in the Senate for three hours bagging away without mercy at the Rebel Brigadiers. When the ambulance corps arrived there were no dead or wounded on the field. Conkling's is an air gun which fires blank cartridges.

Texas is the third sheep State in the Union. California ranks highest, next Ohio and then Texas. It is only twenty years since George Wilkins Kendall, of the New Orleans Figaro, introduced sheep husbandry into the Lone Star State.

Miss Clara Morris grew green with envy when she heard that some one had had a shot at Booth with a pistol. Her cerebro-spinal disease has grown worse and her husband has hired a man to play on her with a Gatling gun the next time she appears upon the stage.

The Painfore fever has finally struck the colored population. A troupe of genuine colored people are playing Painfore, not as a burlesque, but as an opera, at the Globe Theatre, New York. The 'Josephine' is as black as the ace of spades and the 'Admiral' is a milafato.

Logan relieves the Confederacy of considerable shame and disgrace by denying that he ever raised three regiments for service in the Southern army. The thought that such a blatherskite as Logan had ever even sympathized with the Confederacy would be enough to humble us all in the dust.—Atlanta Constitution.

In digging an excavation in a street of St. Paul workmen unearthed a silver chalice and a paten of a style not used in the Roman Catholic Church for 200 years. It is supposed that they belonged to Father Hennepin, the pioneer missionary of Minnesota, who was captured by the Indians near the Mississippi River about 200 years ago.

The Consolidated Company of Philadelphia proposed to do away with the entire jobbing trade in that city, and bring retail merchants into direct communication with manufacturers. This would result, the prospectus said, in a large gain to the retailers, who would be required to pay only $25 each as initiation. The Philadelphia Times says that the Consolidated Company consists of H. B. Hershberger, who has been once prosecuted for obtaining money by false pretences.

The Prince Imperial of Russia is very liberal in his sentiments, and has been charged by the Czar with affiliation with the Constitutional party. He recently declined to accept the position of President of the Secret Police Department because he did not want to stain his hands with the blood of the Nihilists. It is possible that when the Prince Imperial comes to the throne he may take the lead in promoting the establishment of a Constitutional monarchy with a Parliament and a responsible ministry. It is the only thing which will save the Romanoff-Holstein dynasty.

According to the Figaro, when M. Thiers died he left behind him a scientific work which was to fill the world with wonder and admiration. However, before handing the manuscript to the printer, Mme. Thiers confided it to an eminent professor, who immediately proceeded to study it attentively. His verdict was fatal, and he had to perform the painful duty of breaking to Mme. Thiers the fact that the deceased statesman's work was filled with long-explored scientific heresies. Under these circumstances [Mme. Thiers is said to have deemed it prudent not to publish the manuscript.

The new German tariff is simple and sweeping. It taxes everything by weight silk, milk, oil, iron and the rest, making only the most general distinction in the grades of articles taxed. The rate fixed is high, particularly on iron, steel and textile fabrics, but the greatest increase of revenue is expected from petroleum, on which the rate is doubled, and tea and coffee. Among American imports on which duties are levied, besides petroleum, are grain, a new duty, cheese and all provisions. The tariff has passed the federal council, but has not been voted on by the Reichstag.

GRANT AND THE N. Y. TIMES.

The New York Times is worrying itself very needlessly, we think, over the prospective nomination of General Grant as the Republican candidate for the Presidential race of 1890. It does not want him to be the nominee of the party, but if he should be the choice of the Convention, will accept him with the best grace possible. It deprecates the possibility of his nomination, but will accept the fact of the Convention. Like the sick urchin, he, under compulsion, swallows a dose while he would much more willingly strangle the physician who prescribes and the nurse who administers it.

There are many more Republican newspapers in the country which are in the same unpleasant predicament. The number which are loud and determined in keeping the Grant movement "booming" is comparatively small, but they are zealous in their efforts. They work persistently, in season and out of season.

Notwithstanding the noise and bluster made concerning Grant, we are not disposed to think that a very large proportion of the acknowledged leaders in the Republican party—men of prominence and influence in their ranks and in the country—would be willing to see him their standard bearer in the coming campaign. If he should be nominated, they might give a sullen acquiescence, but we are confident that they will use their utmost endeavors and influence to prevent such a consummation. The reasons are manifold and obvious.

In the Republican party there are a score or more of men of prominence and ability with aspirations for the Presidency. They have shown their devotion to the party by a lifetime of hard service and have established their intellectual ability in many a hard fought field of debate. These will not willingly see one who has already been so highly honored take again the position for which they have so long, patiently and earnestly labored. While they think that Grant has been already honored sufficiently they feel that they have not been properly appreciated, and an influence will be made manifest before the convention assembles which may very effectually place him upon the political shelf. The "fuss and feathers" which now agitates the minds of his party friends have a certain significance, but is of little importance as showing the strength which other aspirants can bring into the field. The ostentation with which it is in contemplation to receive him on his return to the United States, while it will demonstrate who are his especial champions and devotees, will not betray the power which will oppose his nomination. It is too early in the day for the principal aspirants to develop their forces, but in due season they will be developed in such power as to make the Grant "hullabaloo" a complete "fizzle." Undoubtedly his name will be brought before the Convention and a shadow of support given him, but it will be more complimentary, for he stand not the ghost of a chance for the nomination.

Of those in civil life who have earnest aspirations, we assume that Blaine, although one of the principal, has no better chance than Grant. He has been completely squelched, and by members of his own party. His name will be brought before the Convention, with some show of strength, but it will avail him nothing. Hayes has hopes, but they are as the hopes of pardon to the man convicted of murder and sentenced to be hung. Sherman will be in the field with a powerful influence in his favor, and were it not for one or two obstacles, he would be the candidate. He is a man of great ability, a shrewd politician and has no very conscientious scruples as to the means to be employed to secure the ends he desires to attain. Did he live in any other State than Ohio, his nomination would be almost a foregone conclusion. As it is, the people have tired of the "Ohio idea," and think also that that State has had enough honors bestowed upon it already, and that some other should now be acknowledged. These obstacles he will find it hard to surmount. Conkling may be the man upon whom the nomination will finally be bestowed. His recent speech, while it ostensibly favors Grant, is a bid for himself, and it has been effective. We believe that he would prefer Grant to any of the others we have named, but, with the record he has made and the influence he wields, he will take special care that Grant shall not stand in the way of his ambitious aims.

Epsom, the scene of Parole's victory, within an hour's ride by rail from London, and is a bright, busy little town. "The Downs," on which the famous races are run, are within a quarter of a mile's walk of a hill, on the summit of which stands the Darpans, Lord Rosebery's seat, commanding a view of the town on one side and the full sweep of the Downs on the other. It contains many rare and valuable pictures of winners in the Olympian games. Thence you descend to the grand stand, passing the celebrated Tattenham corner where the real struggle is begun. The Downs, save when they catch animation from race crowds, are a dreary waste.

AT WASHINGTON.

The situation of affairs remains the same at Washington City. The Democrats of both the Senate and House campaigned yesterday, but not conjointly, and the proceedings were kept so strictly private that no indications of the result could be obtained by correspondents. It is only believed that the report of the deliberations of the joint committee was presented and rejected, but this is the merest surmise. It is not easy to locate the attitude of our Senators and Representatives, and, until the decision of the caucus is announced, all speculations relative thereto are idle.

A WAIL FROM WYANDOTTE. At Wyandotte, where so many of the so-called refugees have landed, a large number of citizens, including the country and town officials and prominent merchants, published a protest, in which they "denounce those who are encouraging these people to come to Kansas as really their worst enemies, whatever their intention may be," and "call upon humane and reflecting people everywhere to use their best efforts to check this disastrous movement on the part of the negro population." The protest says: "Over a thousand paupers have within a brief space of time been thrown into a town of about 5,000 people, who are unable to properly provide for their wants. These people are possessed of the most visionary ideas concerning what they must confront by coming to Kansas. Their sole idea seems to be to go West where government land can be occupied, but they are wholly destitute of means to improve or sustain themselves until they can cultivate a crop. Go where they will in Kansas, they must be provided for, or they will perish. We have reliable information that thousands more are coming. Also, the situation will soon be aggravated by the deuced, helpless and ignorant negroes who are thus blindly rushing to Kansas. The Mayor of Wyandotte has issued the following proclamation: To any and all Steamboat Lines and other Transportation Companies: Gentlemen: Allow me to state to you, most respectfully, but most emphatically, that at the city of Wyandotte will hold all boats, offices, agents, or any other persons who may be concerned in importing destitute persons to our shores, to the strictest legal consequences and penalties of the law attaching to such offenses.

THE RUSSIAN NIHILISTS. An exchange says the doctrines held by the Russian Socialists, Propaganda, associated with freshness in some extracts published by the Krymski Distok. The following are passages from the Export: (Forward): "Republican ideas are a chimera. Garibaldi and Felix Pyat are behind the age." "The burning of Paris by the Commune in 1871 threw a ray of light on the future; but the Commune took no decisive step; it only imposed a task on the social revolution which it had not the courage to achieve itself. The new Socialist school will not restrict itself of the 'half measures of the Commune'; it will not shrink from any amount of severity," and will wage "a merciless war against society"—"a war of plunder, incendiarism, and assassination." The Nabat (Alarm Bell) preaches, "the annihilation of middle-class society, and the burial of the Old World beneath its ruins." "The institution of the family is to be destroyed, the right of property abolished, religion ignored, and even liberty disregarded as an empty question." According to the Narodnaya Raspravva (National Execution), the Socialists will "come forward with arms in their hands to execute all hangmen, traders, and landed proprietors; will 'spread terror among all of different opinions from themselves;' and will 'destroy everything—persons, things or circumstances—that disturb the work. Those who are not with us are against us, and must fall under the bullets of our revolvers."

MUNSHINE. It does not follow that women are obnoxious or blacksmiths because they are good hands to shoo hens.—Rome Sentinel. "Now, Willie," said his anxious mother, "how did you get that big dab of molasses on your best jacket? 'Oh, sirup-tiously, ma,' and his peculiar wink saved him a boxed ear.—New Haven Register. Old Bus Driver.—"Now, there's a lot of nice girls in this 'ouse 'ere of the old side, sir. Their ma dresses 'em out, their pa drives 'em out, and I brings 'em down young men of a Sunday, you see, and yet they don't seem to go off, somehow.—London Punch.

Now clean up the rubbish about your premises and dispose of it by tossing it over into your neighbor's yard. He may not ask you to do this, but don't let his modesty stand in the way of a manifest favor.—Waterloo Observer. Down through celestial rafters came A spattering of wet. As April clouds the window flung Of heaven's drench and dust. A little boy looked up, and said: As sober as a deacon. "I guess it's angel wash," he said. And as the rays of heaven shined, He said: "It's the Lord's Blessing."

The Blessing of Strong Nerves

Is recoverable, not by the use of mineral sedatives, but by a recourse to emulsa tonic treatment. Opiate and the like should only be used as auxiliaries, and then as sparingly as possible. Strong nerves are quiet pace, and the mind direct way to render them so is to reinforce the vital energies. This sterling ingredient, Hoxley's Stomach Bitters, will be found all-sufficient for this purpose, since it removes impediments to thorough digestion and assimilation of the food, so that the body is insured its due amount of nourishment, and consequently of stamina. Rheumatic tendencies and affections of the kidneys and bladder are also counteracted by the Bitters, which besides a pleasant medicinal stimulant, infinitely purer than raw excitants of commerce, which react injuriously upon the nervous system.
