SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1878.

[ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C., AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.]

VEWS AND REVIEWS.

Oranges, lemons, olives, and almonds are to be cultivated in Florida soon by a large number of Italian colonists, on their way to that State.

As a rule neither the German army nor the Austrian carries tents. At the nightly peril of their health the soldiers bivouac. Last year, in Bosnia, the Austrians suffered terribly.

Wealthy beggars are becoming quite common in New York. An old woman mendicant was arrested on Sunday last whose bank book showed the sum of $50,000 to her credit.

The fiftieth anniversary of Belgian independence will be celebrated next year, at Brussels, by an industrial exhibition. An appropriation of 2,000,000 francs has been made for preliminary expenses.

There has been a remarkable revival of wheat growing in the States east of the Mississippi—Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, the Virginias, &c., and also in Missouri. The immense yield of this year is largely owing to this fact.

It is said that over fifteen miles of the Utah and Northern Railway will have to be built through lava beds, and it will be necessary to blast the rocks nearly all the distance in order to bring the bed of the track to a proper level.

It will make the eyes of old fishermen glisten to read of a remarkable haul of blue fish off Westhampton, L. I., last Saturday, when no less than twenty tons were secured. The fish ranged in weight from five pounds upward.

Great opposition is being manifested in the Austrian dominions to the introduction of American meat of all kinds. The Government has not prohibited the importation, but the local producers claim that the American article is rotten with worms.

San Antonio, Texas, has a flourishing woolen mill, which turns out excellent casimere cloths at exceedingly low prices as the wool is clipped from herds of sheep feeding in the immediate neighborhood. Texas is also rapidly putting up cotton factories in order to utilize her superabundant cotton crops.

Gambetta, since he became a prophet has become less of a demagogue and more of a diner. He has his oyster beds in his palace gardens, like the famous Lucullus and like another famous gourmand of the classic cut, he has different dining rooms for different grades. His cook receives $4,000 a year, and is a miracle of genius and skill.

The Afghan army to oppose General Roberts at Cabul consists of fourteen regiments numbering twelve thousand men. There are, besides, a thousand horse and five hundred of the Ameer's body guard who deserted their master at the start of the mutiny. In Herat there are eighteen battalions and sixty cannon. The present leader and the prime instigator of the outbreak is a former Grand Vizier of Sber Ali, a Persian by birth.

A young couple in humble life were going through the usual civil matrimonial forms a few days ago before the Mayor of one of the arrondissements of Paris. 'The woman is everywhere to follow her husband,' said the functionary, reciting the usual formula. 'I decline to promise that,' said the bride with great decision. 'What do you mean,' inquired the Mayor. 'My husband, sir, is a letter carrier in the suburbs,' replied the cautious creature, in a mincing tone.

Brazil is about to send envoys to China for a supply of coolies. Slave labor is not so profitable since the late famine has considerably reduced the population; in some provinces the country is not suited to a European emigration, and unless a supply of good labor can be obtained from some quarter the Brazilian revenues seem likely to fall off. It is quite probable that the Chinese may find not only in Brazil, but throughout South America, the outlet they need for their surplus population.

The Indian Princess Monica, daughter of Spotted Tail, the Sioux chief, fell in love with an army officer at Fort Laramie, and plainly told him so. He informed her that he was engaged to marry a girl in Ohio but she persistently followed him, until her father removed her to a distant camp. There she died of grief, after directing that her body be buried on the spot where she had first met the officer. This story is told by Chaplain Alexander Wright, who was at the time on duty at Fort Laramie.

THE OUTLOOK IN OHIO.

Only three days more and then all of the doubts, the hopes and the expectations in regard to Ohio will be solved. At this writing no man can tell anything with certainty. The arguments of fact having been exhausted it would seem that every body is now running a brag game. The situation is thus carefully summarized by the Washington Post of yesterday's date: Ohio is in a fog. A cloud of doubt has settled down upon the State, which so entirely obscures the result of the political contest now being waged that it can neither be guessed at nor approximated to. We have really nothing to do but to settle quietly down and await the returns.

The work of the next three days will probably decide the matter. As it stands now, Ewing is as likely to be elected as Foster and Foster is as likely to be elected as Ewing. The Democratic campaign managers profess themselves confident that their ticket will succeed. The Republicans claim 10,000 majority for Foster. In the proportion that the assertion of the Democrats is more reasonable than that of the Republicans, it is entitled to greater respect. As a matter of fact, however, there does not exist, there cannot exist, any definite foundation for either advance statement. All that may now be said with truth concerning this Buckeye fight is that its outcome is as uncertain as it is possible for it to be.

The Democrats base their hope of success upon the large acquisition of voting strength which Gen. Ewing will receive from the Greenback party, the support which both Gen. Ewing and Gen. Rice will doubtless attract from the soldiers and the very general spirit of dissatisfaction which prevails among the Stalwarts or Grant Republicans. The Greenback vote last year amounted to 38,000. It is confidently expected that two thirds of this will go to Ewing this fall. Foster is likely to get between 1,000 and 2,000 of these votes, and the balance, it is considered, will be cast for the Communist candidate Piatt. The total vote in Ohio in 1878 was 589,090. It was thus divided: Barnes (Republican), 274,120; Paige (Democrat), 270,966; Roy (Greenback), 38,822; Robinson (Prohibitionist), 5,682. Barnes' plurality was 3,154, his minority 40,850. This year it is expected the total vote will reach 650,000. Proceeding upon the basis that the party lines being strictly drawn upon both the Democratic and the Republican sides, the increase this fall will be divided proportionately, we then have as the vote, in round numbers, of the respective candidates this year: Foster (Republican), 303,000; Ewing (Democrat), 299,000; Piatt (Greenback), 42,000; Stewart (Prohibitionist), 6,000. Subtracting from the Greenback vote the two-thirds (28,000) conceded to Ewing and the 2,000 allotted to Foster, and adding, the probable vote stands: Ewing, 327,000; Foster, 305,000; Piatt, 12,000, and Stewart, 6,000. These figures are significant, but they can hardly be said to be based upon a political rock of Gibraltar. The increased vote may be divided in a manner more unfavorable to the Democrats. Ewing's Greenback vote may turn out to be considerably less than 28,000. And yet a possible plurality of 22,000 ought to be difficult to get over.

On the Republican side, it is claimed that Foster will gain at least 12,000 votes on Ewing on the prospective increase, while not less than 10,000 hard-money Democrats will scratch Ewing and vote for Foster. This would make the figures stand: Foster, 321,000; Ewing, 311,000, with Piatt and Stewart as before, Foster's plurality being 10,000. Viewing the opposite side in this case also there would seem to be no reasonable foundation for the hope that 10,000, or even 1,000 Democrats will repudiate Ewing. And for the claim that Foster will gain largely on the whole vote in the increase, there is even less reason.

The election takes place next Tuesday. Until its result is made known those interested in the contest will have to content themselves with weighing these conflicting assertions and taking their choice.

ENGLISH EMIGRATION.

On the 9th instant 267 farmers, with their wives and families, sailed from Liverpool, England, for New Orleans, from whence they will proceed to Texas, where they will locate and engage in agricultural pursuits. They are represented as being persons of considerable means, and will bring money enough to supply their needs until they can become firmly established in their new homes. It is stated that many other English families intend to follow as soon as circumstances will permit, being satisfied that the agriculturists of the old world have no competition with those of this country.

It is evident that within the next decade the immigration from Europe will be larger than has ever occurred during a like period heretofore. And it is also evident that a larger proportion of those who shall seek a new home on our shores will turn their steps towards the Southern portion of the country in quest of suitable sites upon which to locate. While the vast and fertile Northwest has absorbed the most of those who have heretofore settled in the country, and probably will continue to draw from the Scandinavian population of continental Europe, the English and others would prefer a milder climate, will seek the fertile valleys and hills and more genial and salubrious atmosphere of the South.

MOONSHINE.

No matter how much a candidate wishes for office, he never likes to be scratched.—Syracuse Herald.

'Will you have some more beans' Johnny? 'No.' 'No what?' 'No beans.' said Johnny, solemnly, pretending not to understand what is desired.

'Buy a trunk, Pat?' said a dealer. 'And what for should I buy a trunk?' rejoined Pat. 'To put your clothes in' was the reply. 'And go naked?' exclaimed Pat; 'not a bit of it.'

Professor—'What is the fundamental condition of existence?' Student—'Time.' Professor—'How do you explain that?' Student—'Very easily. How can a person exist if he hasn't the time for it?'

A young man went into a restaurant the other day, and, remarking that 'Time is money,' added that as he had a half an hour to spare, if the proprietor was willing, he'd take it out in pie.—N. Y. News.

A Milwaukee girl suffering from lockjaw was left alone with a mouse by a shrewd physician, and she contrived to open her mouth enough to give a yell that made the crockery in the china-closet rattle.—Boston Post.

A bald-headed professor, reproving a youth for the exercise of his fists said: 'We fight with our heads at this college.' The young man reflected a moment 'Ah, I see; and you butted all your hair off.'

Bogus Certificates.

It is no vile drugged stuff, pretending to be made of wonderful foreign roots, barks, &c., and puffed up by long bogus certificates of pretended miraculous cures, but a simple, pure, effective medicine, made of well known valuable remedies, that furnishes its own certificates by its cures. We refer to Hop Bitters, the purest and best medicine.—Exchange. See another column.
