WILMINGTON, N. C.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1879.

[ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C., AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER, 1

THE SITUATION.

Sufficient returns have now been received to show that the Democratic party has been defeated in New York. Alonzo B. Cernell, who was considered unfit and unworthy to hold a position under the government in 'the custom house, and who was unceremoniously ejected from that position because of his unfitness, has been elected Governor of the State, and the very powers that were used to re move him from the former have been taxed to their utmost to place him in the latter. He was good enough, in the opinion of the administration, to be the Governor of the great and sovereign State of New York, although he was entirely unfitted to be Collector of the Port of New York city. Of such is R. B. Hayes and his cabinet.

The defeat of the Democracy, however, may not be mainly attributed to the as sistance given by the administration to the opposition, nor to the numerical superiority of the latter, but to a fratrici dal strife in its own ranks, which diverted the votes, that would have elected the Democratic candidate triumphantly, John Kelly, many candidate. It was result of a war between Tammany and the regular nominee of the party, or rather, of an enmity between John Kelly, the chief of the Tammany organization, and Samuel J. l'ilden. It was come in some degree the Democratic disthe nomination of Robinson was at the instigation and through the influence of made use of any pretext to bolt and repudiate the acts of the convention and announce a ticket of their own. The result has been disaster in its every feature. It has not only been a present disaster to the Democratic party, but it has strangled for wer the future influence, for good or evil, of John Kelly and Tammany Hall and completely squelched the last lingering hope of Tilden for the Presidency. (f such is John Kelly and Samuel J. lilde .

The recent Republican victory in Ohio by which a gallant Democratic soldier was defeated by one who took every mean advantage afforded by the war to a mass wealth, at a remote and safe disstance from the smoke and din and dangers of the battle field, together with the large Republican gains made in other States, which are demonstrated by the elections of the 4th inst, should open the eyes of the Democracy to a complete view of the situation. New York has repudiated Tilden, and the influence of that once all powerful man has gone forever. Ohio has repudiated Senator Thurman, to whom the Democratic party is under the most profound obligations, and has at the same time declared by its acts that the most brilliant record of the soldier has no claim upon public suffrage to compare with those of a partisan civilian. The election of Foster, the money-making shopkeeper during the war, over Ewing, with an untarnished military record, may be so far taken as an index of the popular mind as to show that gallantry in the battle field has but little weight in the election of officers to fill important public positions. Of such is popular nothern this sentiments.

With these facts made apparent, the Democracy is forewarned of what would prove a suicidal policy. It is not enough that a man should have been a good, faithful, hard working and efficient Dem ocrat, nor is it enough that added to these he should have been a gallant soldier in the late war. These have all received the stamp of condemnation by the recent elections, and it would be worse than folly not to acknowledge the fact, however unpalatable it may be. It matters not how just are the claims of an individual, nor how much they are entitled to recognition and reward, the success of the party must rise above every other consideration. Personal favoritism and personal worth must not outweigh the chances of success. No person should be named in the convention which assembles to nominate the Democratic can didate for the next Presidency, upon whom any State has set its seal of condemnacion, no matter what his services may have been, nor how deserving he may be.

The delegates to the next Democratic National Convention should assemble with no other object in view than to make a ticket upon which every voter in the party throughout the country, North or South, East or West, may cordially, and earnestly unite Such a man is Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware, and we firmly believe, if his name is placed at the head of the Democratic standard in the commodations for all wishing to call and compaign of 1880, that he will unite see him. Medicine sent to any address.

every discordant element in the ranks of the party, and the battle will be fought with the assurance of success. He, better than any other man, can lead the party to victory. And of such are the sentiments of the people.

THE LOUISIANA CAMPAIGN. Senator Kellogg had an interview recently with Secretary Evants on the subject of Louisiana politics. He made a very pressing request of Mr. Evarts to come to Louisiana next month and speak in the campaign. He told Mr. Evarts that there was no doubt the Republicans would carry Louisiana if proper efforts was made with funds and speakers. Mr. Evarts said he would like very much to go to Louisiana and would do so if he could make his arrangements. The Repul- a committee of Louisiana have described to invite Blaine, Garfield and twentyor more prominent Republicans to take part in the campaign, and some of them will be requested to stay there until the election is over and the votes

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 4, 1879. The campaign which ends to-day is very important, both in itself, and because of its influence on the Presidential election of 1880 At this writing only guesses can be made. There is to say the least a chance that New York, the most influential of States, will so vote as to overunderstood by Kelly and his faction that appointment at the result in Maine, California and Ohio.

The most noticeable feature of the campaign has been the difference in the Tilden, and having that idea in view they number of the speakers for the two parties. In the West very able Democrats took the stump, but made few speeches. In the East even less was done. On the other side every body was speaking whose speech was supposed to worth hearing. That phenomenal stump-speaker, Senator Blaine, was everywhere. Conkling, Evarts, Sherman; Chandler-the very ablest men of the party-were in the field. Even Gen. Grant's coming back was so termed as to make him a reason for radical success. The speaking honors of the campaign' were unquestionably Senator Blaine's. He reclaimed his own State, almost hopelessly lost as it was, through the imbecility or dishonesty of minor rad ical politicians and he was received with unequalled favor alike in Ohio, Iowa and New York city. Beyond question the events of the last three months have greatly improved the Senator's chances for the Republican nomination. When a man is received in three representative States with greater honor than their own most eminent men, such recognition must be taken as having much significance

> Senator Chandler died on Saturday last. He had excellect impulses and good sound sense. He had no better understanding of our form of government, probably, than his youngest grandson has, and perhaps for that reason bis idea on the subject attracted much attention He was the embodiment of machine politics was extremely liberal in giving for partisan purposes, and when in authority insisted that those under him should give also. He had of late been mentioned as the probable candidate for Vice President, if Grant should take the head of the Republican ticket. When Secretary Sherman pays regularly the government obligations which accrue every month, his monthly statements of reduction in the public debt will have more value than they now possess. The alleged reduction for October is ten millions, but officers of a dozen saving banks are in the penitentiary to-day for statements not as false as

Mr Hayes does well in naming a day on which the people shall render thanks. He selects Thursday, the 27th of this month, and I suppose the Governors of all the States and Terri ories will unite Bagging, Ties, Twineon that day,

The War Department is certainly doing 1000 all it can to prevent a great Indian war, and will probably make such a display 3500 Bundles New TIES, of force as to compel peace, but Gen Sherman is not confident. At least, he freely expresses uneasiness as to the events of the Lext few weeks.

One day last week a report was sent here that the required depth was not being maintained by Capt. Eads through the South Pass of the Mississippi. It happened, however, that the regular dispatches from New Orleans on the same day reported the safe and easy passage of the etties by the largest vessel that ever left New Orleans. This was a practical demonstration of the untruthfulness of the complaint against the jetties. GURDGE
