JOSH. T. JAMES, Editor & Prop. WILMINGTON, N. C.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C., AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1879.

VEWS AND REVIEWS.

The new Georgia State flag consists of a perpendicular blue bar from top to bottom, next to the staff, and three horizontal bars, red, white, and red.

In Paris kitchen utensils used by all hotels, restaurants, confectioners, &c., are periodically inspected by public officers, with a view to saving the public from poisoned pies, &c.

It is marvellous what awful shocks the British Constitution has survived. 'My lords,' said Lord Chancellor Eldon, 'if you abolish the ancient pastime of cockfighting you will sap the foundation of the Constitution and endanger the stability of the throne.'

It is expensive work to sue and be beaten in an English court. Labouchere has to go to jail for his libel on Editor Lawson, of the London Telegraph, as the Court of Queen's Bench refused his application for an injunction on Thursday, but the application costs Labouchere $4,000.

Forty-four and four-tenths per cent. of the white people who took the yellow fever during the late epidemic in Memphis are said to have died; of the black people 16 6/10 per cent. died. There were altogether 1,637 cases of fever and 487 deaths, a total death percentage of 31 6/10.

Spain has 92 dukes, 865 marquises, 632 counts, 92 viscounts, 98 barons. The whole number of persons bearing the title of duke, marquis, earl, viscount, baron and lord in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is somewhere about 900, but of these only some 400 have seats in the House of Lords. Most of the rest bear merely courtesy titles.

A Charleston correspondent of the News & Courier reports large losses through sharp competition in the cotton trade of that city. He is satisfied that Charleston has lost from Elberton, Athens, Spartanburg, Greenville, Opeka, Mulberry, LaGrange, West Point and Newnan fully 30,000 bales of cotton this season; and from Winnsboro, Blackstocks, White Oak, Chester, Yorkville, Rock Hill and Charlotte from 10,000 to 15,000 more.

There is a heavy boom in petroleum, which has advanced prices in the oil regions from 7 1/2 cents to $1.20 a barrel within about a week, and some operators are predicting a further rise to $2. There were 11,860 producing wells at the close of October, but though that was an increase of 100 wells, the month's flow fell off 2,652 barrels a day as compared with September. The October production amounted to 1,836,378 barrels, and the shipments to 1,662,269 barrels. Pittsburg and English capitalists are investing heavily in oil.

The temperature of the human body during complete rest in bed has been the subject of some interesting observations recently described to the French Academy by M. Bonnal, who finds that the minimum temperature is between midnight and 3 o'clock A. M., and the maximum temperature between 2 o'clock P. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., except in summer, when it may be delayed until 5 P. M. From 9 o'clock P. M., the temperature sinks gradually to the minimum, though sometimes the descent about midnight is very rapid.

The ex-Khedive of Egypt has just lost one of his wives from his harem. A handsome young Italian painter named d'Elia went sketching through the harem grounds. He noticed a beautiful odalisque at one of the windows, and in some way managed to establish a telegraphic communication with her, which was soon followed by a romantic elopement and marriage. How he managed to get her out of the harem is a mystery. The young couple are now living happily at Foggia, and since they are man and wife the Khedive can't claim his former favorite. He is determined in future to keep his wives from the windows for fear of more elopements. The young lady in question is said to be a French woman.

It seems that the recent visit of General Grant to Chicago proved a big bonanza for the righteous and God-fearing people. An industrious journalist figures up a handsome profit to the city. The number of outside visitors is placed by a reasonable estimate at 75,000, each of whom is supposed to have spent all of $5 per day for three days, making a total of $1,125,000. Four leading hotels alone estimate their increased receipts at $30,000. The cost to the city, chiefly expended in decorations, is estimated at $60,000, which generally went into the pockets of citizens. It is the general desire in Chicago, no doubt, that General Grant will call again.

GRANT BOOM SO CALLED.

The best answer to the alleged movement in favor of Gen. Grant, says the Chronicle and Constitutionalist, is that the people of Georgia and the South know too well the character of Grant and his surroundings to consent that he shall be President again. They have not forgotten his proven duplicity and mendacity when a member of Andrew Johnson's cabinet; his advocacy of the Civil Rights and Force bills; the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus and the persecution of the people of North and South Carolina; the employment of troops to disperse legal Legislatures and set up bogus governments; they have not forgotten Black Friday, nor the whisky ring, nor the Seneca Sandstone job nor Belpash and Babcock and Secor Robeson. But the Georgia following which Mr. Grant owes to his Grant movement is as remarkable as the reason assigned by the third term boom. Col. R. A. Crawford, of Atlanta, is first on the list. Who he is we have been unable to ascertain. The press of the State seems to be equally as ignorant of his position and antecedents. Col. Luther J. Glenn, also of Atlanta, comes next. He was the Democratic nominee for Congress in 1872, was defeated through the apathy of his political friends and if he has since taken any part in State or National politics we are not aware of the fact. Colonel George T. Fry, also of Atlanta, is the third Grant man. His sole claim to distinction is that he was once a member of the Georgia Legislature, and when his term expired was promptly re-elected to private life. The fourth and last Grantite mentioned by Mr. Grady is Judge O. A. Lochrane. Judge Lochrane is a fine lawyer, an eloquent advocate, and an accomplished rhetorician. Personally he is one of the most charming and amiable of men. Politically, he has been a Grant Republican ever since he was defeated for Congress, running on the Democratic ticket, in 1868, and it is not at all strange that he should now champion the cause of his favorite. And of such is the Grant movement in Georgia. Decidedly there is no cause for alarm.

MORE ADVICE FOR THE SOUTH

It is from the New York World this time, and is in regard to a matter upon which we think the people of the South have certain fixed opinions in direct conflict with the advice contained in a long editorial in the issue of that paper of the 25th inst.

In a carefully prepared editorial, of considerable length, in the World of the date named, the virtues of General Grant are highly extolled, and his vices are made so insignificant as to make him appear but little less than a saint. The article sees no reason why the people of the South should not receive and acknowledge him as the first living American, and thinks they can do no less than show him the obsequious adulation which has been accorded to him at the North, wherever he has been since his return from his travels.

We are not prepared to swallow the idea that the receptions which have been given him since his arrival upon our shore is so much the spontaneous outburst of regard for the man or his acts as Northern newspapers would have us believe. The adoration which must "gush" or burst has had but little to do in the matter. A few who basked in the sunshine of his favor while he was in power, and a few who hoped to be able to enjoy the same profitable distinction in the future, should he again become a political favorite, were undoubtedly as sincere in their professions of regard as it is possible for such natures and dispositions to be. But the great mass of those who were foremost in extending honors to him were those who saw immediate pecuniary profit as the result. The money-making spirit which actuates the North saw in his return a golden opportunity and they have made the most of it, and are now ready to vote for the man who will offer the most profitable inducements. The mass of those who have been most prominent in forwarding the Grant receptions would have taken just as much interest, so far as sympathy and respect is concerned, in a Tom Thumb exhibition or a can can performance, where they could have a chance at the profits.

They remember, with profound gratitude, the manly position which Gen. Grant took, against the wishes of a bitter Republican administration and Congress, when the question was mooted to bring General Lee and other prominent military leaders of the South to trial. But they also remember that, here in North Carolina, he cancelled every right to respect or gratitude by elevating to office and forcing upon our people one whom the highest tribunal of the State had impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors in office and had forever disqualified from holding any position of honor or emolument within the gift of the State. It was an insult to the dignity of North Carolina which will not soon be forgotten. The people of the South will not readily forget that while he was President, the power of the army, was placed at the doors of legislative halls to overawe their representatives and to declare who should have the power to enact the laws, and they will not be in haste to bid him a cordial welcome to Southern hospitality. They are not yet so ready to kiss the hand which smote them, nor are they, as a people, accustomed to

"Cook the pregnant hinges of the knee, That thrift may follow fawning." Should General Grant conclude to make an extended visit to the South he would undoubtedly be treated with due courtesy by all with whom he might come in contact, and the notoriety of his name might prompt an idle curiosity to give him something of a following, as might be the case with the advent of a long-absent circus. But any public reception tendered him in the South would be so darkened by the dominant Republican element that it would partake of all the force and character of partisanship. A few whites might linger curiously upon the outskirts to give relief to the somber foreground, but we can very safely assure the World that the two elements will not mix. While our people desire to be just to General Grant, they feel that their first duty is to be just to themselves.

MOONSHINE

The man who goes away for his health brings it back with him if successful.—Pennyance.

When the night is pitch dark, it does by no means follow that it is starry.—Whim Whams.

'Ah,' said a deaf man, who had a scolding wife, 'a man wants but little hear below.'—Steubenville Herald.

No matter how a young lady's hat is lost it is almost certain to turn up—either behind or at the side.—Sandy Stone.

'If there is no moonlight, will you meet me by gaslight, dearest Juliana?' 'No, Augustus, I won't,' she replied; 'I'm no gas meter.'

When a school teacher asks: 'Who saved the day at Waterloo?' it's a poor stick of a boy who will not promptly reply: 'My father, ma'am, and he can do it again!'
