The Sun. New York, 1882.

TING SUN for 1882 will make its fifteenth I ansual revolution under the present management, chining, as always, for all, big and little, mean and gracious, contented and unhappy, hepublican and Democrat, depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. The sus's light is for mankind and woman kind of every sort; but its genial warmth is for the good, while it pours hot discomfort on a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It underto k to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way all the ne-sof the world, omitting no. event of human interest, and commenting independence. The success of this experiment was the success of the Sun. It effected a permanent change in the style of American ne spapers. Every important journal espast has been modelled after the Sun. Every important journal already existing has been modified and bettered by the force of the Bun's example.

Tua Sun of 1882 will be the same outspoken. truth-telling, and inte esting newspaper. By a liberal use of the means which an abondant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before. We shall print all the news, putting it in by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing flouse Square is not the first consideration with the Sun. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the darticulars, whether it happens in Brooklyn

Or in Bokhara. Inpolitics we have decided opinions; and are accustomed to express them in language THE WEEKLY BUN gathers into eight pages the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of unequalled merit, f.ll market reports, and a liberal propertion of literary, scientific, and domestic in-telligence complete the Weekly Sun, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed. Who does not know and read and like the

Sunday Sun, each number of which is a best poetry of the day, prose every line worth reading, news, humor-master enough to fill a good-sized book, and infinitely more varied and entertaining than any book, big If our idea of what a newspaper should be pleases you, send for the Bun. Our terms are as follows-

THE SEXTON'S REPLY.

"Tell me, gray headed old sexton." I said,
"Where in this field are the wicked folks have wandered the quaint old churchyard through And pondered the epitaphs old and new But on montment, obelisk, pillar and stone, I read of no evil that men have done."

The old sexton stood by a grave newl made, With his chin on his hand, and his hand on his spade; And I knew by the gleam in his eloquent That his heart was instructing his lips to

'Therefore, good deeds we inscribe on these stones. The evil men do, let it lie with their bones. I have labored as sexton these many a year But I never have buried a bad man here.'

Othello Under Disadyantage.

A theatrical company was performing Othello in one of the Connecticut provinces. Owing to the illness of the lady who played the role of Desdemona, a local tragedienne was assigned that part, When she saw the enraged and foaming Moor advancing to smother her, her ust of the body-for T rpit Liver-Head- courage gave out, and, hastily crawling aches Jaundice -Dizziress -- Gravel - Fe- under the bed, she began to yell for the police. The chivalry of the pit was aroused. A sturdy young countryman mounted the stage, and, grappling males during P egnanc 1: will control Othello, mopped him around vigorously, amid the applause of the boys. New York sun Lett-r. London Scene.

In the broad daylight, or at least in as much of it as is ever visible—a moon and water radiance-ladies of all ages drive in toilets suitable only for charitthe blistering backs of the persistently wicked able gaslight. No women are as fond THE BUN of 1868 was a newspaper of a new as Englishwomen of displaying their kind. It discarded many of t e forms, and charms at a time when they have ceased to exist and even to the roughs and street Arabs they deem it a duty to exe lot from the London lot on the north of hibit them. Old duchesses, faded spinsters, fat dowagers, carelessly allow the upon affairs with the fearleseness of absolute ermine tippet to drep from their shoulders, and the crowd catches here and there the glitter of a diamond on shriveled neck, or the scintillations of tablished in this country in the dozen years | tiara on a trembling brow. The spectators are not reticent and freely bandy their observations mostly of a personal and uncharitable nature. In fact, royalty itself is not spared. On one occasion the crowd getting impatient as it waited for the Queen, vociferously inquired if "Mother Brown" was not coming. This frank but uncomplimentary readable shape, and measuring its impor- allusion to the Scotch gillie was univer tance, not by the traditional yardstick, but sally appreciated, and met with no re buke.

Burlington Hawkeye: Lost in the Fog.

Erasmus T. Ruggleson, a young man of Saxon lineage, worked on a farm out that can be understood. We say what we here in Yellow Springs township. He B in the plan of the town of Wilmington. think about men and events. That habit is | was not rich, but he was industrious and the only secret of the Sun's political course, just too pretty for anything. So was Robeson county, adjoining the lots of Grifthe daughter of the farmer for whom he fin Oxendine and R. R. Jones, on Trade worked. She was wealthier than Erasmus, but she was not proud. When the the same lot on which J. T. Bullard's store chores were done in the winter evenings, she went with him to the singing school and she walked by his side to church, ning along the said street 18 feet, thence She loved him; she had rather sit at her at a right angle to said street 30 feet, casement in the gloaming, and hear him thence eastwardly 18 feet, parallel with Golconda of interesting literature, with the holler "po-oo-ey!" in long-drawn, mellow said street, thence along said G. And he-he and bounded as follows, to wit: Beginwas clean gone on her. Mashed past all ning at a stake by a dead pine tree, Prid. surgery. When they foolishly let the gen's corner in the line of the Anderson old man into their plans for each other's happiness and half the farm, the wrathp st-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a ful agriculturist said if he heard one more word of such nonsense, just another word, he would lay that farm waste with physical havoc, and blight its winter 50 links to the Anderson line, then south wheat with the salt tears of his only 65 east with said line 26 chains, then ni hed separately at $1.20 a year, postage child, and that was the kind of a father. in-law he was inclined to be.

Naturally, the young people determin ed to fly. Their plans were laid; the night was set. So was the ladder. At its foot waited the ardent Erasmus Ruggleson, gazing at the window for the appearance of his love. Presently the window opened softly, and a face he loved appeared.

"Rasmus!"

"Florence!" "Yes, dearest. Shall I drop my things right down?" "Yes, love; I will catch them. Let the bundle fall."

The glittering starlight in the clear March night fell on Erasmus' glad and upturned face. So did a trunk, four feet high, four feet wide and about eight feet long. It weighed about 2,700 pounds. It contained a few "things" that no woman could be expected to travel without, and Florence had spent three weeks packing that trunk for her elopement.

Erasmus Ruggleson did not scream. He did not moan, He couldn't. He had no show. Florence came down the ladder, having first, with a maidenly sense of propriety, requested her lover to turn his back and look at the barn. He was busily engaged in looking at the bottom of that trunk and thinking bow like all creation he would yell if he ever got his mouth out doors again. Florence reached the bottom of the ladder. "Did you get my trunk, Erasmus ?" she said, looking around for him. "Oh, yes," said a hoarse mocking voice at her elbow. "Oh, yes, he got it. Got it bad, too." She turned, knew her papa, shricked once, twice, again, and once more for the boys, and fainted away. "I never worried about it a minute," the heartless old man told his neighbors the next day, "though I. knowed well enough what was going on all the time. I've heen married twice, an' I've married off four daughters and two sons, an' if I don't know what baggage a woman carries when she travels, by this time, I'm too old to learn."

And Erasmus Ruggleson! The jury brought in a verdict that he came to his death by habitual drunkenness, and the temperance papers didn't talk about anything else for the next-six weeks.

John McGinness says: Dr. Benson, I will pray for you as long as I live, because you took pity on me when I was sick and in the hospital; and sent me two boxes of your Celery and Chamomile Pills, and they cured me of Sciatica, Neuralgia and Nervous weakness.

William J. Coughlin of Somerville Mass., says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs followed by a severe cough. I lost my appe tite and flesh, and I was confined to my. bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the-Hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dellar. At one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of Dr. William Hall's Balsam for the Lungs I got a bottle, when tomy surprise, I commenced to feel better, and to-day I feel better than for three years

"I write this hoping every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will take Wil liam Hall's Balsam, and convinced that Consumption can be cured. I can positively say it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness.
