Kntered at the Postoffice at Wilmington, N. C., as second-class matter

There are in New York two hasheesh houses, where dissipation in the Eastern drug may be indulged. One kept by an American, on Lexington avenue, is luxurious in its appointments, and it is said to be patronized by lawyers, politics, actors, men about town, and by well-dressed and apparently refined and intelligent wome. The other a child. Gov. Stanford had a son, who except Sundays).

(the reverse in its character, and is presided over by a Chinaman. Although the effects of hasheesh are quite as demoralizing as opium, the police do not interfere with the hasheesh houses as with the opium joints.

A whale measuring fitty feet in length was stranded on the shore of Accomac County, Va., a few days ago. Five fishermen attacked the monster by shooting and chopping it and secured it with two anchors held by ropes passed through holes cut in its flesh. The cap. tors were at work about the leviathan for several hours, and it was thought to be dead. When the tide came in at night, however, the creature displayed renewed vitality, and by a desperate struggle escaped from eaptivity, carrying the cables and anchors with it. No more was seen of it until the second day after, when it was discovered in the channel dead, and was towed ashore. It will probably yield 75 barrels of oil.

There is a good deat of feeling in Indiana over the reported condition of insane women in the county poorhouses throughout the State. The secretary of the State board of health and the superintendent of the insane asylum have been making a survey of these poorhouses, and the condition of things is screamers. It is extreme y pugnaciterrible. Said Superintendent Fletcher: ous. darting at dogs or other birds "If you could tell half the horrible truth about the poorhouses of Indiana and the treatment of the women in them, the insane and the idiotic, I believe the women of Indiana would move upon them and tear them down." In many of the asylums they are treated as wild beasts-kept caged in cells, tied or chained. It other cases the men and women mix freely together.

Wall street is unhappy. Its coudition is pictured in this paragraph from the New York Herald: "At the lunch counter at Delmonico's yesterday there was pointed out a gentleman who stood making a luncheon off a cake and a glass of water, who two years ago made his wife a Christmas present of $100 000 in Government bonds. He was worth outside of that probably half a million dollars. To-day he is without a dol'ar, his wile's bonds having been thrown into the same hole with his own for tune Indeed, the lunch room at De'monico's Broad street house is always a pretty accurate barometer of the fortunes of steck brokers. During the flush times from 1879 to the beginning of 1832 you please " 'La! Mr. White, how the tables there were always crowded sudden you are! Well, go ask pa." from noon until half past 1, and at nearly every table champagne was drunk .-Now beer is the popular beverage, and the tables are very often deserted, their former patrons preferring to stand at the counter down stairs and indulge in a sandwich or a cake and a cup of cof-

A New York letter says: "A day or two ago it was stated in this correpondence that if anybody supposed ex-Senator Coakling had permanently retired from politics he was laboring under a misapprehension which would speedily be dissipated. The statement is sup ported by the publication to-day of a curious communication in one of the morning journals from Congressman Belford, of Colorado, professing to throw new light upon the circumstances attending the rupture betwen the ex-Senator and the late President Garfield, the sum and substance of which is that there was a deliberate purpose on the part of the latter and the trands of Mr Blaine to crowd the former out of public life. There is but little that is really new, however, but his statements bave a peculiar importance at this time responded the good man "I have Pneumonia, which left one of my lungs indicating a determination helped to bring up eight-babies!" on the part of the Stalwarts to reassert themselves in the State Convention, and at Chicago, should the plumed knight be pushed for the Presidency. That is the interpretation put upon it at the clubs as well as at the postoffice and the custombouse, where the current political drift is narrowly watched.
