Day's length 14 hours and 8 minutes.
Sunset to-morrow afternoon at 7 o'clock.

No interments this week in Oakdale Cemetery.

Rev. B. F. Marable will conduct services at the Second Presbyterian church to-morrow.

There has been but one interment this week in Bellevue Cemetery, and that was a child.

The Register of Deeds has issued this week marriage licenses for five couples, all colored.

The Charlotte Observer promises the Howard Reliefs, of this city, a regal welcome on the 20th.

There have been four interments this week in Pine Forest Cemetery of which one was an adult and three were children.

We invite the attention of our citizens to the fact that first quality shirts are being made to order at one dollar at the Wilmington Shirt Factory.

A gentleman in this city informs us that a hen, known to be over 14 years old, died recently near Hamlet. She was the property of Amanda Jacobs, colored.

The Board of County Commissioners and the Board of Magistrates of the county will meet in joint session on the first Monday in June to make the tax levy for the current year, in accordance with the law.

There is absolutely nothing to-day from the Episcopal Convention in session at Washington and nothing that is new from that of the old Diocese at Oxtord. The delegates from this city will all probably return here to-night.

City Court.
Sam Patrick, colored, charged with disorderly conduct, was fined $5 or 10 days. He paid up.
A white man named Ecklin, found asleep in the street, was discharged.
Thomas Quince, colored, throwing rocks in the street discharged.

Personal.
Dr. Shepard, of Scott's Hill, was in the city to-day and he says that he sees and converses with numerous Onslow people and that the cry is "give us a railroad to Wilmington."
Daniel Shaw, Esq., of Pender county, is in the city to-day on one of his rare visits.

Waddell for Congress.
The Charlotte Observer speaks thus of Col. Waddell's announcement of being a candidate for Congress:
In a recent issue of the Wilmington REVIEW it was announced that Hon. A. M. Waddell would be a candidate for the nomination from the Democracy of this district for Congress, subject to the action of the convention. We don't know what Col. Waddell's chances are for a nomination, but he has many warm friends in the district who have been devoted to him, and will exert themselves to return him to the seat which he filled for four terms in Congress with devotion to his constituents and credit to himself.

For the Lake.
On Wednesday next, the first excursion of the season to Lake Waccamaw will be given by the Sunday School of St. Thomas' church. The train will leave at 8:30 a. m. and return at 7:10 p. m. and tickets may be had at the depot.

This promises to be a very delightful affair to all who may attend. It is under excellent management and all who may remember the charming excursions given by the members of St. Thomas' church last year will know just what this means,—a day of quiet, peaceful pleasure for the ladies and the children. The pavilion at the Lake has been rebuilt and the harpers will accompany the excursion and will furnish the music for dancing.

If you need a real good first class cooking stove, don't fail to see the Excelsior Penn., Zeb Vance and New Emerald, besides others. They are to be found at factory prices at JACOBI'S, who is the manufacturers' agent.

No Muft.
It is the opinion of Messrs. Houck & Barnie, Managers of the Baltimore, Md., Baseball Club, that St. Jacobs Oil is the best cure ever used by baseball players, for sprains, bruises, aches and pains.

Bogan Cash.

Mr. Vance Finlayson, of this city, has received a letter from his father, Mr. H. W. Finlayson, at Cheraw, which gives a very interesting description of the killing of the outlaw and murderer, Bogan Cash, by the Sheriff's posse, on Thursday morning. It is a very interesting description—the most interesting in fact, we have yet seen, and we have been kindly permitted to copy from it: "Solicitor Newton, not satisfied with Spofford's course in the Cash affair, last week wrote him to place the warrant in the hands of Zeke King. The latter immediately and quietly went to work, and selected him a posse of eight men, M. L. Rhodes, Ed. Avery, Henry Jackson, Julian Sellers, H. J. Hendrick, Wm. Johnson, W. H. Hilton and J. E. McNair. They quietly left town Wednesday night, rode seven miles to Bethel Church, left their horses there in charge of McNair and walked five miles to Bogan's lower place where he has been living for the past year. He has been staying in a swamp at night, superintending his farming operations in the day time, but this was a gloomy night, raining hard. They arrived there about day and surrounded the house and barn. Pretty soon a negro boy was aroused by the barking of dogs and came out, saw the men and went upstairs in the barn. Bogan's voice was soon heard up there talking with him and in about 15 minutes he came down with a 16-shooter (rifle) strapped around him and his double-barreled gun in his hands. He started sideways towards the swamp, which was only 300 yards distant, and was looking back in the direction of where the men were supposed to be; as he neared the fence on his way to the swamp, and when within 20 feet of Hilton and Avery, they rose upon him behind a pile of wood and ordered him to surrender. He turned his face and discharged both barrels of his double-barreled gun at them—without speaking a word. Hilton's gun shot was hit and broken and his finger shot almost off. Avery and Hilton then shot at him and a ball from a 16 shot Winchester broke his thigh and he fell to his knee, grasping his rifle he began using it but before he could fire but twice he was riddled with bullets, cartridges, buckshot &c. the others coming to rescue and firing at him. He fell and expired almost immediately. His only words were "Oh Lord!" Hilton's injury was all that was inflicted on the posse and as soon as it was found out in Cheraw and the fact made known that he was a poor man, a purse of $75 was immediately made up and presented him. While all this was going on Sam Lee ran out of the dwelling house, which was surrounded by Rhodes and Hendricks, gun in hand, and fired at Rhodes. Hendricks, on the opposite side of the house, stooped down and shot him through the leg, under the house. Rhodes in the meantime fired two or three times at him, and made him throw up his hands and surrender. Lee has been committed to jail, and Cash will be buried to day in his father's yard, at Cash's Depot. The posse was armed with the latest improved rifles, 16-shooters, a large number of which have been brought here since the shooting of Richards. People appear to breathe easier now, as Bogan was feared more than his father.—I was on the jury of inquest that met on Friday, but we went down yesterday and adjourned until next Monday. Col. Cash was not there; he remained at home and has done so ever since he was released at Columbia. There was great excitement here and all over the State. People appear to be almost unanimous in naming King as the next sheriff, and he will doubtless be elected at the election this Fall."

We clip the following from the New York Herald special:
Col. Cash was told of his son's death at about nine o'clock this morning. He wept like a child, saying this new grief was more than he could bear. Then he became indignant and uttered loud imprecations on the heads of Bogan's slayers, swearing that he would have vengeance. During the day, however, he was passive; but it is feared that he will wreak vengeance on the heads of any one of the posse that crosses his path. Thus far he has made no hostile demonstration, but seems to be utterly unmanned.

Bogan was just twenty-nine years old, and was born near where he was killed. Nature formed him a desperado. When a boy he was cruel and treacherous, and with each year he became more hardened and vicious. He received a good education, graduating at the Virginia University. About four years ago he fought two bloodless duels, and shortly thereafter killed a man in a street fight. During the past three years he has been involved in many rows and his death was just what was expected. Nobody laments his

The Bank Portico.

The trouble in regard to the removal of the portico of the First National Bank building, on Front street, culminated yesterday afternoon in a hearing of the Mayor, the Chief of Police and other city officials under the warrants which had been issued for their arrest. The matter was heard in the Court House before a justice of the peace. Mr. Jno. D. Bellamy, Jr., City Attorney, and Col. D. K. McRae appeared for the city, and Messrs. E. S. Martin, Janius Davis and Russell & Ricard for the defendants. Mrs. Dawson, the owner of the property, was represented by her agent, Mr. Wm. Larbins. As we understand it, no final decision was arrived at in the matter, and Mr. Davis, of Mrs. Dawson's counsel, went to Goldsboro last night to apply to Judge Shepard for an injunction restraining the city officials from further interference with the structure until the case can be heard on its merits. This will be done at the June term of the Superior Court, on a case previously decided in the Mayor's Court, in which the owner of the property was charged with maintaining a nuisance. Judgment having been rendered there against Mrs. Dawson and the case having been carried on appeal to the Superior Court.

A Colored Crank.

A colored man, evidently a crank, was seen upon the streets of the city yesterday and attracted considerable attentions. He wore five chains upon his vest front and they were literally covered with coins of different denominations, 3, 5, 10, 25 and 50 cents pieces, and to the end of each chain he had attached a watch. One being gold and the others brass. He carried a bag from the mouth of which protruded the end of a violin and bow, and upon the handle of his umbrella appeared the name of Peter Prye, cut in large letters, which he said was the name he went by. He said he came from Florida and was on his way to Petersburg, Va.

A Feasible Idea.

We understand that a number of gentlemen on Topsail Sound and Scott's Hill have it in view to propose to the Wilmington & Coast Turnpike Company to extend their road still further on the Sound, so as to take in the above locations. We have seen a letter from the originator of the idea, at Topsail, and he says that the land-owners there will not only give the right of way but that many of them will also subscribe to the stock. The distance, we imagine, will not be more than five miles if, indeed, it is as far as that. The advantages suggested are many and obvious. The road proposed is along the Sound the entire distance just within the cultivated fields, which would place the bed upon the bluff, beyond peril at any time from storm tides, and enable the farmers to draw their fences in and leave the road entirely unobstructed. There would be three creeks to bridge but none of these would be a very formidable obstacle. The cost of construction should be much less than on the original road because of the fact that clay is plentiful and handy and the oyster shells could be landed within a few yards of the road at almost its entire distance. One additional toll-house, it is thought, might be sufficient.

It seems to us that this plan is not only feasible but that it might be made to pay handsomely in the large increase of travel and traffic which would be sure to pass over the road. It would draw largely from the Onslow travel as well as from local sources and in process of time the turnpike might be extended still further along the coast. It would develop the fish and oyster business of the remoter Sounds and would give a great impetus to the raising of fruit and vegetables in a section of country which is highly adapted to the purpose. It would also add largely to the value of real estate and would give increased facilities to those who might desire to construct handsome residences on the Sounds within easy reach of the city, a something which of late years is becoming very desirable.

Women in the Garden.

We recommend to all women who are fortunate enough to have a piece of land at their command to cultivate a vegetable garden, says an exchange. The culture of strawberries, raspberries, currants and garden vegetables is as delightful and profitable as anything in which a woman can engage. She may sprinkle her garden well with flowers. All the better for that. A snowball in this corner and a rose in that, a dahlia bed there and a moss border here, will not be out of place. Only let the substantial and useful constitute the chief part. A touch of the ornate, like a ribbon on a good bonnet, is not in the least objectionable. In all the schools the girls study botany. It is healthful, pleasing and useful.—The principles of horticulture are the principles of botany put into practice. Farmers study agriculture; why should not their wives and daughters study horticulture? The employment is both healthful and pleasing. What woman cannot raise beets, tomatoes, onions, lettuce, and furnish her own table with them? What woman cannot plant a raspberry bush, or currant, or gooseberry and attend to it well? The experiment is both pleasing and profitable.
