The Daily Review has the largest bona fide circulation of any newspaper published in the city of Wilmington.

Of all the big daily newspapers in New York city there is one that endorses Mr. Blaine's nomination. That one is the Tribune whose editor, Whitlaw Reid, was a Blaine man at Chicago. The New York Herald, Times, World, Sun, Journal and Truth all bitterly denounce him. The Mail and Express, anti-Blaine heretofore, is now committal now. These are significant facts. We publish a few extracts from some of these papers on the nomination. We begin with the Herald which denounces the nomination of Mr. Blaine as 'worse than a crime.'

[Herald.] Finally the great agony is over, and Mr. Blaine is the candidate of the Republican party for the office of President of the United States. We are sorry for it, and we believe the Republicans will all be sorry for it next November. But although every man who cares for the purity of public life and the welfare of the country, and especially all those who hoped for the redemption of the Republican party from the evil elements that have already nearly dragged it down the depths, must poignantly regret a nomination like this, yet there is a sentiment that will regard the nomination with a certain grim sense of satisfaction. Indignation of decent opinion at the ever recurring nuisance of the Blaine candidacy, a revolt against the open shamelessness of the Blaine men and their scheme of carrying things with a roar and not by reason, has made men feel that at last there was perhaps but one cure for all this, which was to have the Blaine element carry the Convention and nominate their man and then see the man and the party buried out of sight by an overwhelming defeat at the hands of the people.

There will be an immediate development of interest in what the Democrats will do on the 8th of July. We have no doubt that they can easily win with Tilden's name at the head of their ticket. He is far more popular now than he was four years ago. It is notable how the sense of justice lives and grows in the popular heart. The fraud of 1876 is more strongly resented than in 1880. Not only would Tilden secure all the Democratic votes, but a large number of Republicans would see in him a conservative, statesmanlike leader, for whom they can safely vote. His name will represent an opening, but still conservative, future progress to new ideas and new policies and a healthful advance for the country. Tilden would, we believe, live out his term if he were elected; for, though his body may be feeble, his brain is clear.—Governor Seymour was right when he remarked to a Herald reporter some months ago that in his opinion Tilden's bodily feebleness was no disqualification for the proper duties of President. The country, however, will require the safeguard of a first class man for the Vice Presidency to go with Tilden's name, and here the Democrats cannot afford to blunder. Fortunately, they have many excellent names to choose from, and no democrat, however eminent, will refuse to let his name stand second to Tilden's.

[World.] The nomination of Blaine and Logan is clearly the result of a shameless political bargain and represents the triumph of the mercenaries and worst elements of the Republican party. The vote of Logan decided Blaine's nomination. The vote of Blaine nominated Logan in return. In presenting this extraordinary combination of corruption and demagogism the Republican Convention acted with unusual audacity and honesty. Audacity, because if there is anything the Republic sadly needs and the public conscience demands it is reform in high places and the purification of the Government, Honesty, because Republican candidates have generally worn masks of hypocrisy; and in nominating Mr. Blaine the mercenaries have for the first time thrown away all masks, flagrantly defied all claims to principles of reform and put up an out-and-out ticket for spoils only.

[Sun.] So far as the Republicans are concerned, the issue of the election is fixed, and it remains to be proved whether the Democrats have the wisdom to meet it successfully. The sins of the Republican party are so great, the corruption of its rule is so extreme, its history for these many years has been so revolting, that, with prudent councils, a good candidate, and a judicious and patriotic platform, the Democracy may now win a great victory for the country. But we warn them that it will be no holiday task, that every point will be hotly contested, and that every advantage they may gain will have to be fought for in tremendous earnest.

[Truth.] The Republican party has been guilty of a stupendous blunder in nominating James G. Blaine. With such a candidate it must enter upon a defensive campaign from the outset, and that, too, with the candidate the Democratic party preferred for the Republican nomination. It must be confessed that under such conditions the outlook is not promising for the party which has so long had control of the government, but which now seems willing to sacrifice itself for a man whom it had twice before condemned. Mr. Blaine is an able man, but as unscrupulous as he is able.

THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. VIII. WILMINGTON, N. C., MONDAY, JUNE 9, 1884. NO. 137

He is a man of many generous impulses, but one who would stick at nothing.—At a time when purity is demanded he is impure. At a time when reform is the war cry of the people his election would be the loss of all that has been gained in that direction. That he is a popular man we do not deny, but respect enters very slightly into his popularity, and he is feared even by those who throw up their hats for him. That he can be elected we do not believe. His only chance is in the possibility of as great a blunder in Chicago in July as that which will forever make the convention of June, 1884, memorable.—Everything now depends upon the wisdom of the Democratic party.

[Times.] It is best, after all, that James G. Blaine should be the candidate of the Republican party. His nomination has been urged with earnestness and sincerity by a majority of that party, and the majority must rule in this country, even when it is in the wrong. The party now appeals to the country with a candidate who stands for something. He represents the average of Republican principles and purposes, of Republican honor and conscience, as they now are.

We shall not be surprised if some Republicans who do not like Mr. Blaine resent with heat this allegation that a man who as Speaker of the House of Representatives bartered his official influence for private gain, who as Secretary of State made the enforcement of a swindling claim against a distressed and perishing sister Republic the most conspicuous feature of his foreign policy, a man who has had no part or interest in the work done in the last five years toward the purification of the public service, is a fair type and representative of the party that saved the Union, freed the slaves and restored the national credit. But in soberness and truth, good friends, is this not so? Is not the name of Blaine the only name that really stirs the hearts of the Republican masses? Did not his devoted band of adherents, without the aid of the officeholders, who in most States were enlisted under another flag, not only without favor from any department of the government, but against the influence of all, so far as that influence was exerted, lead to Chicago an army of delegates larger than that supporting any other candidate? Did not Blaine's name lead on the first ballot, and increase its lead by jumps to the last, when nearly two-thirds of the Convention were registered in the Blaine column? If Mr. Blaine is not a fair representative of republican principles and purposes, of republican honor and conscience, as they now are, then the republicans of Maine, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Kansas were wilfully betrayed in their primaries, in their District and State conventions and at Chicago, and we have nowhere read nor heard that republican sentiment in these States, or in any State, was stifled or perverted in order to secure Blaine delegates. Nor was Mr. Blaine nominated in ignorance of who and what he was. The party had its eyes open. It has taken this step, not in the dark, but in broad daylight.

One word as to the position of the Times. It will not support Mr. Blaine for the Presidency. It will advise no man to vote for him, and its reasons for this course are perfectly well understood by everybody that has ever read it. Without the mention of names the course of the Times was foreshadowed in its issue of May 29, when it replied to the question of a correspondent in these words:—If the nominee of the Chicago Republican Convention is a man worthy to be President of the United States the New York Times will give him a hearty and vigorous support. If he shall be a man unworthy to hold that great office, a man who, personally and politically, in office or out, represents principles and practices which the Times abhors and has counselled its party to shun, we shall watch with great interest the efforts of those responsible for such a nomination to elect their candidate, but we can give them no help. The interest the Times will take in this canvass is that of a friend and physician. It is not with cynical indifference, but with unspeakable sadness, that it sees the Republican party perversely set its face toward error and its feet in vicious paths, for it has done some service to the party. But with patience and with unflinching hope the Times will cheerfully and with sincerity labor to set the party right again, and when it shall have had its new birth to draw to it all that is soundest, best and worthiest in the manhood of this Republic.

There is to be a hot canvass this year; of that there can be no doubt. Blaine is a splendid organizer and a man of magnificent address and resources, and he will lead a party which is flushed with a long series of successive victories. And yet, "the greatest effort of his life is before him." If he wins he must win without the aid of New York State. To do this he must carry every State in the Union besides New York and the Southern States. In the Empire State, and in New York city especially, the outlook is already desperate for him and the Democrats can win there with either Tilden, Bayard or Cleveland.

Everybody in want of Paints, White Lead, Glass &c. should go to JACOB'S to get best qualities and lowest prices.

The Charleston News and Courier, editorially and in its correspondence from Columbia, says that Tilden is distasteful to the people of South Carolina and a letter received by us to-day from a gentleman in Columbia, written on Saturday, says "so far as I can interpret public opinion Tilden is the man and the nomination of 'the old ticket' will cause an uprising unknown before in this country."

The nomination of Blaine and Logan has fallen like a wet blanket on the Republicans of New York city. It was received with great disfavor, some of the most prominent and ardent Republicans there declaring that they will not support the ticket. So far has this feeling gone that the World declares that a bolt is already in progress and that an Independent Convention will be held on Saturday next to nominate Edmunds and Lincoln. Roscoe Conkling Carl Schurz and Theodore Roosevelt are mentioned as heading the movement.

York, Pa.—Mr. E. W. Spangler, publisher, York, Pa., Daily, states that in a severe attack of neuralgia, by rubbing the parts affected and saturating a piece of flannel with St. Jacobs Oil, the great pain-cure, once only, he was permanently cured.

Five young ministers were ordained at Wake Forest yesterday, among whom was Rev. Daniel Wells Herring, of Pender county.

The new sidelights, under the galleries, at the First Baptist Church, which were placed in position last week, are a material and a valuable addition to the appearance of the building.

Painful Accident. Little Bennie, the three and a half years old son of Mr. Benj. Bell, of the firm of Jackson & Bell, while playing on the jeejoggle last Saturday forenoon had the misfortune to fall and dislocate his left elbow and fracture the arm between the elbow and shoulder. Physicians were promptly in attendance and rendered the necessary surgical assistance, and we are happy to state that the little fellow is doing as well as could be expected and bears his suffering with the fortitude of a stoic.

Just Fifty Years To-day. Such is the title of a piece of music we have had the pleasure to examine which was presented to a lady of this city by the author, W. D. Munson. It is vocal, with instrumental accompaniment, and is arranged to be sung either as a solo and chorus or duet and chorus, and is adapted to the celebration of "Golden Wedding" anniversaries. It is easy, the harmony is good, the theme appropriate, and when sung with expression and feeling would be quite effective. It is for sale at Heinsberger's.

We invite the attention of our citizens to the fact that first quality shirts are being made to order at one dollar at the Wilmington Shirt Factory.

Now is the time to give Smith's Worm Oil.

Chapel Hill. We have not had the space for an extended notice of the Commencement Exercises at Chapel Hill. Thursday was the great day there, according to the report in the News and Observer, and the attendance was very large. Among those to whom diplomas were awarded we notice the name of but one Wilmington boy, and that our young friend, Sol. C. Weill, son of Mr. A. Weill. His diplomas were in Latin and Greek. The prize given by Mr. D. G. Worth, of this city, this year fell to the lot of Mr. S. B. Tarrentine, of Orange county, after a spirited contest. Mr. Jesse B. Hawes, of this city, was to have delivered an oration on "The Day and its Demands," but for some unexpected reason, probably because of sickness, he did not speak. The ball took place Thursday night and it was a very brilliant affair. But one Wilmington lady, Miss Mary L. Kenan, is mentioned in the report as among those present and on the floor.

Another large consignment of Sash, Doors & Blinds at Factory prices, just received at JACOB'S Hardware Depot.

Personal. Prof. Noble, after a brief absence, returned to the city last Saturday night. He will leave again, however, to-night for Goldsboro where he will labor two weeks in the Wayne county Normal School.

Mr. T. W. Stanland, of the firm of Stanland & Downing, Charleston, S. C., arrived in the city this morning en route for his old home in Brunswick county, where he will remain for a few days visiting relatives and friends.

Rev. E. S. Alderman arrived in the city Saturday night and is stopping with his father, Mr. Alfred Alderman, on Mulberry street, between Third and Fourth. He will preach at the First Baptist Church next Thursday night.

Rev. R. T. Bryan will preach at the First Baptist church next Sunday. He is a brother of Mr. James A. Bryan, formerly of this city but now living in Florida.

RIDGEWAY, S. C. Messrs. Boyken, Carmer & Co.—Gents: I have quite a demand for your "Worm Killer." It is the best Vermifuge I can get. A farmer bought a bottle of me a few weeks ago, gave one dose to his child; came in next-day with a 'chow-chow' jar filled with worms, the result of one dose. Since then all want it. m w s W. J.
