JOSH. T. JAMES, Editor & Prop. WILMINGTON, N. C.

FRIDAY, JUNE 20, 1884.

Entered at the Postoffice at Wilmington, N. C., as second-class matter.

We find in an exchange the following very interesting table of the popular vote in past elections, for the past forty-four years. Some apparent contradiction in the table will be understood when we recollect that our presidents are elected by the votes of the electoral college, and not by the popular vote. The following is the vote for the successful candidates since 1840:

Table with 3 columns: Year, Candidate, and Votes. Includes entries for 1840, 1844, 1848, 1852, 1856, 1860, 1864, 1868, 1872, 1876, 1880.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce writes: "The discussion of the possible Democratic candidates for the Presidency still continues with unabated interest. The republication of Senator Bayard's peace speech, delivered at Dover, Delaware, in 1861, seems to have detracted from his chances for the nomination. His ability, patriotism and purity are conceded by all, but the fact that he did serve in the Union army after having deprecated war in the speech alluded to, appears to have convinced the majority of the Democratic members that his nomination would be unwise. So far the general sentiment among the Democrats in Congress seems to have settled upon Governor Cleveland, of New York, as the most eligible candidate for nomination. It is thought here that Cleveland is Mr. Tilden's choice for the succession, and this adds greatly to his strength. Speaker Carlisle is also very favorably spoken of, but his coming from the border State of Kentucky is an element of weakness, since the Democrats are confident of the electoral vote of that State under all circumstances. Mr. Morrison is one of the favorites for the second place upon the ticket."

Here is an article, from the News and Observer, abounding in facts and figures, which makes very interesting and instructive reading matter at this juncture:

What is the Democratic party? Have we a realizing sense of the commanding position which our party today holds in the political situation? In 1876 the Republicans carried, according to the Republican count, twenty States and the Democrats but eighteen. There was a total poll of 8,426,273 votes, of which the Democrats cast 4,265,992. In 1880 the Republicans carried nineteen States and the Democrats nineteen. Out of a total poll of 9,219,917, the Democrats cast 4,444,952; the Republicans cast 4,454,416; the Greenbackers 308,578. In 1882, the Democrats carried twenty-three States, not counting Kansas, Michigan or Pennsylvania, in all of which States because of unusual circumstances they elected the Governors; the Republicans carried but fifteen States counting for them Kansas, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Virginia. In that year there was a total poll of 8,025,075, of which the Democrats cast 4,051,035; the Republicans cast 3,620,840; the Greenbackers 977,691 and the Prohibitionists 76,303. These figures show to the Republican party every advantage that can be claimed for it. They demonstrate that the Republican party in 1882 fell behind its vote in 1880, no less than 825,000 votes.

The Democrats to-day have Governors in twenty-five States, while the Republicans have the Governors of only twelve, Cameron, of Virginia being counted as a Readjuster. But the proof of the pudding is not confined merely to this overwhelming preponderance in the local elections which are to a large extent controlled by local influences. We find that in Federal politics the people prefer the Democratic party. They elected in 1882, one hundred and ninety-two straight Democrats to Congress, one hundred and twenty Republicans and six Readjusters, two Greenbackers and five Independents. The people elected seventy-two more Democrats than Republicans. That shows the drift of public sentiment. Another notable point is that in the sixteen Southern States, including Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky and Missouri, the Democrats cast only 1,400,000 votes, leaving the Northern States 3,650,000 Democrats, while the Republican vote in the same States was only 2,725,000. The five States above mentioned did not secede; taking them into the calculation as Northern States, the Democratic vote in the Northern States was in 1882, 3,100,000; and the Republican vote in the same States was 3,065,000, which gives the Democrats a majority of the votes cast at the last election in the States which adhered to the Union. Notwithstanding the noise made over the Southern Brigadiers the Democratic party is twice as strong at the North as at the South. If we shall strike out the negro vote of the South, which at a low estimate was 700,000, it will appear that in the elections of 1882, the Republican party cast 3,900,000 white votes and the Democratic party cast 4,000,000 white votes. Coming to particulars we find that California gave a solid Democratic vote of 90,000 against a Republican vote of 67,000. The aggregate vote was larger than that cast in the Presidential election. In Connecticut the vote in 1882 was for Democratic State officers 59,000, and for Republican State officers 55,000; but that was on a light vote, the State gave Garfield 67,000 and Hancock 64,000. In Indiana the vote in 1882 stood Democratic, 230,918; Republican, 210,234, and Greenback, 13,520. That also was a light vote, falling 26,000 short of the vote in the Presidential year. In Ohio the vote stood in 1882, 316,874 Democrat, and 297,759 Republican. There was a falling off of 77,000 in the Republican vote and of 24,000 in the Democratic vote from 1880. In all years it is true the Republicans usually cast a light vote, but the year 1884 it seems to us will be an "off year" for that party and an "on year" with the Democrats. But in any event these figures give a fair idea of the situation and illustrate the fact that the Democratic party never was so strong as it is to-day and that the country is becoming tired out with the corruptions, excesses and oppressions of the Republican party.

The meed of merit for promoting personal aesthetics is due to J. C. Ayer & Co., whose incomparable Hair Vigor is a universal beautifier of the hair, Harmless, effective, agreeable, it has taken rank among the indispensable articles of the toilet. To scanty locks it gives luxuriance; and withered hair it clothes with the hue of youth.

PERSONAL. Mr. Byron, the dramatist, left $20,000 to his widow. The ex-King and Queen of Naples are now worth $5,000,000. Mr. McCullough, the actor, is going to spend a good part of the summer at Long Branch. St. Gaden's owner was a Newmarket stableboy, and has made half a million of dollars on the turf. The portrait of Gen. Francis Marion, made by Mr. G. S. Burnap, gives a vivid picture of the thin, fallow, bright eyed hero. It is for the South Carolina room at Mount Vernon.

Rosadalis Is the Great Southern Remedy for the cure of Scrofulous Taint, Rheumatism, White Swelling, Gout, Goitre, Consumption, Bronchitis, Nervous Debility, Malaria, and all diseases arising from an impure condition of the Blood. The merits of this valuable preparation are so well known that a passing notice is but necessary to remind the readers of this journal of the necessity of always having a bottle of ROSADALIS among their stock of family necessities. Certificates can be presented from many leading Physicians, Ministers, and heads of families throughout the South endorsing ROSADALIS in the highest terms. We are constantly in receipt of certificates of cures from the most reliable sources, and we do not hesitate to recommend it as the best known remedy for the cure of the above diseases.

JUNE JOKES. Black eyes denote passion. It is generally safe to say that a man with a black eye has angered some one.—Phila. Chronicle-Herald. A young man makes a good beginning when he offers a young lady his arm. Some day he may have the courage to go the whole hog, and offer himself.—N. O. Picayune. This is the way a mother down East describes her daughter's courtship:—"He 'posed and 'suaed, she 'mazed and 'fused; last she 'ented, then he 'gazed her."—Chicago Tribune. A young lady received the following note, accompanied by a bouquet of flowers:—"Dear —: 'I send you by the boy a bouquet of flowers. This is like my love for you. The nite shades menses kepe dark. Rosis red and possis pain. My love for u shall never fale."—Detroit Post.

Mrs. Mackay's latest Worth dress is described as a "poem." From the description we infer that it resembles a waste basket. It is not red. This is a very straight joke, but the temptation to write wast basket it was necessary to overcome.—Norristown Herald. Two ladies, moving in the highest circles of Washington society, during a friendly meeting on the street, got to quarreling about their age, and used very strong language toward each other. At last, as it ended the dispute, one of them turned away and said in a very conciliatory tone of voice: "Let us not quarrel any more. I, at least, have not the heart to do it. I never knew who my mother was; she deserted me when a baby, and who knots but that you may have been the heartless parent!"—Texas Siftings.
