DR. WORTHINGTON'S Cholera & Diarrhoea Medicine THE GREAT CHOLERA CRAMP AND DIARRHOEA CURE USED OVER 25 YEARS.

Vital Questions!!!! Ask the most eminent physician of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves, curing all forms of nervous complaints, giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep always.

What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs; such as Bright's disease, diabetes, retention, or inability to retain urine, and all the diseases and ailments peculiar to Woman?

What is the most reliable and surest cure for all liver diseases or biliousness; constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, malaria, fever, ague, &c., &c., and they will tell you unhesitatingly "Some form of Hops!"

Turning his attention in early life to business pursuits rather than a college course, Mr. Bain entered the office of the Comptroller of State in 1857. When North Carolina, following in the wake of other Southern States, had, in 1861, thrown off the yoke of Northern allegiance, he volunteered in the Raleigh Light Infantry, and was only kept from active service in the field by feeble health and the importunities of Governor Ellis to remain at his post of civil duty.

A STRUGGLE WITH A SHIRT.

Three hundred and sixty-five times each year every mother's son of us has a struggle getting into his shirt. If a shirt is worth getting into, if it is strong and well made, sure not to rip or tear, perfect fitting, then there is some compensation for spending so much of our existence in such a struggle.

The Daily Review.

Rock of Ages. "Rock of Ages, cleft for me," Whispered on a bed of death, "Let me hide myself in Thee?" Fainter, fainter, grows the breath; "Rock of Ages" fainter still From the faltering, dying lips, And the ebbing pulses thrill.

"Rock of Ages," whispered low Over lips all white with pain, And the struggling heart below Seeks the refuge rock again. "Rock of Ages, cleft for me," Prayerfully the words are said—"I for safety fly to Thee." And the pain is comforted; And the thankful lips repeat, "Rock of Ages, cleft for me, Trusting in the promise sweet, I shall hide myself in Thee."

STATE TREASURER.

Donald W. Bain. In every community there are to be found some who quietly and without ostentation have always done their duty well in that sphere to which they have been called.

The subject of this sketch is a native of Raleigh, now in the prime of life, and is classed with the young and active business men of the State. Mr. Bain was educated at the school of the late J. M. Lovejoy, whose reputation as a scholar and peculiar fitness as a teacher were known to the State over. After years of careful training by his distinguished preceptor, he was eminently qualified for the high and honorable positions which he afterwards attained.

Turning his attention in early life to business pursuits rather than a college course, Mr. Bain entered the office of the Comptroller of State in 1857. When North Carolina, following in the wake of other Southern States, had, in 1861, thrown off the yoke of Northern allegiance, he volunteered in the Raleigh Light Infantry, and was only kept from active service in the field by feeble health and the importunities of Governor Ellis to remain at his post of civil duty. In 1865 he was appointed by Governor Jonathan Worth, then Treasurer, to fill the important position of Chief Clerk in the Treasury Department, an office which he has ever since occupied with honor to himself and credit to the State. His services to the State in the eventful times of 1868-'69 are best expressed by a correspondent recently writing from Western North Carolina:

"He has long been the Chief Clerk in the Treasury, and is familiar with all its workings. His practical skill and unbending integrity were the chief instrumentalities which saved the Treasury in those dark days of the State when reconstruction was rampant and the strongest efforts were made to procure his dismissal, while eager hands were grasping at the public purse for spoliation. The situation and surroundings were a crucial test and proved him worthy of all honor and trust."

It will thus be seen that from early life Mr. Bain has been intimately connected with the financial management of the State, and that at periods the most trying and important in our history. By many years of hard study and application he has thoroughly mastered our revenue system and today is regarded as the most expert and efficient Commissioner of Agriculture, as one of the commissioners to effect an adjustment of the bonded debt of the State contracted to aid in the construction of the North Carolina Railroad. By the decision in the Swazey suit the State's interest in this valuable property had, in a measure, passed into the hands of a receiver, and though she held $205,000 of the old bonds, yet no benefits were realized from her stock. Under the compromise effected the road was saved to the State without the cost of a dollar.

The name of Donald W. Bain and Masonry in North Carolina are synonymous. Elected in 1867 to the responsible office of Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina, a position which for twenty-six years had been worthily filled by his father, he has ever since, at the annual communications of that body, received its hearty endorsement by unanimous relections. His well-known knowledge of Masonic usage and jurisprudence is not only recognized in his own, but in other grand lodges of the country.

To most children the bare suggestion of a dose of castor oil is nauseating. Why not, then, when physic is necessary for the little ones, use Ayer's Cathartic Pills? They combine every essential and valuable principle of a cathartic medicine, and being sugar-coated are easily taken.

She Wanted to Know. "Kiss me again." Sibyl Sartoris spoke these words in a grave, solemn manner that betokened the serious import in which she held them, and as Herbert Holdfast bent tenderly forward and pressed his lips softly to hers she looked up to him in the shy, cat-on-the-back-fence fashion that had so wretched him in the golden-hued days of courtship—those days when all the world seemed filled with sunshine, when every breeze spoke in whispers of his love for this beautiful girl, and the cloudless skies seemed only to reflect the deeper azure of her eyes.

There was no tint of deception in the pure nature of this girl, and her every act was the result of reflection, often profound. Brought up in Boston, she had all her life been accustomed to put to its best use the power of discernment which a thoughtful mind gave her. Surrounded as she was by the mystic influences of Emerson, the Concord School of Philosophy, and several large warehouses where mackerel were sold, it is small wonder that when, standing on the threshold of womanhood, she beheld suitors for her heart and hand approach, she had analyzed with critical care the hopes and fears of each—had subjected the character of every wooer to the rigid scrutiny of her mind that, seated cross-legged on the stony summit of psychological research, looked upon man as only vivified protoplasm, and the deepest emotions of the heart as merely the manifestations of a too active nerve centre.

Herbert knew this. He knew that this girl—the rounded curves of whose figure and the dewy sweetness of whose lips would have made an anchorite leave his job without a pang—had naught of passion in her nature. And so when he had complied—oh, so gladly—with her request, there stalked from out the banquet halls of his imagination where they had so long been unwelcome guests the sheeted ghosts of Doubt and Apprehension. He knew now that Sibyl loved him with a love that would never falter or fail—a love that, securely built upon a foundation of respect and admiration, was now crowned with the large, roomy, mansard roof of a deathless, never changing passion. Her words proved it. Never before had she even so much as hinted at a kiss, and when he had sought to take one she had submitted to his caresses more as a dutiful wife than an ardent lover. But now all was changed, and it was she who sought the bliss that a large, well-regulated, three-story-and-basement kiss alone can give. The thought was ecstasy.

"You love me better to-day, Sibyl," he said, "than you did yesterday. Is it not so, darling?"

"No," she answers, standing there calm and pulseless as a clam at high tide.

"Then why," he says, "did you ask me to kiss you?"

"Because," Sibyl replies, "I desired to ascertain whether or not you had been drinking Medford rum."—Chicago Tribune.

A Youngster's Teeth

demand greater attention than they usually receive. Mothers careful of their children's physical well-being, wisely adopt SOZODONT as an article of the family toilet. If the first set of a juvenile's teeth are daily polished with this matchless purifier, the second set are almost invariably white and strong, and prove a life-long blessing, otherwise they frequently turn out carious and irregular. Young and old alike benefit by its use.

East and West.

An Eastern man made a trip to the far West recently and at one point he waited an hour or two for a delayed train, employing the interval in walking up and down the platform giving his opinions on Western customs. "I tell you what it is," he said to a strapping big fellow in a slouch hat, who just arrived, "you Western people want more of the civilization of the East and you want more Eastern people among you."

"That's what another dufer from New York said when he landed here." "Well, he was right."

"We uns didn't somehow think so, stranger."

"Of course you didn't, and that's what's the matter with you."

"That's what the other feller said."

"I'd like to see that man and shake his hand once for the sake of progress."

"Yer can't do it, stranger; he's on his way back to the startin' pint."

"You didn't scare him away; did you?" "Not exactly, stranger; he's in town yet, but he's ready to go when the train pulls out."

"Where is he? I want to see him and brace him up."

"All right, stranger. Just go right in the deepo thar an' ax the boss to let yer see the man in the long wooden box—Mebbe yer kin see him, mebbe yer can't; leas'tways 'tain't going to hurt yer to try. If yer kin brace him up it's more'n the doctors could do, after Long Legged Jim pulled on him fur swearin' in that the siverized East thar wuz five axes in the deck."

The Eastern man's train came along just in time.—Merchant Traveller.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

By the Light of Day.

PAST IMPOSSIBILITIES THE FACTS OF THE PRESENT—HELP IN THE NEW ERA. "I remember when they were putting up the poles for the first telegraph line in the State of New York, and now look there!" exclaimed a citizen of the metropolis to his friend, as the two stood on the summit of the tall Equitable Building in Broadway. "The city is strung with wires like a harp, and electric communication is the daily miracle of the world. People no longer wonder and laugh at it as they did at Morse when he first suggested its possibility."

The age marches on and prejudice must give way. Nobody has a monopoly of truth. Even the conservative guild of physicians admit that the secrets of medicine are shared by all men. "I dressed with his wound and God healed him," said old Galen. Once that terrible disease, Rheumatism, was supposed to be a shifting local ailment, now attacking the joints and now the muscles. To-day it is demonstrated to be a disease of the blood. Mrs. Henry Bogert, of No. 454 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes to Messrs. PARKER & CO., of New York, proprietors of PARKER'S TONIC, that "she had been completely disabled from Rheumatism and pain in the back and limbs. She was advised to take the Tonic for her Kidney disease. She did so, and her Rheumatism disappeared. The reason is simple. Diseased Kidneys produce rheumatic symptoms. Cure them and you destroy Rheumatism. This is now admitted by all intelligent physicians. It is the new light thrown on their time-worn and mistaken theories. PARKER'S TONIC which is a combination of the best remedies for the blood known to science, is universally successful in combating this terribly common complaint. Those who, like Mrs. Bogert, suffer from Kidney or Liver diseases or any complaint arising from impure blood, will find the Tonic a prompt and certain remedy. Prices, 50c. and $1 per bottle.
