Puck does not cartoon the Democratic candidates. Not much.

Have you read the Democratic platform? If not, you had better, for it is a daisy.

Republicans sport white plumes, but the Democrats will not even show a white feather.

The Democratic papers do not have to eat crow this trip, but the Republican press is surprised with it.

A careful scrutiny with the naked eye of the Democratic platform reveals some mighty good doctrine.

Butler will not support Blaine, but whether Blaine will support John Kelly—or not—is a serious question.

"When the Leaves begin to Fall" is not a popular song just now in Republican circles. It is too mournfully suggestive of the sad November days when the returns are all in.

Blaine Republicans sport white plumes. We have seen white plumes on a horse before now, and they will be in demand at the mournful Republican funeral in November.

The Republican State ticket is a bad wash to swallow. It savors strongly of crow, which is unpalatable to good and true Republicans, but they have got to swallow it, nevertheless.

Blaine's "vigorous foreign policy," will be restricted for the next ninety days to Massachusetts, New York, Indiana and several other localities within the jurisdiction of the United States.

Cleveland, Hendricks, Scales and Stedman! It seems to us that those names make rather a powerful combination and will Tyre York and his gang badly between now and November.

In a private exhibition Saturday night at the Madison Square Theatre, New York, Lula Hurst, the "George wonder," threw Mrs. Langtry down and split the back of her thin, white dress.

The children of the Count de Paris, heir to the Bourbon claim on the French throne, are five in number—one boy, the Duke of Orleans, and four girls, the Princess Amelia, (the eldest child), Helen, Isabella and Louise.

Mr. Storey, the owner of the Chicago Times, is only sixty-four years old, but his life of remarkable activity has so weakened certain mental faculties that his family have asked the Probate Court of Cook County to appoint a conservator to take care of his property.

Now is the time to give Smith's Worm Oil.

THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. VIII.

WILMINGTON, N. C., THURSDAY, JULY 17, 1884.

NO. 169

The Democrats had a grand ratification meeting at Raleigh on Tuesday night.
There was an immense and enthusiastic throne in attendance to listen to eloquent addresses from eminent Democratic speakers. There was a notable absence of crow at the banquet.

While it is not known precisely what Butler and Kelly will do in the campaign, it is very certain that they will give no aid to the Republican party.
They would not save the old tattooed concern if they could, and it is equally certain that they could not if they would.

Bed Bugs, Flies.

It seems to us that business is slightly improving in our city.

It was somewhat cooler this morning with a brisk breeze from the Northeast.

The thermometer has indicated 87 degrees, which is three degrees lower than it was yesterday.

There was no City Court this morning, and no tramps applied for lodgings at police headquarters last night.

Another large consignment of Sash, Doors & Blinds at Factory prices, just received at JACOBI'S Hardware Depot.

The services at the First Baptist Church to-night will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Yates of the Front Street M.
E. Church.

A first class barber can obtain a situation on application to Mr. J. D. Sublett, of the Hotel Brunswick, Smithville. See ad in another column.

The County Democratic Executive Committee will hold a meeting at the Court House at 8:15 o'clock to-night, and a full attendance is requested.

We invite the attention of our citizens to the fact that first quality shirts are being made to order at one dollar at the Wilmington Shirt Factory.

Knights and Ladies of Honor.

Regular meeting this (Thursday) evening.
Full attendance desired.

There are some indications of a storm and we would not be surprised if a decided change of the weather should take place in this section within a day or two.

Mr. R. H. Whitaker, Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars, will deliver a temperance address at the Little Giant Hall to-night. The public are invited to attend.

Death of Capt. John J. Evans.

Our citizens and a large circle of acquaintances throughout this section of the South will be pained to learn of the death of Capt. John J. Evans, which occurred at his residence in this city at about 5 o'clock this morning, from malarial fever. He had been sick but about a week and his death took our people by sad surprise. Capt. Evans was a native of Pennsylvania, but came to the South when quite a young man and was a stage agent in South Carolina while the Wilmington, Columbia & Augusta (then known as the Wilmington & Manchester) Railroad was in course of construction. Upon the completion of the road Capt. Evans was made one of the conductors, a position which he occupied until after the war, and in which he became widely known as a courteous, obliging and pleasant gentleman and a most agreeable railroad official. Soon after the war he removed to Pittsburgh, Pa., where he was engaged for several years with his brothers in the steam-boat business on the Ohio river. He returned to Wilmington about seven years ago, and subsequently removed to Goldsboro, where for a time he was engaged in mercantile pursuits. He then came to Wilmington again, and until a short time since was a conductor on the W. C. & A. road.

Capt. Evans married a daughter of the late Mr. Owen Holmes of this city, his wife and three children surviving him. In all the relations and duties of life, whether as husband, father, citizen or official, Capt. Evans was a true, kind and noble-hearted gentleman. He was about 58 years of age at the time of his death.

The Crops.

From passengers arriving in the city to-day from the vicinity of Six Runs and Stewart's Creek, in Sampson county, we learn that the crops were never in a more prosperous condition. The section spoken of contains some of the best farms and most industrious farmers in East Carolina, and we rejoice at the success which bids fair to crown their efforts, and hope that no untoward event may prevent them from reaping an abundant harvest.

Lead, Glass &c., should go to JACOBI'S

Lemons.

There is nothing new in saying that lemon-juice is good for malaria; or, in other words, that it is useful to combat intermittent fever by the victims of that disease. A French medical journal recommends a decoction of the fresh lemon, that is, a lemon cut into slices and boiled in a new earthen pot, making practically, a lemon tea. It is to be given four hours before the fever, and is said to be as serviceable as quinine, without having any of its ill effects.

Dog Tongue.

There are many industries which have sprung into existence in this section within the last few years, which had never before been dreamed of, but which have proved a source of profit to those engaged in them. The gathering of dog tongue is among the most important and lucrative of these industries. The plant grows abundantly throughout this section of the State, can be gathered with but little trouble and a ready market is found for all that can be procured. Our friend and subscriber, Mr. A. H. Morris, at Teachey's Depot, Duplin county, on the Wilmington & Weldon Railroad, is largely engaged in the purchase and shipment of dog tongue. On Monday, the 14th inst., he bought 3,680 pounds of the plant, on the 15th, 6,742 pounds, and on the 16th, 5,273 pounds, making an aggregate for the three days' purchases, amounting to 15,695 pounds.
The above amounts will be about his average during the season.

Daring Burglary.

At about 1 o'clock yesterday morning some thief broke into the premises of Mr. T. F. Tyler, on Dock street, between Eighth and Ninth, under circumstances of most reckless daring.
Mr. Tyler had been reading upon a sofa in the front room of the house and had finally dropped off to sleep leaving the lamp burning and the window raised.
The thief took one of the supports of a jiggle, which was on the piazza of an adjoining house and used it as a step to climb into the window where Mr. Tyler was asleep. After gaining an entrance he passed directly through the parlor to the room where Mrs.
Tyler was in bed and asleep, taking the precaution to close and lock the door after him. He then opened a widow in Mrs. Tyler's room which led onto the piazza, after which he searched the pockets of Mr. Tyler's clothing, which was in the room, from which he stole about $15 in money. He then sat down on the side of the bed and placed his head upon Mrs. Tyler's face, which awoke her. She supposed that it was her husband, but soon discovered that it was not, when she screamed and the thief fled through the window. Her screams awoke Mr. Tyler and he at once started to her assistance, but found the door locked and before he could effect an entrance the scoundrel had escaped. It was a small man, but whether white or colored Mrs. Tyler could not determine.

Almost an Accident.

This morning just before the steamer Passport started on her regular trip down the river, the furniture cart of Mr. D. A. Smith was driven down to the wharf with some freight. The driver fastened his horse by tying the reins to one of the wheels, which answered very well until the steamer's whistle blared, when he became frightened and started. This wound the reins up so tight that it caused the horse to back, and if it had not been for some one who jumped to the animal's head and cut the reins he would have backed into the river. It is a careless way to leave horses, and especially so in any locality where there is liable to be unusual noise and confusion.

Language of the Eyes.

It is said that very quiet eyes that impress and embarrass one with their power signify self-command, but also much complacency and some conceit.
Restless eyes that cannot look one steadily in the face denote a deceitful, designing mind. Eyes in which the white has a yellowish tinge and is streaked with reddish veins, prove much of strong passion and hasty tempers. Very blue eyes bespeak inclined to coquetry; grey eyes signify dignity intelligence and excellent reasoning faculties; greenish eyes, falsehood and a fondness for scandal. A malicious mind is often indicated by greenish eyes. Black eyes show a passionate, lively temperament, and oftentimes a most deceitful disposition; brown eyes are generally tender and true, indicating a kind and happy disposition.

About Trees.

A tree is a sort of community, each part having its own duties to perform.
The root hair takes up most of the nourishment. The young ones take it to the larger ones, and they, in turn, like the branches of a river, pour the flow of crude sap into the trunk, which conveys it to the leaves. The assimilated or digested sap passes from the leaves to all growing parts of the plant, and a deposit is made where most needed. If a branch is much exposed to the winds the base of it has a certain support or certain amount of nourishment. So with the trunk of the tree. If the base of a branch or the main trunk is much exposed to the winds and storms, a much thicker deposit of food is made there. The winds give a tree exercise, which seems good to help make it strong. Our toughest wood comes from trees growing in exposed places. The limbs of a tree are all the time striving with each other to see which shall have the most room and most sunshine. While some perish in the attempt, or meet with only very indifferent success, the strongest of the strong buds survive.
