This medicine, combining Iron with pure vegetable tonics, quickly and completely cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weakness, Impure Blood, Malaria, Chills and Fevers, and Neuralgia.

It is an unfailing remedy for Diseases of the Kidneys and Liver.

It is invaluable for Diseases peculiar to Women, and all who lead sedentary lives. It does not injure the teeth, cause headache, or produce constipation—other medicines do. It enriches and purifies the blood, stimulates the appetite, aids the assimilation of food, removes heartburn and belching, and strengthens the muscles and nerves.

For Intermittent Fevers, Lassitude, Lack of Energy, &c., it has no equal.

The genuine has above trade mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. Take no more.

KNOW THYSELF.

A GREAT MEDICAL WORK ON MANHOOD.

Exhausted Vitality, Nervous and Physical Debility, Premature Decline in Man, Errors of Youth, and the untold miseries resulting from indiscretion or excesses. A book for every man, young, middle aged and old. It contains 125 prescriptions for all acute and chronic diseases, each one of which is invaluable. So found by the Author, whose experience for 23 years is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any physician. 300 pages, bound in beautiful French muslin, crossed covers, full gilt, guaranteed to be a finer work in every sense—mechanical, literary and professional—than any other work sold in this country for $2.50. The money will be refunded in every instance. Price only $1.00 by mail, post-paid. Illustrative sample 6c. Send now. Gold medal awarded the author by the National Medical Association, to the officers of which he refers.

The Science of Life should be read by the young for instruction, and by the afflicted for relief. It will benefit all—London Letter.

BEN BUTLER.

The appearance of Ben Butler at the National Democratic Convention, at Chicago, his conduct while there and his subsequent action, has been unadverted upon considerably; and with a good show of reason. It was a matter of surprise to many that he should appear there, but his presence was entirely in keeping with his general characteristics. We have known Gen. Butler for the past forty years, having heard him deliver a political address during the Polk campaign of 1844, and we have never heard him charged with extreme bashfulness or modesty. He had a good excuse for being at the Convention as he was of the duly accredited delegates from Massachusetts, but he had no right, as such a delegate to enter and take a part in the proceedings, as he did, unless he was determined to abide by the result, as he said that he should do; and if he fails to keep that promise he will prove recreant to his own word—which does not amount to much, we confess—and to the party which sent him to the Convention. He was at the time the regularly constituted candidate of two political parties and had signified his acceptance of their nomination, which would seem to have been a sufficient bar to his appearance at the Convention at Chicago. It would have been treating him with more than mild justice to have kicked him out unceremoniously, but it was possibly the part of wisdom to let him remain until the time arrived to give him a fitting rebuke by showing him that he was entirely without influence in that body. He had no moral right to be present and if he had been possessed of one particle of shame he would not have been there.

He said, before the convention assembled, that he came there as a Democrat and should work for the success of the candidate, whoever he might be. He retired from the convention discomforted and disgruntled and disappointed, and it is now a question whether he will support the nominees of the party or not. We do not see how he can, as he is a nominee for the same position himself; nor does it appear to us a matter of very great consequence whether he does or not. He may scheme and plot in the future, as he has ever done in the past, but his influence has departed. His bare-faced effrontery in appearing at the Convention and his deep disgruntlement at the cool treatment he received there show that he expected to wield an important influence in its deliberations, but was sadly disappointed. At last accounts he was nursing his wrath or doing penance for his folly and was severely silent as to his intentions in regard to the campaign. We think the Democrats of Massachusetts erred seriously in sending him to the Convention and we think he made the greatest mistake of his lifetime when he undertook a leading role in its action. Both were most fittingly rebuked, and the latter was given a most deserved censure which we trust will prove sufficient for him for all time to come, and that no more forever may a Democratic Convention be insulted by the presence of the hateful Ben Butler.

Mr. Cleveland has one great advantage as a Presidential candidate. In voting for him we shall not vote for anybody else to share the Presidency with him. Mr. Cleveland is a bachelor. Some people, to be sure, do not like bachelors, but when we consider the risk involved in the election of a "Lady of the White House" and the important part which that functionary has occasionally played in the affairs of the United States, the advantage of a candidate who is free from all entangling female alliances must be generally admitted. It must be confessed that the Lady of the White House has not always been a success. Sometimes there has been too much of her; some times there has been too much of her family; sometimes neither she nor her family has added greatly to the dignity of the government. Mr. Arthur has shown that a President can get along very well and can support the honor of the White House unexceptionably without the assistance of a wife, while Mr. Tilden has shown not less clearly that a bachelor candidate may get more votes than the most married candidate ever named. Bachelor Cleveland enters the race without encumbrances, and, as Mr. Dana says, may be the best man win.

The New York State Board of Health has considered it expedient to issue advice of sanitary precaution against the cholera, believing that the possibility and facilities for the introduction of the cholera into this country are too obvious to be disregarded. The floods throughout Europe and the United States, the attendant circumstances of the drying season, the increased immigration from the Mediterranean States to New York, and the destructive malignancy of the disease are thought to give warning for precaution. Preventive measures recommended by the board are careful sanitary inspections, the draining of stagnant pools and low grounds near dwellings; the cleansing and disinfecting of cellars, privies and all filthy places, and the examining and protecting the purity of drinking water. Although it may be true that the disease which alarms the world at present is of a comparatively mild type, the sanitary measures recommended by the Board of Health would be useful in any State and especially in the seaboard States of the country. Large cities are the centres of danger on account of their crowded condition and their debris; but in cities like Boston, in which great care has been given to sanitary questions, in which the summer heat is not long and when at its height is tempered by a sea breeze, and in which the tenements are better cared for than in many cities, alarm about cholera cannot reach the sharp dread of a certain and unavoidable epidemic. Sanitary advice is not unnecessary, however, even in the most favorable conditions of the country. If cleanliness may not be needed especially against the cholera, it is always necessary. Stagnant pools, filthy-sodden surfaces, foul sinks and other polluted places need vigilant attention, and delay is false economy under any circumstances.

Poor Woman.

Weak back; tremulous nerves; rheumatic muscles; dyspeptic stomach; torpid liver. Bad combination, isn't it? Well, vitalize your blood with Brown's Iron Bitters. Toney your nerves; banish rheumatism; drive out dyspepsia. Then you are a new woman. Mrs. W. A. Crawford, Tullahoma, Tenn., had nervousness and neuralgia. She derived great benefit from the use of Brown's Iron Bitters.

A Great Blood Medicine.

One of the best medicines ever known for the cure of diseases arising from impure blood, no matter from what cause is ROSADALIS. It is a great alterative medicine as well as a blood purifier. It cures Scrofula, Swellings, Goitre, Skin Diseases, Liver Complaint, Rheumatism, &c. Read the following important letter from a distinguished gentleman in Florida:

I have been a great sufferer for 15 years, not able to walk, from an injured leg. Have tried many M. D.'s and their remedies to little purpose. I believe ROSADALIS will cure me. Send me one dozen by steamer. It was recommended to me by a friend. I have taken 2 bottles, and find it helping me. The Druggists who usually keep it are out of it, and I cannot afford to wait the slow arrival of their supplies.

Is Your Blood Pure?

For impure blood the best medicine known, SCOVILLE'S SARSAPARILLA, OR BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP, may be implicitly relied on when everything else fails. Take it in the spring time especially for the impure secretions of the blood incident to that season of the year; and take it at all times for Cancer, Scrofula, Liver Complaints, Weakness, Boils, Tumors, Swellings, Skin Diseases, Malaria and the thousand ills that come from impure blood. To ensure a cheerful disposition take SCOVILLE'S BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP, which will restore the mind to its natural equilibrium.

Cheerful Conversation

is one of the pleasantest amenities of life. But a fluent talker whose "gems of thought" drop from lips which disclose yellow teeth going to rack and ruin, makes less impression than he or she otherwise would.
