Monsieur (now Lord) Petre is the first Catholic ecclesiastic who has sat in the British House of Lords since the Reformation.

Bismarck is said to be trying to buy out the Parisians. He has asked his countrymen to go the gay French town as little as possible.

Twelve thousand head of cattle, the largest consignment under the control of one man ever sent over the San Francisco Road from Missouri, were shipped recently. It required twenty-three trains or twenty-one cars each to consign the lot to market.

A grandson of Bellini, the composer, and the last of the name, has just committed suicide at Nice by jumping from the third story window of the hospital in which he was then a patient. A series of misfortunes had reduced him to follow the trade of a shoemaker for a living.

The Cross Gazette states that the Czar of Russia has abandoned his contemplated visit to Copenhagen in consequence of having been warned by the St. Petersburg police that the delegates of Nihilists and Anarchists at Paris and in Switzerland had gone to Denmark and were concerting another attempt upon his life.

It is thought the new theatre in New York city in course of construction on the site of the Standard Theatre will in all probability be completed and ready for occupancy about the first of October next. The building will cost about $100,000. The builders claim that it will be the only absolutely fire-proof theatre in the country.

The annual report upon the condition of the Southern Methodist Publishing House at Nashville, Tenn., lately submitted by the agent and book committee, shows a record of marked prosperity and a future of promise. The Christian Advocate has now reached a weekly circulation of 25,000 copies, whilst the Sunday-school literature has reached an aggregate monthly circulation of 430,500 copies. The old debt was reduced during the year $41,222, leaving it at $148,875, against $350,876 in 1878, showing a retirement of $202,001 in six years. The business of the past year aggregated $240,630, a gain of $62,807 compared with the previous year. In conducting the business all purchases and contracts are now made on a basis of absolute cash, and as a consequence, there are no debts.

An improved locomotive constructed at the shops of the Lehigh Valley Railroad under the supervision of Mr. George S. Strong, it is claimed, will draw a train on the New York division at the rate of eighty miles an hour. The engine weighs 100,000 pounds, and will develop a power of 1,400 or 1,500 horse power. The boiler is of steel, and will stand a pressure of 100 pounds to the square inch.

Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton writes from London that at a ball there among many pretty women the very prettiest was Oscar Wilde's young wife. She wore a wreath of white lilies around her lovely dark hair, her dark eyes were bright, her cheeks glowed, and she looked "as happy as love and beauty, all three, could make a girl." She had a fan to which were attached masses of lilies.

Fulllest assortment of Fishing Tackle can be found at JACOBI's.

A little more good, solid, sunshiny weather would be very pleasant to many of our people, and especially to the children.

Everybody in want of Paints, White Lead, Glass &c., should go to JACOBI's.

The glass which was broken yesterday in Mr. A. Liebman's store window was promptly paid for by the father of the lad who broke it.

Another large consignment of Sash, Doors & Blinds at Factory prices, just received at JACOBI's Hardware Depot.

The steamship Benefactor, Capt. Tribon, from New York, arrived at her wharf in this city this morning.

Every Farmer ought to get a "Boys Clipper Plover," greatest invention of the age. JACOBI is the Agent.

We hear of a good deal of malarial fever in some sections of Pender, Sampson and Duplin counties, though we are glad to state that but a very few cases have thus far proved fatal.

County Commissioners.

The Board of County Commissioners met in called session yesterday afternoon.

The tax assessments of John Sheridan, W. A. Roach (on property in Harnett township), Mrs. Martha J. James, Dr. A. D. McDonald, Mrs. Rachel H. Davis (in Cape Fear township), and Joseph Newman, were ordered to be reduced.

It was ordered that Geo. A. Poppe and Thos. Hicks be allowed to list their poll tax.

John A. Farrow, appointed Fish Inspector at a meeting of the Board Oct. 1st, 1883, and having failed to give the bond, the position was declared vacant and the same filled by the appointment of J. W. Alderman.

James D. Hedrick was appointed student at the State University.

The tax assessments of James O. Bowden and B. G. Worth were reduced. The Board then adjourned subject to the call of the chairman.

A Correction.

In our report yesterday of the accident at the Rocks we were mistaken as to the time. It occurred on Saturday afternoon, and it was a fisherman named Wm. Barclay, who rescued the ladies.

Mr. Editor:—

In your report yesterday of the accident that occurred at the Rocks on Saturday afternoon, you unintentionally did an injustice to the rescuers of the Misses Taylor which I hasten to correct. Mr. Barclay, who owns a small yacht and lives at the Rocks, happened to be in calling distance of the young ladies, one of whom, Miss Hattie, had disappeared for the third time. He hastened to the point at which the ladies were bathing and swam to the rescue of Miss Hattie, at the same time calling to a passing boat for assistance.

Although not an expert swimmer he succeeded in bringing her to dry land, and then through the knowledge and experience of Mr. Mayo she was restored to consciousness. Had it not been for the kindly actions of Mr. Barclay, the consequences would have inevitably been serious; and as an impartial possessor of the facts gathered a few hours after the accident, and not in any sense to deprecate the promptness and praiseworthy action of Mr. Mayo, but merely to give to Mr. Barclay the praise I know is his due. I now state the facts as they were. Miss Bessie was saved by an oar being handed her from the boat and Miss Annie Meares had succeeded in swimming to the shore. These little incidents, happening occasionally, as they do, are timely admonitions from a merciful Providence and should awake in us feelings of thankfulness.

WILMINGTON, Aug 12th, 1884.

Criminal Court.

The following were the transactions before this tribunal to-day:

State vs. Thomas Gillespie and Owen Walker, Larceny. Motion by defendants for amendment of the record. The cause coming on to be heard on motion of defendants, it appears to the court that this case was docketed at the February term, A. D., of the Criminal Court, that one Henry Pollard was prosecutor in the court of the Justice of the Peace, and that the defendants were bound over for their appearance at the said term of the Criminal Court; that no bill of indictment was ever found by a grand jury in the case, and that the defendants agreed to submit and pay the costs, and that judgment was suspended and costs paid and defendants discharged. It furthermore appears that this was not a case of larceny because the prosecutor had borrowed ten dollars from each of the defendants, one of whom, Thomas Gillespie, was his co-partner and had personally authorized these defendants to take 10 bushels of his peas from his stacks in payment of the debt. That these defendants, during the said term of Court, agreed with the prosecutor to pay the costs and stop the controversy, but that they had no idea of disfranchising themselves or of accepting any other consequences of a submission being entered up against them, and that they are both ignorant men in law matters.

The Court therefore orders and adjudges that this case be reinstated upon the docket, as of this term, and that the record be amended by striking out the submission of these defendants.

Submission stricken out, Nol pros. State vs. Ramson Jones, burglary. Now on trial.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the thermometer in this office registered 81 degrees—same as yesterday.

Only a slight sprinkle of rain to-day.

Some Sick Fancies.

Mr. Editor:—This is now the fourth week since I have been confined to the house, and most of the time to my bed. I asked the Doctor Saturday if he thought I would get out this week and he remarked that if I did it would be a "poor get out." A person who undergoes a long siege of fever certainly has some strange fancies during his delirious, some of which are really ludicrous. At the time I was suffering so intensely from pain in my eyes and head it seemed as though both my eyes and my nose had determined to take up their position in the back of my head, but as my mouth refused to join in the procession, my nose and eyes have reluctantly decided to recede to their proper places. It has been quite a number of years since I have been so sick, and I am not prepared to say that the quality of the medicine given has improved; in regard to effect it may be all right, but as to taste! Great General Jackson! they certainly have made gigantic strides in that direction. A fellow, in the good old times, could take a bite of apple, a grape or a little weak toddy "to take the taste out of his mouth," and go on swimmingly, and not dread the return of the next time. But that is all changed now. The more you undertake to take "the taste out" it only "sticks the faster." I verily believe, that it some ingenious Yankee will invent a concoction to take the taste of some of the medicine now given out of your mouth he would have an everlasting bonanza. It may be, however, that the doctors give, the druggists, sometimes, carte blanche to mix up whatever is at hand, and some of them have evidently become experts in mixing bad medicine to take. One day last week I sent my little boy down the street with a prescription to be filled; he stayed an unusual long time and upon being asked what made him stay so long, remarked that the druggist said he had none "ready mixed" and that it would "take a long time to mix it," and, "papa," said the little fellow, "it seemed to me that he went to every vial, bottle, jar, jug, jimmehohn and barrel in the store and put in a little from each and then put in a few drops of something he called ad lib, shook it up, and told me to "run home quick." The directions read: "teaspoonful every two hours. Well shaken." If the "well shaken" referred to the medicine, that was all right, but if it referred to the patient, the simple word "earthquake" would have been the better one. I spoke to my physician in regard to the intolerable and indescribable "taste" of that medicine, but he assured me that it was the correct thing, and that its arrival was very opportune; that if I could outlive the disease I would certainly get clear of the taste of the medicine.

Of course I read Wade Harris' chapter on sea sickness and sympathized with him as I have, as you know, "been there myself." A few eyenings after reading it, I was, in my imagination, on the Passport sailing down the bay and sure enough, as Wade described it, he was undergoing all manner of facial contortions, and reaching down endeavoring to unbutton his shoes to get his collar off, and begging everybody to throw him overboard. At last a big, stalwart fellow, with the remark "Poor fellow! it would be best for him," reached down, and before any one could say him nay, landed Wade over the stern and far out in the bay. "Man overboard," was sounded but it did not take many minutes for all on board to decide that it would be perfect folly to turn the Passport back as Wade would bear, fast as she is, an even race from there to Smithville. It was a grand sight. Ear in his rear could be seen pouring forth from his mouth an endless coil of undigested prose, indigestible poetry, unused railroad disasters, heart-rending murders, romantic elopements, etc., etc., etc., which was equal in volume and velocity to the wake of the Passport. Of course when the boat reached Smithville the natural enquiry was, what became of Wade Harris? And the answer from all sides was "He's all right. He landed in just fifteen minutes after he struck the water; twenty minutes ahead of the Passport's best time." He was found by a newspaper interviewer and expressed himself fully satisfied that a sea-water bath was a panacea for seasickness. And any one who watched him devour a dozen or so of Manager Sublett's pig fish would have said, "Correct." Remember, dear reader, that this version is all imagination. But Wade's yarn was indeed an in fact truth.

Compliments to all enquiring friends. If any one of them wants to know if I am sick, tell them oh, no! I am only lying up here roasting, and taking bad medicine for fun. I hope to be out of the Woods next week, and have an opportunity to give just one yell for Cleveland, Scales, Stedman and the rest of the grand old ticket.

Yours, "SICK."

Personal.

Mr. J. M. Cronly was taken sick on the 21st of May last, since which time he has been confined to the house until yesterday, the 11th inst., making a total of 81 days that he has been tied in, voluntarily to a sick room. It has been a tedious trial with him, and we congratulate him upon the recovered health that will permit him again to be out of doors.

Capt. D. O'Connor has recently returned to the city with Mrs. O'Connor, from a visit to relatives in the great Northwest. They were absent but fourteen days.

We regret to learn that Mr. A. R. Campbell is quite sick and confined to his house on the corner of Chestnut and Mulberry streets.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Aug. 11th, 1884.

As God, in His divine wisdom, has, on the 28th day of July, 1884, removed from our midst our beloved Brother, H. H. F. MANNING; and although we cannot understand His rulings, we bow to His will, knowing that everything He does is done for our welfare; therefore, the committee appointed at the regular meeting of the Howard Relief F. C. (No. 1), on the 4th day of August, 1884, adopted the following resolutions:

- That in the death of our Brother, this Company has lost one of its most efficient members and officers; one whose pleasure it was to do his duty.
- That we deeply sympathize with his bereaved widow and children.
- That we feel it will be hard to fill his place both as officer and member.
- That we deeply sympathize with his bereaved widow and children.
- That these resolutions be spread on our minutes; a blank page in our book of Record be inscribed with his name, date of birth and demise; and a copy of these resolutions be sent to his widow and to the daily papers with request of publication.
