MR. BEECHER TALKS PLAIN.

We are not an ardent admirer of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, but must admit that whatever may be his faults—and they are many—he knows how to use the English language comprehensively and to the point. Of this there can be little doubt after reading the following from him, which we copy from the New York World:

The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was called upon at his residence in Brooklyn yesterday by a World reporter. He was ruddy and chatted cheerily.

"I see," remarked the reporter, "that Mr. Blaine proposes to remain in Ohio until after the election."

"That's the place for him," ejaculated Mr. Beecher. "His entire battle is staked on that State. Should it go Democratic, or should the Republican majority be largely reduced, Mr. Blaine's chances for the Presidency will have gone up in a flume."

"But suppose, Mr. Beecher, that Ohio should give a good Republican majority, what then?"

"It would not affect the result in November. The people are going to put Mr. Cleveland in the Presidential chair anyhow. The quiet farmer and business vote will do it."

The following letter will explain itself:

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 6, 1884.

To Gen. R. A. Alger, Candidate for the Gubernatorial Office in Michigan:

DEAR SIR:—The publication of your telegram to Mr. James F. Joy, of Detroit, but now in London, and his reply compels me to publish the facts of an interview with him at his house at or about Sept. 29, 1877, in order to clear myself of the charge of bearing false witness against him. I have steadily refused to give to the public press the story of that interview at the hospitable board of a private house, but as the utterance of a public man about a public man I had a right to mention it privately among my intimate friends. In what way the partial and imperfect story of that interview got into the newspapers I do not know. Certainly not with my knowledge or privity. Misled by these reports you telegraphed to Mr. Joy in London:

DETROIT, Sept. 30, 1884.

Joy, care Brown, Shipley & Co, London.

"Did Blaine offer to appoint a committee to suit you if you took Little Rock bonds off his hands? Henry Ward Beecher says you told him Blaine did. ALGER."

Henry Ward Beecher said nothing of the kind—as you shall soon see. It was easy for Mr. Joy to reply.

LONDON, Sept. 30, 1884.

R. A. Alger, Detroit, Mich.

"Blaine never made me any offer to appoint a committee to suit me in any manner or form or for any consideration of any kind whatever.

J. F. Joy."

Please send to him the following narrative and you may depend upon it Mr. Joy will not contradict its substantial accuracy; neither will any one of the several gentlemen who were at the table with me; nor will other witnesses (not a few) deny that the same substantial statements have been made by Mr. Joy to others not infrequently. Towards the close of the dinner, Sept. 29, 1877, political matters were introduced, and among other things Blaine's failure to receive the nomination that went to Hayes. Mr. Joy spoke with contemptuous severity of Mr. Blaine and gave this statement:

"When a difficulty occurred in regard to certain lands in the Southwest in which I was interested a committee was about to be appointed by Congress to examine the matter, Blaine being Speaker of the House. Through a friend I asked Mr. Blaine to have one sound lawyer appointed on that committee, I did not care of which party. I simply wanted a sound lawyer. In a day or two Mr. Blaine sent me word through a friend that he had certain depreciated bonds and that if I would enable him to place them at par I could have my committee as I wanted it.

I cannot forget with what cutting scorn Mr. Joy leaned back in his chair and said, "That is the man Blaine is," and he added: "I refused the offer and as the courts soon settled the matter no committee was appointed."

At that time I knew nothing of the lands in question nor of the bonds alluded to, but I did understand fully Mr. Joy's opinion of James G. Blaine. What changed Mr. Joy's notion and led him to nominate Mr Blaine at the Chicago Convention of 1880 I do not know. It can probably be found out by inquiring of the editors of certain great daily newspapers, who hardly found language bitter enough for years to inveigh against Mr. Blaine and who now cannot find language enough to pour contempt upon the men who do not approve of placing Mr. Blaine in the Presidential chair. I shall not prolong this letter by narrating Mr. Blaine's views of the matter, in an interview with me which took place after my speech at Cooper Union during the Garfield canvass, at his own request, in the Fifth Avenue Hotel. I can hardly believe that he has forgotten that. I cannot but admit the indomitable pluck with which Mr. Blaine is defending himself against such a cloud of charges as was never made against any other Presidential candidate since the Government began. Yet I cannot allow myself to be misled by sympathy with his undoubted kind-heartedness, courage and audacity.

Unscund in statesmanlike judgment, unscrupulous in political methods, dimeyed in distinction between truth and untruth, absorbingly ambitious, but short-sighted as to the methods of gratifying his ambition, but with a genial social disposition and a brilliant rhetorical capacity, Mr. Blaine makes an alluring candidate, but would make a dangerous President

I pray you to excuse my adding to the cares of your canvass by a consideration of these matters. It was, however, but just to you to point out how misleading was your telegram to Mr. Joy and how irrelevant to the subject matter was his reply.

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

The last paragraph but one in the foregoing we think is about as comphrehensive as anything we have ever read, and to say that a man is "dimeyed in distinction between truth and untruth," is about as polite a method of calling such a man an unmitigated liar as we have ever heard.

FOREIGN FLOTSAM.

Paris, although unusually clean, is unusually deserted and unusually quiet just now.

Baroness Burdett-Coutts is represented to be in failing health and rarely enters society.

The Hague is said by correspondents to have the most expensive hotels in all Europe.

Most recent of the accusations against the Marquis of Lorne is that he is writing a novel.

There is a revival of the ancient story that London is to have a distinctively American hotel.

A relative of the late John Brown, by name McPherson, has become a groom in her Majesty's service.

Brighton, the famous English watering-place, is once more attracting large and fashionable crowds.

Mrs. Langtry's Chinese page has created quite a sensation in London, and is called the beauty's beast.

Brussels has quite a colony of Americans whose residence there is not altogether by choice or voluntary.

A considerable falling off in receipts is shown in the last report of the celebrated Langham Hotel, in London.

Street lamps in Berlin are extinguished at midnight, and the police carry lanterns instead of being preceded by a brass band.

Beatrice, the Princess, is said to be sad and melancholy. It is barely possible that she is addicted to eating home-made pie.

Mary Anderson will not receive any more floral tributes at the theatre, and forbids the ushers to bring them to the footlights.

Mrs. Mackey's dressmaker says she never pays more than $500 for a dress. Most people thought she paid a couple of thousand.

Take Ayer's Pills for constipation, and for all the purposes of a purgative medicine. Safe and effectual.
