[Sp. Corr. Daily Review.] WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 26, '87.

"What shadows we are and what shadows we pursue!" Twenty years indeed, throughout Grant's two terms, Elihu B. Washburn, who was buried to-day, was next to Grant himself, the mightiest man in all this country round. He was supposed to wield the power of the Executive. He had trotted the prospective President around thro he Northwest and had exhibited him to admiring crowds like a show horse at a fair, and had gathered no little personal glory thereby. He had established himself as Grant's mouthpiece, inasmuch as he had talked while Grant contented himell with bowing. On assuming his sat in the House his arrogance was woubled, and his colleagues, who lad been restive under its milder form, bore it with becoming patience. Donnelly alone, Donnelly of the Bacon-Shakespeare cypher, took up the fight and the mud flew, wall will recollect. Each proved gats. It was generally conceded that, like the wranglers Dr. Frankin tells about, they knew each other very well, but the majority of Con-Grant, and Donnelly went to the

He went into the Cabinet as Secment still about him to take the mission to France. No one seemed surpised that he should thus have had the "pick" and choice of the best positions in the gift of the Executive. The greatmen of the party, usually so jealous of each other, all stood meekly aside, while Wash-burn helped himself, and contented themselves with what he left.

Every one thought that his proection of German interests during the commune in Paris, and he did it bravely and well, would give him such strength with that important element in the United States, as to make him a formidable candidate for the Presidency, and I haveheard alleged that he cherished such hopes himself. But he dropped from this first class mission immediately out of sight, and not one man in ten housand, outside of the city in which he lived, knew whether he was niving or dead.

There was another man of the ame type, and with very much the same history, in the House about the same time. Like Washburn he was "bull headed," dogmatical and domineering. He was sent as minister to England, where he taught the britishers to play poker, and invest in mining stocks, much to their sorrow. The mine "busted" leaving the investors in a "parlous" condi- ute. tion, and casting a bad odor upon the minister that the spicy gales of Araby the blest could not blow

Schenck, who had held a general's commission in the U.S. Army, had been a leading member of the House of Representamember of the House of Representatives, and Minister to the Court of St. James.

And such is fame. This is the state of man.

or but indifferently remembered. Men, too, "whom not to know, argues thyself unknown." Was uot the "god like Daniel," accredited with "writing the dictionary," and his namesake, who did "write the dictionary" with the ante mortem remark, "I aint dead yet."

Many have laughed at the mistake, and yet, how many of the 15,000 readers of the REVIEW-I mention them because I know they are above the average in intelligence—can tell, off hand, where the two Websters were buried, or where they died?

Vanitas vanitatum. All is vanity! There is a prospect of a full house at the hearing of the anarchist case by the U.S. Supreme Court to-morrow. The court room, the old Senate Chamber, you know, is small, and will doubtless be packed as it used to be when its walls echoed the eloquence of Clay, Calhoun and Webster.

Much interest is manifested in political circles here to-night in the Prop. Drawers made to order. † election in Baltimore to-day. All the Baltimoreans temporarily residing here have gone home to vote. The Democrats seem confident, but the division in their ranks makes the result somewhat uncertain. But you'll know all about it before you get this.

Reading of that suggestion to use the monument fund to build an asylum for Confederate orphans, as a memorial to Grant, recalls a conversation that I had with a New York gentleman a few days ago, while strolling through Central Park. He told me he hadn't yet subscribed a dollar to the fund and didn't think he would, unless the project took some more useful shape than the stereotyped monument. We were then among the statues there, and had just passed Sir Walter Scott and his vis-a-vis, (on the opposite of the road) Bobby Burns, and he meant that sort of a thing, of course. There are a great many of his way of thinking, but whether they would care to honor the illustrious dead by repairing the damages of the war in this glorious way, remains to be shown. JACOBUS.

The New York Herald joins hands with the Star of that city in upholding the regular Democratic ticket. They are fighting the Times and the Tribune, regular Republicans, and coalitionists will feel greatly disheartened at the result of a similar movement in Baltimore.

Politics in New York City are muchly mixed and yet they are not very difficult of comprehension .-The Democrats are united and have himself a champion mud-thrower a strong ticket in the field and the and a thorough master of billings- Republicans there are trying on the old dodge which played the wild with them in North Carolina. They have nominated a weak-kneed Demgress remained with the friend of ocrat for the head of their ticket. But the old line war horses are ready for the fray and they will retary of State, and in a few weeks whip out the coalitionists there as retired with the odors of the Depart- they did in North Carolina. The New York World favors the bolters-

> B. F. Butler's argument before the U. S. Supreme Court yesterday, in behalf of the Chicago dynamiters, as it is outlined in the telegraphic reports, was as mild as milk and as sickening as a spoonful of whiskey in a tumbler of water. This surprised us somewhat, we must confess, as we have long been aware of the fact that the Beast is as chock-full of intelligence as he is devoid of princi ple and decency. As our friend Col. - used to say, in speaking of a local polician, "he is the smartest d—d rascal in the lot."

Interesting Services.

Reformation services in memory of the 370th anniversary of the Reformation will be held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church to-morrow. The services, both morning and night, will be in English and will be conducted by Rev. W. Kimball, agent of the North Carolina College of the Lutheran Church. A number of addresses appropriate to the occasion will be made to the Sunday School at 3 p. m. An interesting feature of the services will be the presence of a very excellent life size picture of Martin Luther nail ing the 95 theses against the walls of the church at Wittenberg, which was painted by Mr. C. V. Richards of this city.

City Court.

There was a small docket for the Mayor's consideration this morning, which was disposed of in the following order:

Richard Stowe, colored, disorderly conduct. This defendant was arraigned on the 25th inst., but asked for a continuance to enable him to secure important witnesses. The continuance was granted but before he was again locked up he itself was almost a failure on acmanaged to escape, but after being count of the rain but that the cereabsent a couple of days came back and voluntarily surrendered himself. At the trial this morning it was shown that he resisted and abused the officer who made the original arrest. He was fined $20 for the offense, with the alternative of being confined 30 days in the city prison.

Donald Stewart, who was arrested some days since for causing fright and disturbance in the neighborhood of Fifth and Nun streets, was discharged with the express understanding that he leave the city without delay.

Rock Crystal Spectacles and Eyeglasses. Advice to old and young: In selecting spectacles you should be cautious not to take more magnifying Oakdale Cemetery this week; one power than has been lost to the eye as in the same proportion that you pass that point of increase, will cause you further injury to the eye. Using glasses of stronger power than is ne cessary is the daily cause of premature old age to the sight. You can get the best at Heinsberger's.

The oyster season is now in full swing and Mr. W. H. Yopp, on South Front street, is prepared to fill all orders for fish and oysters intrusted to him. Orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Attention is invited to the change of schedule of the New York steamers. The schedule is now a close one, the interval being five days between the boats. The Gulf Stream and the Benefactor will do the work.

A Good Joke.

We hear of a rich joke which was perpetrated in this city upon one of our scholarly clergymen, which is too good to be lost. A gentleman honest treatment. who had met with a severe accident wished to write to his brother, but was prevented on account of his wounds. The clergyman in question, hearing of the man's unfortunate dilemma, volunteered to write the letter for him. The kind offer was gratefully accepted, the writer, who is an excellent penman, taking some extra pains to have the missive appear neat and well written. When completed it was read to the wounded man who was well pleased with the contents, but when asked if there was anything he would have added, replied: "Yes; say, 'please excuse bad writing and spelling!"

Opera House.

The Baltimore Sun of the 25th inst., in speaking of Mr. John S. Clarke and his company, who are to appear at the Opera House here next Monday night, says:

At Ford's Opera House, John Sleeper Clarke, the renowned comedian, appeared last night in "The Heir at Law." Mr. Clarke, who displayed his wonted exquisite humor and touching pathos as Pangloss and Homespun, was his great selfand delighted his large audience beyond measure. The support was magnificent, including as it did Creston Clark as Dick Dowlas. The old Baltimore favorites, Theodore Hamilton and Mrs. Germon, as Lord and Lady Duberly, were received with flattering applause. Miss Olga Brandon, the beautiful actress, as Lady Clara, and Marie Hudspeth, as Mrs. Grenville, were perfect in their parts, and in "A Fair Encounter."

The Zeb Vance Stove, like its namesake, is welcome in all North Carolina homes. It is to be found at Jacobi's Hdw. Depot.
