She was fearfully emaciated and appeared almost starved. He got her into the buggy and wrapped a waterproof around her and started for assistance. On the way she rambled so in her talk that the gentle. man soon found that she was inscne. She said that the Lord had com. manded her not to eat and that the devil was trying all of the time to get her to say that she was hungry: but she would not, for in that case her soui would be lost. The kindhearted gentleman drove to severa places in the neighborhood, trying to get assistance from some of the colored people near by, but found considerable difficulty in securing it. At last, by a payment of money, a colored man took her in and promised to care for her until assistance could be sent. Mayor Fowler was afterwards seen and he promised that he would send out for her today and have her cared for. The unfortunate creature's name is Minnie

An effort was made to have the Marine Parade to-morrow afternoon take place at 5 o'clock instead of 3, as it is now announced. The change cannot be made, however, and we are requested by the committee to say that it will take place positivly at 3 o'clock.

Capt. R. P. Paddison hastendered the use of the Queen's wharf, just South of Dock street, from whence the soldiers can witness the Marine Parade to-morrow afternoon. This wharf, the Custom House wharf and those two just North of Princess street will probably be sufficient for the brigade.

Assurances Realized.

Just as soon as the matter was called to his attention Mr. James H. Chadbourn, Jr., General Manager of the Seacoast R. R., issued an order to the effect that but 25 cents for the round trip will be charged soldiers during the remainder of the Encampment. Our friends at the camp will thus see that the assurances we gave them last Saturday morning have been realized.

In Camp Yesterday.

Sunday in camp is generally a peaceful, placid day and yesterday greet the troupe during the remainwas no exception to the rule. It was ing evenings of their stay in this city. The entertainments they give different, though, very essentially, are of a high order of merit and are from those the tar heels were wont entitled to the warm appreciation to spend in camp during the late civil war. Then, when they were not called upon to do a little fighting (and somehow Sunday seemed to be a favorite day with the great leaders for this diversion) they amused themselves in camp by alternately dozing the sunlit hours away and hunting around among the rags which covered their sorely-tried bodies for "greybacks," a breed of insects which seems to have become extinct of late years.

There were joint religious services yesterday in the camp, both forenoon and afternoon. The first was conducted by Rev. Dr. Harding, Chaplain of the First Regiment, and Rev. Dr. Carmichael, Chaplain of the Second Regiment. Those of the afternoon were conducted by Rev.
