THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. XIII. WILMINGTON, N. C., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1889. NO. 33.

The street car strike in New York is over with. The companies are victorious, all along the line. The men are rushing back to secure their places. On some of the roads they are taken back only on a pledge to quit the unions. It is a sore defeat for the Knights of Labor.

A bill is now before the legislature the terms of which authorize the return to the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley R. R. of $101,000 in bonds now held by the State Treasurer, which were deposited there as provisional payment for convicts furnished by the State to work on the road. The conditions of the sale, confirmed by a succeeding act of the legislature, were that a certain number of convicts should be furnished the C. F. & Y. V. R. R. Co. For the services of these convicts (600 in number) the company agreed to deposit bonds with the State Treasurer, said bonds to be returned if the company complied with the terms of the purchase and completed the road as per agreement. Instead of 600 convicts the road got but 165. A second act was passed, extending the time to the road, and it was therein agreed that 250 convicts should be assigned to the work, but even in this instance the State failed to produce the labor. The road now asks that these bonds be returned to them, the said bonds not being held as assets but simply subject to the rights of the company. We cannot see anything unreasonable in this request. The bonds were never intended to revert to the State, save in the event of a failure on the part of the road to fulfill its contract with the State. But the State itself defaulted on this contract, in her failure to supply the working force agreed upon, and this failure entailed the other. Had the convicts been furnished, as agreed on, then the officials of the road say that they would not only have completed their entire contract but would have been able to save a large amount of money which they have been compelled to expend for labor. It seems to us that the right and justice and equity of this matter is plainly with them and that the Legislature can hardly hesitate in passing the act for the return of the bonds.

The farmers are complaining of the emigration of laborers to Arkansas. This means, we presume, that good farm labor will be scarce this year.

Cannot something be done to improve the approaches to Pine Forest Cemetery? The sand at the Eastern extension of Red Cross street is some of the heaviest to be found anywhere.

The shell road is now in very good condition, needing only a little work at the sound end. The trees which Mr. Haar has so carefully tended for years past have grown well and during the coming summer will give a grateful shade to much of the drive.

Bogue Inlet, Onslow county, is said to have a depth of 12 feet at high water and the vessels carrying as much as 200,000 feet of lumber have crossed the bar. This is a surprise to us and if true gives Bogue as much water as we had here fifteen years ago, on either bar.

Rutherfordton.

The Charlestonians now have communication by rail with Rutherfordton, and the rich country of which it is the centre, and will do all they can to secure the trade of that section. As an entering wedge, the News and Courier, with its characteristic enterprise, has sent a special correspondent to that town and he has worked up a handsome article, two columns long, solid type. How many of our people have ever been to Rutherfordton, notwithstanding the fact that it is on a direct line with this city, as the terminus of the Carolina Central R. R? To show what it is we clip here a small portion of the article in the News and Courier:

A hundred and ten years ago Rutherford county was formed from a portion of old Tryon county, and three years thereafter the present town of Rutherfordton was commenced. The location was happily chosen, the town being built on a ridge or "turtle back," seventy-five feet above a splendidly watered valley, which is encompassed by a range of hills rising to a height of several hundred feet above the town. These topographical conditions not only ensure Rutherfordton perfect drainage, but also afford protection from severe winds. The winter climate is, therefore, very mild for this latitude, and with the light, dry atmosphere and equable temperature, there are few sanctuaries, for those afflicted with pulmonary diseases, like this sheltered mountain cove.

The scenery in this section is very beautiful and some of the views are magnificent. From a spur or foot hill near the town most of the great North Carolina mountains east of Asheville are visible. Seventeen miles to the southwest the violet hued peaks of the Tryon range are outlined like the turrets of a giant fortress against the clear sky. Beyond and farther south, rises the euphonious "Hog Back," and to the eastward the "Sugar Loaf," "Bear Wallow" and "Bald" mountains lift their heads toward the sky.

A way to the north looms the distant snow-topped crests of the Black Mountain range, while above them all glistens in the wintry sunlight the gleaming brow of "Mitchell's Peak," around whose lofty summit the feathery snow clouds cluster like hoary locks fringing a Titan's crown.

New Species of Cotton.

During the summer of 1885 Hector C. Bailey, a colored man living in Harnett county, N. C., discovered on the bank of the Cape Fear river a plant resembling cotton. The growth and leaf of this plant being so peculiar, he determined to watch it closely. In the fall he found it had produced cotton, the fibre of which was remarkable for its length and very fine and silky in texture. He carefully saved the seed and each year the parent plant was exactly produced in all its peculiar characteristics. The leaf is small and finger shaped, thus allowing the sunlight and air free access to the bolls, causing a more rapid and perfect ripening, at the same time preventing rot and mildew, which always affect the common plant in prolonged wet weather and more frequently in rich bottom lands. The season of 1888 Bailey had seed enough to plant one acre, from which he raised two bales which yielded from 38 to 42 pounds of lint to the 400 of seed cotton. Cotton experts who have examined the lint claim that it is the only variety of cotton that can be successfully raised in the interior capable of competing with the Sea Island in staple. In November, 1887, Bailey refused $86 per bushel for the seed, but we learn from the State Chronicle that parties in Raleigh have formed a company to be known as the "Bailey Cotton Company," and have bought the entire crop of Bailey seed and the right to plant and sell the same.

The Permanent Encampment.

He spoke yesterday of the fact that Summer Rest, at Wrightsville Sound, had been selected as the site for a permanent encampment and this is confirmed by a short paragraph which we find in the Raleigh News and Observer, stating that General Lewis had recommended Wrightsville as the place and that His Excellency, Gov. Fowle, had recommended an appropriation for a permanent encampment there. A bill for this appropriation has been defeated in the Legislature but there are several Wilmingtonians in Raleigh urging a reconsideration and they have good hopes of success.

Those Hair Mattresses.

Our readers will notice a new advertisement of Howell & Cumming in this issue. We have seen one of the hair mattresses they are making a specialty of, and can say to any one in need of a nice bed, that it is just as represented and is remarkably cheap. We also noticed at their place of business, opposite the City Hall, springs and spring beds of very superior make, some chair cushions which are at once ornamented and useful, besides other things in this line, such as feather pillows, &c.

We think Mr. Cumming (to whom the business now belongs, Mr. Howell having moved to Richmond) is doing a good work for our people's health, too, in renovating old moss and hair mattresses. To insure health this should be frequently done, especially after sickness.

Rock Crystal Spectacles and Eyeglasses.

Advice to old and young: In selecting spectacles you should be cautious not to take more magnifying power than has been lost to the eye as in the same proportion that you pass that point of increase, will cause you further injury to the eye. Using glasses of stronger power than is necessary is the daily cause of premature old age to the sight. You can get the best at Heinsberger's.

Chamber of Industry.

The adjourned meeting of the business men of this city was held last night in the City Court Room, and it was largely attended. Mr. Jno. D. Bellamy, Jr., was called to the chair.

Mr. J. M. Foshee, chairman of a committee on organization appointed at a recent meeting, reported that a full plan of organization had not yet been perfected. He reported that they had not yet perfected the instrument, and asked to be continued for that purpose. They, however, submitted some features to be embodied in the constitution, which were discussed and adopted. The most important were the following: The organization should be known under the name of The Chamber of Industry of Wilmington, N. C.; that its officers should consist of a president, three vice presidents, a secretary, a treasurer and a board of thirty six directors; that the first six officers be selected from the board of directors; that the meetings should be held on the first and third Mondays of each month; that the dues should be placed at fifty cents per month, and be used for advertising the advantages of the city of Wilmington; and that there should be distinct departments of work, as sanitation, immigration, sewerage, streets and manufacturing.

At the suggestion of the chairman, a Legislative committee was added whose province it shall be to look after legislation that may affect the city's interest in any way.

During the course of the meeting Mr. Don McRae submitted some thoughts relative to the possible conflict between this body and the Chamber of Commerce, advising caution in that particular, as any antagonism would lessen the influence of each body. It was stated that it was the declared object to act as a supplement to the Chamber of Commerce, and not to antagonize it in any way.

At the invitation of the chairman, Mr. Hester, from Raleigh, also addressed the meeting, relative to the usefulness of such an organization, instancing several towns of the State that are being thus advanced.

Many of those present enrolled themselves as members.

The meeting adjourned to meet on Monday night, the 18th inst.

The Board of Directors elected is as follows: Wm. E. Worth, Isaac Bates, Chas. M. Stedman, John D. Bellamy, Jr., C. W. Worth, J. M. Forshee, W. R. Barksdale, H. A. Burr, N. Jacobi, Oscar Pearsall, J.
