Entitled to the Best.

All are entitled to the best that their money will buy, so every family should have, at once, a bottle of the best family remedy, Syrup of Figs, to cleanse the system when costive or bilious. For sale in 50c and $1.00 bottles by all leading druggists.

Mr. Westbrook, proprietor of the fine truck farm at Wrightsville, shipped in three days of this week 9,000 quarts of strawberries. He sent off 3,500 quarts on Wednesday. The Seacoast R. R. handled it all. His young peach trees are promising well this year, the first they have fruited, and he expects to make large shipments from these.

John T. Patrick.

Capt. John T. Patrick, who has so faithfully served the people of this State as Commissioner of Immigration for many years past, has resigned that position to enter a larger field. He will become General Commissioner of Immigration of the Southern States. The appointment was made by the Southern Inter-State Immigration Association, which convened in Montgomery, Ala., last December, and which projected, and is preparing to hold, the great permanent exposition of Southern products at the North in the fall. Mr. Patrick has himself been the prime mover in this great undertaking. Capt. Patrick has our best wishes for success in his new field of labor and we are sure he will achieve it. We know him and have known him for long. The Southern Inter State Association are to be congratulated on having secured his services.

"Death has so many doors to let out Life," sang an old time poet. In those days they had not discovered remedies that shut these doors. How different is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery from the old time doses. Consumption or lung scrofula is one wide door that it shuts, if taken in time. Don't waste a moment then, lest life slip through that open door. It is guaranteed to cure in all cases of diseases for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be refunded.

OUR DEATHLESS DEAD.

A Beautiful Day for the Sad Memorial Services at Oakdale—The Route and the Procession—Gen. Cox's Magnificent Address.

The sun rose bright and clear on this Memorial Day and as if in special deference to the occasion, yesterday's heat was somewhat tempered by a pleasant breeze from the Northwest. An unusual interest seems to have been manifested. The banks were not opened at all and but little has been done in the way of business. Nearly all of the stores were closed at 2 o'clock and the down-town streets at that hour assumed a deserted air. The procession was not as lengthy as usual. The arrangements were all admirable and there was no hitch and no confusion. As near as possible it was formed in accordance with the programme as published. The route was on Fourth street to Red Cross and on Red Cross to Oakdale. Mayor Fowler had caused the streets to be thoroughly sprinkled early in the forenoon and the dust was pretty well laid. Red Cross had been newly laid by the city carts with sawdust, contributed by the millowners, and the walk there was a pleasant one. The Germania Cornet Band was in line and discoursed some delightful music and our gallant soldier boys, the Wilmington Light Infantry, were out in full Summer uniform.

The proceedings in the Confederate enclosure at Oakdale, under the shadow of the bronze soldier who keeps there his perpetual watch and yard, were opened with the following beautiful prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. S. Creasy:

Oh, Thou God of nations, kindreds, peoples and tongues, we come before Thee at this hour to acknowledge Thy supremacy and to claim Thy benediction. We adore Thee for the manifestations of Thyself as the God of our fathers; that Thy hand hath led them and Thy voice cheered them through all the past, and though shadows have fallen along their way they have been relieved by the brightness of Thy face and the sweetness of Thy promises. We have come, O Father, to commemorate the virtues, patriotism and devotion of those who, at their country's call, went forth to do and to bear in a cause which they felt to be right, and sealed that conviction with their lives. We thank Thee that they ever lived, and that they have shown such fidelity to their country's call. We bless Thee for the privilege of keeping their memories fresh and green, by song, music, address, and the scattering of beautiful flowers over their sleeping forms. May Thy blessings rest upon the Association represented here to-day. May their efforts to keep alive the memory of the faithful and true who sleep here be abundantly successful, and may it be perpetuated through succeeding generations. Send Thy blessing upon our country at large. May peace, prosperity and happiness attend her. Bless, we beseech Thee, our beloved South land. Preserve us from calamity and disease. Let Thy benediction rest upon our dear Old North State. May her escutcheon grow brighter as the years go by. Bless the speaker of this hour and all who participate in these exercises. We would especially commend to Thy love and care the relatives, comrades, friends and loved ones of those whose memories we recall this day. We pray for the pardon of all our sins, national and individual. May none of them rise in the judgment against us. May our constant prayer and effort be, Nearer My God to Thee. At last may we all be gathered at Thy Right Hand, where we mourn not for our dead, but where together we shall celebrate the praise of Him who conquered death, hell and the grave. These favors and blessings we ask in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

The prayer was followed by music by the choir, and this by a dirge by the Germania Band and then Gen. William Ruffin Cox, the orator of the day, was very handsomely introduced to the assembly by Capt. Chas. D. Myers, the Chief Marshal. Gen. Cox spoke extemporaneously, without manuscript and almost without notes. As commander of the division to which his brigade was attached, during the last days of the war and at Appomattox, he was in a position to handle well the theme which had been assigned him, "From Petersburg to Appomattox." It was a magnificent address, clear and concise in statement, pure in diction and eloquent in expression. We would have been very glad to publish it here but for the fact that it was not written out and could not therefore be had. But if possible, it should be reduced to writing and published.

and scattered broadcast as a truthful history of the last days of those four years of a terrible warfare. Gen. Cox is a man of splendid physique, tall and commanding in appearance and yet with an attractive personality that few can resist. He is a native of the State, having been born at Scotland Neck, and the best years of his life have been devoted to the service of his native land.

The "Roll of Honor" followed the address, then that grand hymn of the church militant, "Soldiers of Christ, Arise," and then followed the floral offerings and the doxology and the benediction, the close of the services being announced by the volley fired by the Wilmington Light Infantry.

One of the most beautiful and touching features of the entire ceremony was a tribute paid by the Memorial Association to the late Hon. A. H. VanBokkelen, for so many years their trusted guide, counsellor and friend. After the tribute to the soldiers had been placed on the mound, Capt. A. L. DeRosset stepped forward and said:

But before our work is done, one tribute more remains—not another laurel wreath sacred to the Soldier heroes who fought and died for the cause they loved so well—but an offering to the memory of one who loved that cause no less than they; whose generous arms were stretched out to help the living or to honor the dead Confederate, and whose loving zeal never flagged till this noble statue of the Soldier Boy "at rest" stood here to tell to future generations the story of the lost cause.

Here the speaker handed out the offering to be placed on the Mound and said: "The Ladies Memorial Association, to Adrian H. VanBokkelen, in grateful remembrance of his untiring devotion to their work in memory of the Confederate Dead."

When the offering was placed he proceeded: "But the ladies, feel that the services of to-day would not be complete without some further expression of their sense of the loss they have sustained in the death of Mr. VanBokkelen and therefore desire to have read in the presence of this assemblage the following: 'In Memoriam,' Preamble and Resolutions, which were unanimously adopted at a late meeting of their body:

"WHEREAS, Since our last annual gathering Adrian H. VanBokkelen, preeminently the friend of the Confederate Soldier, has passed from earth to join the mighty host beyond the River, it seems fitting that we should place on record our deep sense of the loss we have sustained in the death of this friend, so good, so faithful, so great-hearted in his unflinching interest and helpfulness in our labor of love.

His zeal in our work was but the last chapter of the story of devotion which Mr. VanBokkelen bore for the Southern cause, through those long years of glory and of victory, of hardship and disaster. Though he did not wear the soldiers' gray, he had the heart of a lion to do them service; ever ready if need be to brave the dangers of the battle-field to carry them aid, to bring comfort and succor to the sick and wounded in hospital wards—or to help with generous hand the Soldier in the camp, or his loved ones left behind in desolate homes to fight their battle of life in dreary loneliness. Widows maintained and cheered—orphans supported and educated, for the love he bore the dead hero husband and father. Manacled prisoners freed from the enemy's clutches when under sentence of death. Bounteous donations poured into the empty haversacks of famishing soldiers. The cup of cold water administered midst the perils of battle. The mantle of charity for all offences less than disloyalty to the Southern Cause. Uncompromising adherence to principles for which he risked life and property, and in whose cause he gave his noble son. All these, and they are but facts, would be but a meagre index to the record which we would affectionately inscribe to him on this day he honored.

Well do we remember his enthusiastic interest in the proceedings of Memorial Day; year after year marching in procession with the Veterans of the 3rd, the regiment of tenderest association to him, clinging with a brother's love to the shattered remnants of that gallant band, whose stained and tattered flag still tells that their deeds of glory, from Malvern Hill to Appomattox were written in letters of blood on the pages of Confederate History.

Well do we recall the peculiar air of mingled pride and tenderness with which he used to accept the privilege always accorded him of placing on this mound with his own hands our floral tributes to the dead heroes sleeping their last sleep in peaceful Oakdale shades, waiting the summons to the Grand Reveille. Neither can it be soon forgotten how he stood by unflinching and saw a large fortune go up in flames and smoke at the hands of his own mistaken friends for the sake of the
