JOSH. T. JAMES, Editor & Prop'r. WILMINGTON, N. C.

TUESDAY, FEB. 18, 1890.

Entered at the Postoffice at Wilmington, N.C.

The Senate of the United States was in a generous mood on Friday, and it passed without protest a bill allowing President Harrison's old law firm $2,500 for services to the the New York Star, that may have been morally just, but it could not have been legally enforced, and an Auditing Committee had decided that its fate would have to be settled by the "generosity" of Congress. If it had been the claim of a private person, it would probably have been promptly throttled; but as it affected the President's pocketbook, it went through with a rush. It made a very nice valentine for the President, and it is greatly to the credit of men like Senators Farwell and Cullom, who have been hostile to him, that they did not strangle it, as they might. Perhaps they think that it will make General Harrison more complaisant in accepting their recommendations for office. But if valentines are to be the order of the day in the White House, it was very discourteous to pass over the other members of the household and the entire Presidential family.

First and foremost among the people who ought to have had valentines is Prince Russell. He deserves one not only because of his position as heir-apparent, but also for his recent good behavior. He has not tried to steal a State nor has he sold his name to a newspaper for several obscurity which he adorns. It was a shame that the Senate did not. give so good a boy a valentine.

It is impossible, says the Boston Post, to read Mr. Carlisle's clear and honest statement of the attitude of the Democratic minority in the flouse without realizing the fact that Speaker Reed, while scoring a victory for unrestrained partisanship, has made a lamentable failure as a statesman. Mr. Carlisle, speaking for his associates, represents the conservative force in our governprescribed by that in erpretation of dard medicine, and has won this pothe Constitution of the UnitedStates dispute for a century, and whose effect has been to preserve the rights of all concerned in free legislation. His protest is against the denial of rights so long held to be sacred under the Constitution, and of methods of legislation which experience has shown to be necessary for the protection of the public interests. "We are not contending," he says, "for the right of the minority to govern, as the supporters of the Speaker have endeavored to make the country believe. On the contrary, we are denying the right of a minority to eject members from their seats or to pass laws for the government of the people. Under the Constitution a majority of the members of the House constitute a quorum to do business, and we are simply insisting that less than a majority shall not do business. We are contending that the majority shall take the responsibility which properly belongs to them, and shall come to the House of Representatives and vote. if they desire to control its proceed-

No one, Mr. Carlisle says, can foresee the evils that may result from the establishment of a system which assumes to abolish these safeguards, and in this he only echoes the warnings of Mr. Blaine, Mr. Garfield, Mr. Hawley, and, in fact, every public man who has spoken from knowledge and experience of the subject. To attempt the overthrow of the practice and the principles which of the people Price per annum, $2.65; of for one year to have such support, as Mr. Reed has attempted for partisan ends, is a short sighted policy, a political mistake, whose failure can be masked by no momentary successof party
