HUNGRY REPUBLICANS.

During the first year of President Harrison's Administration, says the New York Times-Dispatch, the Republican newspapers and orators have been remarkably silent concerning changes in Federal offices. The reason for this silence is quickly found when one undertakes to get at the statistics of changes for the years_ending March 4, 1886, and March 4, 1890. It is not easy to get at the exact figures, for there appears to be a decided inclination to go into details in the Postoffice Department, where, under the good Mr. Wanamaker, the headman's axe 26 and 27. has been swung by arms that never tire. If, however, the records of that department were opened for and 4. inspection they would show that, in round numbers, 33,000 Democratic postmasters were kicked out between March 4, 1889, and the same date in 1890, to make room for as many Republicans, whose appoint-

From March 4, 1885, to March 4, 1886, covering the first twelve months of Mr. Cleveland's Administration, there were, approximately, 18,700 persons appointed postmasters at places below the grade of Presidential postoffices. The number of nominating messages sent to the Senate during that time by President Cleveland was 1,862, containing the nominations in round and all painful affections. Omitting Army and Navy promotions, there were also in these messages the nominations holders, making an aggregate of changes during Cleveland's first year of 20,500.

Under Mr. Cleveland's Administration the railway mail service was not protected by the civil service laws. During the whole four years of that term just 1,999 changes were made in that important branch of the Post Office Department. The railway mail service was brought within the civil service rule on May 1, 1889, under cluding first-class an order issued before Mr. Cleveland retired, yet between March 4 and July 1st of last year, under Harrison's ideas of civil service reform, 2,434 changes were made in the rail- Practical Farming and Gardening, way mail service, thus making, in five months, 435 more changes in that service under Harrison than were made in four years under Cleve-

The railway mail service appointments are not included in the comparative figures given for the first year of the two Administrations. If they had been taken into account, together with the hundreds of changes made in the various executive departments, the difference in byterian Church.
