be much surprised if he were to propose a congress for universal disarmament. Men have already become convinced that he is sincerely religious, and that he has no ambition for bloodshed. A little time ago, wishing to realize the sensations of a soldier on guard, he put himself on duty for twenty-four hours in an extemporized guard room in his own garden at Pots-two hours each during that time. He wore the uniform of a private soldier, carried a rifle and ate of the soldier's ordinary. But, unlike Peter the Great, who did these things often enough in real earnest-mixing with the soldiers and lying down beside them-William II disappeared. "Don't you know w took his little diversion all alone. No has become of it?" When the whole thing Rochester Post-Express. was over he was asked how he had enjoyed standing sentry at night, and he answered: "I was thinking all the time how many millions of poor wretches have gone through the drudgery of military life while loathing it, and have got less cases have been permanen killed in wars for the causes of which they did not care a button."-Cor. Flogged in Spite of Law.

Great excitement has been caused in so called Liberal circles by a very severe flogging which was administered to one of the students arrested during the late university disturbances. When questioned concerning his participation in the meetings and protests, he gave unsatisfactory replies, was threatened in consequence with drastic measures, and, threats proving unavailing, he was soundly flogged. His appeals to the law absolutely forbidding this species of punishment in Russia were derided. The next day he managed to send information of what had happened to the marshal of nobility of his district, then in St. Petersburg. This personage reported the matter directly to the emperor, and I am informed that his majesty has dismissed all the officials legally responsible for the flogging, not excepting M. Verkhoffsky, one of Gen, Gresser's staff. -Cor. London Telegraph.

A Catcher Killed by a Ball. Ben Myers, colored, catcher of the Southern Star Baseball club, which went down to Montgomery on a picnic of the Eureka Aid and Social club, was struck during the game by a passed ball and instantly killed. The ball was hot from the picther's hands and struck Myers on the neck and broke it. Everything was done to bring the dead man to life until it was found that his neck was broken. He wore no mask and was Under New Management. STAVES, W-W. O. Barrel. 8 09 @14 00
