The great State of Nevada, with its enormous population, 60,000 or thereabout, is without a Governor or Lieutenant Governor, recent deaths having vacated both of those offices, and must do without a Chief Magistrate until the next election. Still the depopulation of the State, by emigration, continues to go bravely on, and, as that is the chief industry of the State, it really seems that the somewhat expensive office of Governor might be permanently dispensed with.

The Chicago Tribune still refuses to be reconciled to the new tariff law. In a recent editorial, severely criticising McKinley's speech at Milleraburg, it says: "Precious little gratitude the Ohio farmer feels when he is fold that Indiana, Aus, tralian, Canadian and Russian wheat is to be kept out of this country by a heavy tariff tax, for it never got in, and while the American farmer is protected by the best agricultural machinery against the cheap labor of those counties, it never will."

..... To the suggestion that it is entirely without precedent that a district in Massachusetts sho ild seek a Representative outside its own limits. Dr. Everett, the Democratic caudidate for Congress in the Sixth district, retorts that the several Representatives of Massachusetts in the 51st Congress who made the Representatives of other States instead of their own constituents their political advisers, are not in position to criticise a district which only goes a few miles from its extreme border to get its candidate.
