THE SENATORIAL ELECTIONS.
On the 23d of March, 1875, the terms of twenty-five United States Senators will expire.

OUR FAULTY LETTER.

The Swasey Suit—Its History—Its Present Status—The Efforts of the Senate to Consolidate the Trust—The Resolutions of Mr. McNeill's Resolution—State Printer.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 27, 1873.
EDITORIAL JOURNAL.—Yesterday a motion of considerable importance was argued in the Circuit Court.

The publication of this fact has given rise to the belief in some quarters that the result of the late elections will materially affect the political character of the Senate, which is not the fact.

THE CURRENCY.

General Gordon, United States Senator from Georgia, says the Richmond Dispatch talks very soundly about the currency.

SUNSHINE IN THE HOUSE.

"Take that home with you, dear," said Mrs. Lewis, her manner half smiling, and half serious.

"Take what home, Caddy?" And Mr. Lewis turned toward his wife, curiously.

"Now, Mrs. Lewis had spoken from the moment's impulse, and already had partly regretted her answer.

"Take what home?" repeated her husband. "I don't understand you."

"Mr. Edwards, who you turned upon his question just now."

"Mr. Lewis slightly averted his head, and with a look of embarrassment, called in at the door of Mr. Edwards to purchase a few articles, and was gone in a few minutes.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Mrs. Lewis, looking curiously into her husband's face.

"Mother understands," replied Mrs. Lewis, smiling tenderly upon his face.

"Something pleasant must have happened to her," said Mrs. Lewis, smiling.

"You and mother look so happy," replied Mrs. Lewis, smiling.

"And we have cause to be happy," answered the father, as he drew his son tightly around him.

"My dear father, home will be like home," said Mrs. Lewis, smiling.

"Mrs. Lewis kissed her, but did not reply. He felt a rebuke in her words.

"You know so," only to it, dear, for this one evening."

"I did not seem to require much effort," said Mrs. Lewis, smiling.

"I did not seem to require much effort," said Mrs. Lewis, smiling.
